BRITISH CRUISER ATTACKED BY PLANE

Social Reform Or Dictatorship Says Roosevelt

Economic Security, Raising of Living Standards Alone Can Save Democracy, Declares U.S. President in Washington Address

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—President Roosevelt returned aggressively to the battle for the re-organization of the United States judiciary last night with an appeal that the nation give its "fealty to the constitution and not to its misinterpreters." To a scatching criticism of the "odd man on the supreme court," he added a warning that unless permanent social reform is quickly assured, the United States may well be caught in the tides of dictatorship.

He spoke on the 150th anniversary of the signing of the constitution at a gala open air mass meeting which climaxed Washington's observance of Constitution Day. His audience spread across a vast amphitheatre just below the Washington monument.

AS ONE NATION

The President turned back 150 years, when 38 weary delegates to a convention in Philadelphia signed the constitution stating the terms on which 13 republics agreed to try to survive together as one nation.

"The world of 1787 provided a perfect opportunity for organization of a new form of government thousands of miles removed from influences hostile to it," said the president. "How we then governed ourselves did not greatly concern Europe. And what occurred in Europe did not immediately affect us.

"Today the picture is different.

"Now what we do has enormous immediate effect not only among the nations of Europe but also among those of the Americas and the Far East, and what in any part of the world they do as surely and quickly affects us.

BECAUSE THEY FAILED

"In such an atmosphere our generation has watched democracies replace monarchies which had failed their people and dictatorships displaced democracies which had failed to function. And of late

MAYOR VOTE OVERWHELMING FOR NEW DEAL

Tammany Hall is Humbled As Roosevelt Policies Are Upheld

NEW YORK, Sept. 18. — Once mighty, Tammany Hall today visioned complete crumbling of its political power in New York under the avalanche of votes that placed both major parties behind pro-Roosevelt candidates in the Nov. 2 mayoralty election.

Energetic little Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia, Republican - Fusionist and supporter of the new deal President, was renominated by a margin of almost 2 to 1 in Thursday's primary over Senator Royal Copeland, Tammany Democrat who sought the backing of both major parties on the strength of his anti-Roosevelt record in Washington.

BLOW TO COPELAND

In the face of the rebuff, Copeland announced he would not run on an independent ticket Nov. 2.

A striking feature of the primary was the Democratic write-in vote for the 55-year-old mayor, who conducted what amounted to a sit-down campaign while the two other candidates were slamming away at each other in the bitterest primary seen here in years.

With all but 50 of the 3,797 precincts accounted for, the Democratic vote stood: Mahoney 412,887;

LITTLE HOPE OF ABATEMENT OF PARALYSIS

By the Canadian Press

Dr. Gordon Jackson, Toronto medical officer of health, sees little hope of abatement of the infantile paralysis in Ontario's capital, focal point of the epidemic.

Dr. Jackson displayed discouragement when he said last night, "This is another week just like last one." In reporting the week's list of new cases, the health officer said, "I am very disappointed."

Toronto had 21 new cases yesterday and one additional death. The new cases gave Toronto 551 since June 10. Another death in Hamilton yesterday brought the Ontario fatality list to 49 and the Dominion total to 71.

DEFENDERS IN NORTH CHINA PUSHED BACK

PEIPING, Sept. 18. — Japanese military authorities announced a triple-headed thrust into Chinese central Hopeh province lines today pushed the defenders back toward a fortified line which neutral observers believed would see the decisive clash of the Sino-Japanese conflict.

Despite resistance, the Japanese declared their forces had swept on past Chochow, the Walled City, 40 miles south of Peiping, which fell late yesterday, and taken new positions along the railway lines south.

States May Take Hand In Talks On Sino-Jap Crisis

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—State Secretary Hull called on President Roosevelt today to discuss with him, it was reported authoritatively, the question of possible United States participation in the League of Nations consideration of the Sino-Japanese crisis.

The League has reconstituted its advisory committee, established in 1933 to deal with the Manchurian conflict.

The United States was represented on the earlier committee and Geneva reports have said an invitation would be dispatched to the United States government to collaborate again.

Smile Unclouded

Maybe it is reaction from the serious situations with which the international crises have confronted him in recent days, but President Roosevelt, who so soberly agrees there is plenty of reason for the United States to be jittery, above wears a grin colossal even for a face noted for its grins. At the moment he was enjoying one of the few duty free hours since he went to Hyde Park, N.Y., listening in on a meeting of the Roosevelt Home Club composed of his supporters.

New Case Of Polio Reported; Schools May Remain Closed

Sixty cases of poliomyelitis (infantile paralysis) have occurred in Alberta to date this month, the majority of these being reported from the south and southeast portions of the province, Dr. M. R. Bow, deputy minister of provincial health, stated Saturday. One new case is reported for Edmonton, the patient being a 12-year-old boy in the Norwood district who was admitted to the Isolation hospital here Friday night.

Cases of poliomyelitis originating in Edmonton since September 1 now total five and Dr. R. B. Jenkins, city medical health officer, said Saturday he would recommend to the board of health Monday that public, separate and private schools be closed until September 27.

The original order by the health board closed schools until September 13, this closure later being extended to September 22 due to the prevalence of the disease in this district. Owing to the fact another case of poliomyelitis was reported here Friday, Dr. Jenkins deems it advisable to extend the closure again until September 27.

1 TO 9 AFFECTED

Grades 1 to 9 are affected by this order, high schools remaining open. High school students attending classes have been treated with the nasal spray as a protective measure against the malady.

The ban also affects public gatherings of all kinds, children

Don'ts Prescribed To Guard Against Infantile Paralysis

CLEVELAND, Sept. 18. — Parents should be calm, but on their guard, during the current outbreak of infantile paralysis, believes Dr. John A. Toomey, nationally-known authority on contagious diseases.

He advises parents and children:

Do not drink any water about which there is any question.

Do not eat unwashed fruit or vegetables.

Beware of unripe fruit, which is likely to cause an upset stomach.

Avoid crowds and do not go swimming.

"A physician should be consulted at first signs of headache, stomach pains, nausea, vomiting, or diarrhea," Dr. Toomey said. "Greatest damage is done because most cases come to the attention of a physician too late. Early diagnosis means early treatment and early treatment means prevention of paralysis."

Use of the so-called convalescent serum, a serum drawn from the blood of a patient who has recovered from the disease, is the chief method of treatment, he said.

Labor Congress Asks For Probe Nazi Propaganda

OTTAWA, Sept. 18—The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada today called for a government investigation of charges by a Montreal delegate that a number of organizations had been launched in this country by foreign agents with the object of furthering Nazi ideology.

Allegations that a Nazi movement was being prompted in this country were made by David Wolfe who said:

"I suggest this (Labor) movement have in their hands definite and positive proof that this is connected directly with Germany. It is nothing else than a Nazi movement." He produced a pamphlet entitled, "Key to the Mystery," which he claimed was a Fascist booklet and had a circulation of 1,500,000 in Canada.

OFFICIAL LIST OF DELEGATES TO CONVENTION

354 Will Have Voice At Liberal Nominating Meeting Monday

Official list of delegates to the Liberal convention to be held at the Masonic Temple Monday at 8 p.m. as selected at the party primaries Thursday night indicated that the convention will attract one of the largest audiences in the history of the local association, Charles H. Grant, K.C., secretary of the Edmonton provincial Liberal association, declared Friday.

"Several polls have still to file their returns with me, as several last minute changes have to be made. But the primaries were extremely successful, and we have secured our quota of 354 delegates, as well as adequate representation of alternates," he said.

Three polls for which lists of delegates had not been received by Mr. Grant up to noon on Saturday were: Poll 12, McCauley; Poll 13, Riverdale and Poll 36, Ritchie.

Official delegates to the Liberal convention as elected Thursday and filed with Mr. Grant, include:

Poll 1, Calder district: delegates: W. M. McMillan, W. Fox, B. tein, K. G. Kitchen, A. Randallo, Mrs. A. B. Dupuis, B. t. Jean, H. McDonald, F. A. Beaudry. Alternates: Mrs. McNeill, Mrs. Fox, Mrs. tein, L. S. Bell, Mr. Eddy, A. B. Dupuis, Tom McLaren, G. St. Jean, Mrs. McDonald, J. N. Beaudry.

Poll 2, Norwood North district; delegates: M. Knutson, D. A. Wood, J. A. Pattullo, J. F. Hozak, Morris Cody.

Poll 3 in Eastwood and Poll 13 at Riverdale are to be held Saturday night.

HOIST LABOR ORGANIZATION WORK PROPOSAL

OTTAWA, Sept. 18. — The Trades and Labor Congress, driving toward a cleanup of its long convention agenda; today referred to the incoming executive the question of its participation in labor organization work.

Suggestion came from J. B. Salsberg of Toronto that the congress establish a $50,000 fund to be used in organization. Salsberg maintained the "so-called" radical bodies could compare favorably with the more conservative Labor bodies in organization work. He added that in his belief the trade unions would be glad to contribute to an organization fund.

Michael Buhay, of Montreal, said International Unions should make it a point to stage an organization campaign in Quebec, a province in which workers were faced with numerous difficulties when they sought to organize. If international unions did not do this work, he said, there were other forces which would.

LAZARE KAGANOVICH, since 1911 a Communist party member and for many years one of the closest confidantes of Dictator Josef Stalin of the Soviet, who is rumored next victim of the Soviet's ceaseless drive against "opposition" elements. According to the report, Kaganovich has been deprived of leadership in three important divisions of the industrial commissariat and his dismissal from the government is believed imminent.

TORIES PLEDGE GRAY UNITED ENDORSEMENT

Actions of Unity Committee Is Ratified By Executive

Official support of a Conservative nominating convention which has been called for Wednesday, September 22, will be thrown behind E. L. Gray it was stated by Dr. A. A. McIntyre, president of the Edmonton Conservative Association following a meeting of the executive of that body.

"The purpose in calling the convention is to throw the whole support of the Conservative party behind Mr. Gray. We feel that we should give him as the Unity candidate, the maximum of support," said Dr. McIntyre.

The executive committee passed a motion endorsing the action of their negotiating committee, headed by H. R. Milner, K.C., president of the Alberta Conservative party, in inducing Mr. Gray to accept the Unity Committee nomination, and giving their full approval to the result.

TRADES CONGRESS VOTES IN FAVOR STATE MEDICINE

OTTAWA, Sept. 17—The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada today voted in favor of state medicine and hospitalization, establishment in all provinces of federations of labor, referred to its executive the question of more active participation in organization work, demanded jail terms for gold high-graders and adjourned.

Before they left the convention hall delegates heard President P. M. Draper, re-elected yesterday for his third successive term, declare the meeting had done a "tremendous amount of good for the International Trade Union Movement in Canada."

Reference to the executive disposed of a large number of resolutions on organization work. The committee was instructed to deal with the question as finances warrant.

RUSS PURGE TAKES SAILOR AND FATHER

MOSCOW, Sept. 18.—The execution of a sailor and his father for attempting to set fire to a naval warehouse at Sebastopol, on the Black Sea, was reported today as the Soviet "purge" of its enemies spread widely through the Union's outposts.

Another execution was reported from Vladivostok, where one man was shot for embezzlement of 218,000 rubles (about $42,600), from the timber trust.

Wang To See Roosevelt On War Shipments

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—Dr. C. T. Wang, the Chinese ambassador, arranged to see President Roosevelt today, presumably to carry directly to the chief executive China's protest against an order prohibiting United States government vessels from taking implements of war into the Far Eastern fighting zone. Wang previously had protested to State Secretary Hull.

6 Heavy Bombs Fall Close To H.M.S. Fearless

Advices From Malta Naval Base Say At-Attempt Made to Torpedo British Aircraft Carrier Glorious

LONDON, Sept. 18. — The British destroyer Fearless reported to London naval authorities today it had been attacked by a bombing plane off Gijon, Spain. Six heavy bombs fell close to the Fearless but she was not struck.

Having completed the attack, the plane flew toward Gijon, leading to a belief in London that the plane might have been a Spanish government craft.

Gijon is the government's last important port on the Bay of Biscay. There are nearby concentrations of insurgent troops and planes.

CARRIED IDENTIFICATION

The Fearless carried the regulation identification as a British warcraft and in addition the fore gun turret was painted red, white and blue.

The destroyer has heavy anti-aircraft armament but it was not disclosed whether she opened fire on her attacker.

The attack was another of the almost countless incidents that have occurred on the Bay of Biscay and the Mediterranean since the Spanish civil war broke out 14 months ago.

FRESH REPORTS

It was virtually impossible to winnow the chaff of rumor from the fresh harvest of reports.

Advices from Malta had informed persons saying there was "good reason" to believe that an attempt was made to torpedo the British aircraft carrier Glorious Thursday evening.

A news report from insurgent Spain had General Franco formally

JAP BOMBERS PERIL CHINA ON BIG FRONT

International Settlement Is Again in Danger From Air

SHANGHAI, Sept. 18. — Japanese artillery bombarded the Markham road section anew today, bringing fresh perils to the international settlement as Japanese navy planes, taking advantage of clearing weather, resumed bombardment of Chinese positions on a wide front.

The aerial attack was launched against Liuhong, Lotien, Kiangwan, Chapei and Pootung, Japanese naval officials declared, aiming at Chinese troop concentrations in those sections.

CLAIMS VICTORY

At the same time a Japanese army officer asserted Japan's land forces had repulsed Chinese counter attacks on a 25-mile front extending from the north at Liuho to Shanghai's outskirts.

The Japanese were said to have advanced within a mile of Liuhong, the powerful wireless transmitting base to the north where Chinese forces were in strong positions.

Heavy Chinese casualties were reported in the counter-attacks when Japanese permitted the advancing troops to push within close range before opening machine gun fire that halted the Chinese.

CHINESE RETREAT

Chinese army authorities admitted Japanese forces had recaptured Lotien, about 15 miles north of Shanghai, and that Chinese troops

FEARS MOUNT FOR MISSING RACING SLOOP

BOSTON, Sept. 18—As fears mounted today for the missing British racing sloop Endeavour I and her crew of 20, four coast guard patrol boats swung southward and east from Halifax in a widening search for the lost craft.

The four patrol boats reported no sign of the unsuccessful 1934 America's cup challenger during their search begun at a point 200 miles east of Nantucket, where the racing yacht was parted from its convoy, Viva in a gale last Monday night.

Mariners placed their hope in Endeavour's safely riding out the storm in the experienced seamanship of Captain Ned Heard.

Man Is Arrested For Shopbreaking

A man who gave his name as Jack Startzan is held by Royal Canadian Mounted police on a charge of breaking and entering the Red and White store at Myrnam Friday night.

It is alleged that Startzan and a companion were preparing to remove $400 worth of goods from the store when they were surprised by mounted police officers. The companion escaped but, as his identity is known to the police, an early arrest is expected.

Startzan and his companion are not believed to be connected with the gang responsible for the safecrackings in the Edmonton district.

LABOR CONGRESS OFFERS MEDIATION TO FACTIONS

PADDY DRAPER AGAIN NAMED TO PRESIDENCY

Veteran Leader Believes Settlement in Sight Between Rivals

OTTAWA, Sept. 18—The Trades and Labor Congress of Canada yesterday unanimously re-elected P. M. "Paddy" Draper its president for the third successive term and heard him predict speedy settlement of difficulties between unions affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and the C.I.O.

Earlier the Congress voted to maintain the status quo in its relations with C.I.O. affiliates and offer its services as mediator in the dispute between the A.F. of L., its parent body, and the C.I.O.

GOODWILL PLEA

The veteran Draper made a plea for goodwill and brotherly love in the Labor movement to avoid any breach that might result from differences between the major international labor organizations headed by William Green and John L. Lewis.

"I am not unmindful of the fact that we are facing a year that is going to be the most momentous one in the history, not only of this Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, but of the trades union movement of the North American continent as expressed by the American Federation of Labor," he said.

Draper said he believed "Both in Canada and the United States we shall be able to organize all the men and women who work for wages within the constitution of the American Federation of Labor and this Trades and Labor Congress of Canada."

He turned to R. A. Henning, fraternal delegate from the A. F. of L., and added:

"I want you to convey to President Green this congress stands four-square for the policies enunciated by the American Federation of Labor and shall continue to do so as it has done for 53 years of its existence."

After long debate the convention passed a resolution in which it decided to maintain the status quo regarding C. I. O. affiliates still represented in the congress pending outcome of a meeting between its executives and those of the A. F. of L.

The resolution, a substitute for several others, suggested the executive get in immediate touch with both warring organizations and that it offer its services "in a mediatory capacity."

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18.—President William Green and John L. Lewis declined comment today when informed the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada had offered to mediate in the dispute between the two organizations.

Other A.F. of L. officials, however, pointed out that for the past two years the Federation has had a special committee of three "which stands ready at all times to meet with any C.I.O. group."

"Thus far, however," they said, "our invitation has been ignored."

Gypsy Rose Lee Has Gone Domestic

HIGHLAND FALLS, N.Y., Sept. 18.—Gypsy Rose Lee, who shook a mean strip-tease for the Minsky boys before changing it to "La Danse" for the Shuberts, is back from Hollywood with the announcement she can make a nice cup of coffee, too.

The young lady who used to keep the bald-headed row agog and aflutter is now Mrs. Robert Mizzy, which is why she is stressing her culinary prowess. The Mizzys came to town to spend a spell with the dancer's mother.

NORTH TRADER IN PRAISE OF CONSERVATION

A. Hamdon Says Department of Agriculture is Efficient

Warm praise for the manner in which the provincial agricultural department is conducting the conservation of fur was expressed in an interview on Saturday by A. Hamdon, well known Fort Chipewyan fur trader. "I believe that the officials concerned, working under Hon. D. B. Mullen, minister of agriculture, are doing fine work and giving prompt business-like attention to all details," he said.

Mr. Hamdon said that in an interview he had with W. H. Wallace, provincial fish and game commissioner, on behalf of the Indian and half breed population of Fort Chipewyan, as well as white trappers, he was given to understand "Mr. Wallace had some time ago started negotiations with the Dominion authorities with the object of improving conditions in that district insofar as raising muskrats is concerned."

Mr. Wallace told him negotiations to dam certain waters in the Chipewyan area were well under way and it was hoped that by the method suggested that the water level in the whole marsh area would be sufficiently raised to safeguard the muskrats and materially increase this fur-bearing animal in what is considered the greatest producing area in the Dominion.

The Dominion has been asked to undertake damming various outlets in this area, while the provincial government has offered to supervise the scheme after it has been completed.

Judge Mulcted Double Duties On Wife's Things

NEW YORK, Sept. 18. — Justice Edgar J. Lauer of the state supreme court today paid the collector of customs $10,400—double the domestic value—in settlement for importation of jewelry, furs and other apparel undeclared in a joint report when he and his wife returned last Monday from Europe on the Normandie.

"All of the items that were undeclared have been paid for by Judge Lauer," Collector Harry Durning announced.

Mining Output To Be Up 100 Million

VANCOUVER, Sept. 18.—The annual western meeting of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, held jointly with the regional meeting of the American Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, ended last night at a dinner, when delegates were told by Hon. T. A. Crerar that Canada's mineral production this year would probably total $450,000,000 in value.

The federal minister of mines and resources said this figure was roughly $100,000,000 more than in 1936.

Rubber-Tired Cattle Thieves Are Disturbing

DENVER, Sept. 18.—Irate Colorado stockmen, stung by mounting cattle losses, met Friday in a council of war reminiscent of vigilante days and decided to do something about rustling.

Most of them admitted the 1937 rubber-tired cattle thief has them "buffaloed" for drastic measures have failed.

The concensus of a dozen ranchers at the meeting today was that new rustling laws are needed and new methods must be devised to meet the rustler "on his own ground."

were retreating from positions on the Liuhong sector nearer the city.

Liuhong itself was said still to be in Chinese hands, however.

China observed a day of mourning to commemorate the Republic's loss of Manchuria in 1931 before a Japanese army advancing much as present Japanese forces are moving through North China. Flags were at half-mast throughout China.

Madame Chiang, wife of the premier, made a dramatic anniversary visit to comfort Chinese troops enduring severe hardships on the Shanghai front because of continuing downpours of rain.

Dressed in nun-like black, she caused a sensation among the soldiers, who called her "our mother." Mme. Chi thanked fliers and soldiers personally for their courage in resisting the Japanese advance.

Japanese officials disclosed, meanwhile, that 500 frightened Chinese civilians who were found crouched within the shattered walls of Paoshan, on the Yangtze about 15 miles north of Shanghai, when Japanese captured the city a week ago, had been permitted to form their own autonomous government.

400 WOMEN AT LEAGUE MEETS

Under the auspices of Alberta Women's League for United Action two public meetings were held in Edmonton on Friday afternoon, the main meeting being held in All Saints' Parish Hall with an overflow meeting at the Talmud Torah Hall. About 400 women attended in all.

The meetings were called in connection with the by-election to be held in Edmonton shortly and were presided over by Mrs. R. M. Dingwall and Mrs. J. Gillespie. Among the speakers at both meetings were Mrs. W. D. Ferris, Mrs. E. C. Pardee, Mrs. R. C. Marshall and Mrs. F. C. Casselman.

Opposition to the Social Credit government and support of E. L. Gray as a unity candidate opposed to the Aberhart regime were pledged by the meetings, and plans were laid to take an active part in the coming campaign in furtherance of these objects.

Jardine May Take New York Mission

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Rev. R. Anderson Jardine, who married the Duke and Duchess of Windsor, said Friday he planned to live in the United States permanently and might become leader of the Chinatown Bowery mission.

Sailing for England after a two months lecture tour, he said he would come back in January to establish his residence, and would decide then on an offer of the mission post.

REBEL SUBS MOVING

Malta blossomed with talk of Spanish insurgent submarines moving with Italian and German destroyer escorts — this apparently founded on reports of the crews of two British destroyers, the Imperial and Shark.

It was rumored a contingent of British marines was ordered to leave today on two battle cruisers for a landing on the insurgent-held island of Mallorca.

Official reaction in London ranged from non-committal replies to outright denial or laughing ridicule. Of the report that the crew of the destroyer Comet, convoying the Glorious, had seen a torpedo sliding toward the carrier, one authority said:

"It might have been a torpedo or, on the other hand, it might have been a big fish."

There were two reports on the movement of insurgent submarines off Malta.

GERMAN BOAT RECOGNIZED

A lookout on the destroyer Imperial reported recognizing the German destroyer Jaguar and an Italian destroyer convoying one of the undersea craft. The Imperial was said to have passed the party so closely that she dipped her colors in salute.

The other report, credited to the crew of the destroyer Shark, was that two insurgent submarines, accompanied by two Italian and two German destroyers, had been sighted 50 miles off Malta.

R.A.F. UNIT LEAVES

A royal air force squadron of five planes roared away from Plymouth at dawn to join the Mediterranean patrol.

With this "courtesy" outline of what the Nyon nations intended to do, it was undersood, went a reiteration of the original invitation which Premier Mussolini last Tuesday rejected.

Reports from Salamanca, general headquarters of the Spanish Insurgents, said General Franco had formally accused Soviet Russia, one of the Nyon Powers of submarine piracy.

Dionne Quints Not To Be Guinea Pigs

CALLANDER, Ont., Sept. 18—The Dionne quintuplets, Dr. A. R. Dafoe said Friday, are not "guinea pigs, never have been, and never will be treated as such."

The quints physician was commenting on Dr. Lee G. Rigler's statement to the fifth International Congress of Radiology at Chicago that the quintuplets might help the science of heredity materially by being subjected to complete X-ray examinations.

Typos Sidestep Direct C.I.O. Vote

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Sept. 18.—Sidestepping a direct vote on the question of C.I.O. American Federation of Labor affiliation, the International Typographical Union convention delegates Friday adopted a substitute resolution calling on the American Federation to amend its constitution so it will have no power over unions except in an advisory capacity. Thomas A. Holland, Vancouver, was named delegate to the Canadian Trades and Labor Congress.

Malcolm Morley To Adjudicate Drama

OTTAWA, Sept. 18. — Malcolm Morley, London, England, theatrical producer, will be regional adjudicator of the 1938 Dominion Drama Festival, Col. H. C. Osborne, honorary director of the festival, announced Friday.

Mr. Morley is familiar with the task, having acted in the same capacity here in 1935.

Charge Italy Sending Huge Army To Spain

GENEVA, Sept. 18.—Italy is dispatching to insurgent Spain an army "twice the size" of the Italian forces already fighting for General Franco, Premier Juan Negrin of Spain charged today in a speech before the League of Nations assembly.

"Today we carefully consider the significance of our utterances," Negrin declared. "We declare that Italy is sending to Spain an army twice the size of the force already there."

Dr. Bow reported Saturday that cases of poliomyelitis in Alberta now numbered 60, of which Medicine Hat and district and the area south of that city report approximately 34. Medicine Hat has 16 patients originating in the city itself. There are also a few cases in the Empress district.

FIVE NEW CASES

Five new cases of the disease were recorded by provincial health authorities Monday, Calgary having one, Blackie 2, Medicine Hat district 1 and Milk River 1. The Calgary patient is 23 years of age and the Blackie patient 24, the other cases being children.

READERS ARE IMPATIENT TO SOLVE PUZZLE

not already read the announcements, will consist of determining, from drawings which will appear on 50 successive days in the want-ad section, what advertising slogan or trade name is suggested.

BRING TO BULLETIN

When the last picture puzzle is published, just bring your collection of pictures, either clipped from the paper or fascimiles, to The Bulletin office and judging will begin at once. The prizes will be awarded as soon as the judges, who will work thoroughly and carefully, are able to complete the scoring for competitors.

You already have the idea of the puzzle, of course. A picture may suggest a slogan, such as, "Ask the man who owns one," or it may suggest a trade name, such as, "Eveready Prestone." But the contestant must make up his mind, the correct answer in each case will be EITHER a slogan OR a trade name. It won't be both, and only ONE answer is right.

HITS THE SPOT

Now that autumn evenings are lengthening, indoor games come into their own as popular pastimes and it is right here that The Bulletin Advertisers' Puzzle Contest HITS THE SPOT.

It's a game for all. Mother can play, Dad can play, tiny sisters and brothers can play, and so can you, and you and you.

Remember, you may win a 1938 model automobile or any other of the wonderful prizes supplied by Edmonton merchants.

LOW LIVING STANDARDS ENDANGER DEMOCRACY

ROOSEVELT NOT QUITTING COURT FIGHT

It's Economic Security Or Dictatorship That Americans Must Choose

we have heard a clear challenge to the democratic idea of representative government.

"Their leaders laugh at all constitutions, predict the copying of their methods, and prophesy the early end of democracy throughout the world.

"Both that attitude and that prediction are denied by those of us who still believe in democracy—that is, by the overwhelming majority of the nations of the world and by the overwhelming majority of the people of the world.

NOT TO ONE MAN

"The first reason is that modern men and women will not tamely commit to one man or one group the permanent conduct of their government. Eventually they will insist not only on the right to choose who shall govern them but also upon the periodic reconsideration of that choice by the free exercise of the ballot.

"And the second reason is that the state of world affairs brought about by those new forms of government threatens civilization. Armaments and deficits pile up together. Trade barriers multiply and merchant ships are threatened on the high seas. Fear spreads throughout the world—fear of aggression, fear of invasion, fear of revolution, fear of death.

TAKES FORESIGHT

"The people of America are rightly determined to keep that growing menace from our shores.

"But it takes even more foresight, intelligence and patience to meet the subtle attack which spreading dictatorship makes upon the morale of a democracy.

"In our generation, a new idea has come to dominate thought about government—the idea that the resources of the nation can be made to produce a far higher standard of living for the masses if only government is intelligent and energetic in giving the right direction to economic life."

Only by raising the living standards of the masses, he said, "can we ensure against internal doubt as to the worthiness of our democracy and dissipate the illusion that the necessary price of effficiency is dictatorship with its attendant spirit of aggression."

He added:

"That is why I have been saying for months that there is a crisis in American affairs which demands action now—a crisis particularly dangerous because its external difficulties reinforce each other."

LAWYER'S CONTRACT

While the framers of the constitution produced a "layman's document," for 150 years "we have had an unending struggle between those who would preserve this original broad concept of the constitution as a layman's instrument of government and those who would shrivel the constitution into a lawyer's contract."

Throughout the history of the country each effort at social reform had been called unconstitutional by its enemies, he said.

"For 20 years, the odd man on the Supreme Court refused to admit that state minimum wage laws for women were constitutional. A few months ago, after my message to congress on the rejuvenation of the judiciary, the odd man admitted that the court had been wrong—for all those 20 years—and overruled himself."

He said the rank and file could take comfort in the fact that every effort to make a "lawyer's contract" of the constitution had "ultimately" failed.

NO JUSTIFICATION

"You will find no justification in any of the language of the constitution for delay in the reforms which the mass of the American people now demand."

Much of the President's speech quickly took his audience back to the bitter days of last spring when he was fighting for enactment of his bill to name new supreme court justices on the plea the judiciary had fallen behind the times and was in need of "new blood."

Defeated on that issue, Mr. Roosevelt nevertheless made it plain his objective of a reorganized judiciary was still before him. Last night he made it doubly plain that he has not given up that battle.

Single Queen Of Courts

With 46 districts missing, the Republican vote stood: LaGuardia 79,812; Copeland 46,560.

A cry of illegality was raised by David Costuma, member of the board of elections, who hotly declared the whole primary might be invalidated. He contended the election laws were violated when S. Howard Cohen, president of the board, permitted inspectors at 114 polling booths to go home before they finished counting ballots.

Commissioner Jacob Livingston said he believed Cohen's action "should be condoned" because the inspectors, who complained of exhaustion, were both Republicans and Democrats.

Mayor Laguardia hailed the results as a demonstration the people approve of "a non-partisan, non-political administration."

DAY OF BOSS GONE

"The day of the political boss has gone forever," he said.

Mahoney, choice of Postmaster General James Farley, Roosevelt's political major domo, and of the pro-new deal county leaders of King's, Queens, Richmond and the Bronx, said:—

"It is a victory for Franklin D. Roosevelt, our great president, and the progressive liberal policies which have characterized all his administration activities."

Tammany Leader Christopher Sullivan promptly switched allegiance from Copeland to the conquering Mahoney, in conformance with his promise to "abide by the results," but it appeared the hall was due for a shake-up. Never before has Tammany failed to make a crashing comeback after one "reform" administration.

The results of the balloting demonstrated once again that machine politics has lost its grip on the city's democracy.

PATRONAGE ENDED

But long time coolness between the Manhattan political club and Roosevelt ended federal patronage and it now controls little municipal patronage to salve its members.

Another interesting development growing out of the dual-defeat of Copeland was the apparent removal of the new deal as an issue in the general election. Copeland put this in words when he telegraphed congratulations to Mahoney.

"The new deal can no longer be an issue because your rival held his own views regarding it," he said. "Of necessity, therefore, the election must be confined simply to local issues."

Mahoney said that in the coming campaign he would seek to show Laguardia had been "an expensive municipal luxury."

Only 100 of the 2000 known kinds of bacteria and germs are harmful to mankind; the other 1900 are necessary to life.

Low Assails British M.P. For Levity At Chamber Luncheon

Contending that remarks of D. W. Donner, M.P. for Basingstoke, England, at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon at the Macdonald hotel on Friday were "impudent levity that bordered almost on ridicule," Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer, in addressing a joint rally of six Social Credit groups, at the Westmount Community League, Friday night, declared that "if this is a sample of English humor then I don't want to see any more of it in this country. It made me almost ashamed to be an Englishman."

Mr. Low was applauded as he warmly defended Premier William Aberhart, who had been the target for the visitor's remarks.

CALLED INTOLERANT

"We have listened to the ridicule and the intolerant speeches of our opposition," declared the minister. "We are struck by both the intolerance and intoleration of them. In this case our premier was invited to address the meeting. In fact he was pressed to be at the luncheon. He delivered a courageous speech.

"As he spoke I watched the business men squirmed and made grimaces in the premier's direction, as if to say, 'I told you so.' Yet I dare say that not one of them could have risen and delivered the speech the premier delivered.

"I could not help but admire the cheek of the people in allowing it and I protest most loudly against it.

NO ARGUMENTS

"Then, to tell the premier he is wrong in a most ridiculous way and resort to ridicule, is displaying a poverty of thought and action.

"Let me tell my friend that, seeing he mentioned Communism, if Communism ever gets a foothold in Canada, it will not be because of Social Credit."

The minister said that personally he had nothing against the bankers but that if a person ever wanted to get a dollar converted into gold, then he could go to Ottawa and would only get one ninth per cent in gold.

CREATING MONEY

The minister then took up his letter to the banks, which, he said, had been described by one lawyer as a "silly thing." The minister said that in explaining it to many people they had said they had finally understood it, but that it would not work.

He said that in his discussions with bankers, he established the fact that the dominion government does not create money. The banks both create and circulate it.

ATTACKS SCOTT

Mr. Low attacked Howard Scott, chief Technocrat, for saying that "Social Credit Is Idiocy."

"For trying to increase purchasing power for the people by use of their own credit and for trying to make foodstuffs available to the people, Social Credit is said to be idiocy."

He charged that the freight rate structure was stacked against Alberta and as proof of this, he said that Alberta farmers were receiving 16 to 18 cents a bushel less for their wheat than Manitoba farmers. In addition by means of tariffs, the Dominion government was taking from this province much in the way of money.

Walter Kuhl, M.P. for Jasper-Edson, explained the constitutional issues before the people and summed up by declaring that the Dominion had no right to disallow provincial legislation.

MAYOR SPEAKS

Charging that the record of "opposition and calumny to your premier is one of the most astounding developments in Western Canada public life," Mayor J. A. Clarke, K.C., declared that "those who lead the anti-Aberhart cabal should have no place in the public life of this province."

"I can only say that the city, as well as the province and other broader spheres of life are now facing conditions demanding drastic action and as long as I am the representative of the city, I am ready for any action required," he said.

Mayor Clarke then asked "What has become of the loudly ballyhooed attack on the city's offer of savings certificates? The court gave the injunction to the unknown plaintiff, who was supported by all the lesser lights in the Chamber of Commerce and then in spite of the alleged seriousness of the great issue, the injunction and the action itself lodged against the finances of the city of Edmonton has never been mentioned since. Why?"

His Worship stated that "the standing of the irresponsible senate is one of the most peculiar things we have to see and listen to. Just imagine our Red Deer senator coming to Canada only once in two years as authorized by the now notorious B.N.A. Act and doing nothing about any business. But that is not the senate's principal crime.

SENATOR'S ATTACK

"The thing we kick most on is that more senators, one in particular, don't follow Michener to the Southern States and stay there, instead of trying to befoul his own nest by the kind of slanderous misrepresentations we had to listen to on Wednesday night.

Turning his attention to the Edmonton by-election of Oct. 7, Mayor Clarke declared that "We all agreed that the Premier's suggestion of a Liberal to fill the place of George H. Van Allen, K.C., was okay. But then others took charge, he said and the idea was spoiled."

Mayor Clarke emphasized the grand total of $1,486,000 being spent by the city this year on public works, developments and necessaries, in addition to ordinary services.

SEAMEN QUIT BONUS DEMAND, REJOIN VESSEL

PORT ALBERNI, B.C., Sept. 18.—Twenty-five striking seamen last night abandoned their demand for a $75 war bonus and returned to the British freighter Dalcroy as the lumber-laden vessel prepared to sail for Diaren, Manchukuo.

Only one of the 16 crew members who came ashore Wednesday when Captain David Russell refused the bonus did not rejoin the ship. Harry Wilson of Vancouver will watch the Dalcroy pull out of this Vancouver Island west coast port.

The crew rejoined their ship after Captain Russell received a cable from the Dalcroy's London owners, saying no stoppage of pay and derogatory remarks on their papers would follow their strike.

The crew members said they sought a bonus because they thought the vessel would pass through the Sino-Japanese war zone.

Punch originated in India and gets its name from the Indian word meaning five, and referring to the usual number of ingredients. The vogue passed to England and thence to other countries.

Letters To Come By Atlantic Plane

OTTAWA, Sept. 18.—The British post office plans eventually to send all letters and cards to Canada by trans-Atlantic plane, Sir Thomas Gardiner, director-general, said here Friday. He is here on holiday.

Canada will be the last tie-in with the rest of the Empire in "all-up" basis, which is carrying full-paid mail without surcharge. At present, mail is carried to the East and South Africa without extra charge and sometime next year this service will be extended to India and Australia.

INSURGENTS GOT 12 ITALIAN SUBS PAPER DECLARES

PARIS, Sept. 18.—La Voce Degli Italiani, newspaper published here by Italian emigres, charged Friday that Premier Mussolini has sold 12 submarines, fully staffed with officers and crew, to General Franco.

The newspaper said Italy is building a base at Tobruk, Cyrenaica, near the Lybian-Egyptian border, for submarines operating in the eastern Mediterranean. It also asserted that preparations are being made there to garrison two infantry divisions.

Twelve other submarines, the Emigre newspaper claimed, are cruising near the mouth of the Dardanelles to observe traffic passing through the straits.

Members of the crews wear different uniforms from those used on Italian submarines, and receive wartime pay, the newspaper said, adding that the vessels sail without ship's registers or other documents.

No Optimism Duce Tells Rome Papers

ROME, Sept. 18.—Italian newspapers have been ordered to observe "full reserve but no optimism" with regard to the Nyon plan to protect merchant shipping in the Mediterranean, it was learned Friday.

OPEN FIRE ON ANYTHING IS ORDER TO FLEET

GENEVA, Sept. 18.—Great Britain and France today gave their growing Mediterranean fleets orders to "open fire immediately" on airplanes and surface craft as well as submarines which attack merchant vessels.

Their extension of the anti-piracy campaign—previously limited to undersea marauders—was based on a new accord of Nyon signed today by the nine powers which framed the original pact against submarine piracy a week ago.

The two major Nyon powers gave their naval commanders—soon to have at their disposal some 150 warships—sweeping orders to combat the pirates.

Meanwhile Italy remained aloof, insisting it must be given equality with Great Britain and France in the patrol against the mysterious attacks which have grown out of the Spanish civil war.

Prospects Good

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Sept. 18.—Reports indicate sportsmen will find woodcock plentiful in New Brunswick next fall, especially in southern districts of the province. This is attributed to absence of late snows during the breeding season.

Drenching with water simply waterlogs your system and doesn't quench thirst. Straw a small bottle of 7-Up. The parched membranes will respond immediately. The myriads of bubbles seem to gladden your entire system. Thirst is quenched, the waterlogging disappears.

The man who said, "I like 7-Up and 7-Up likes me" was exactly right as you will soon find on drinking a single bottle of 7-Up for thirst. So we say, "quench with 7-Up." You will at once say,

"I like 7-Up"—"7-Up likes me."

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 18

THE RESPONSIBILITY IS PLAIN

Primaries throughout the city on Thursday evening chose the 354 delegates, with alternates, who are to comprise the nominating convention which on Monday will select a Liberal candidate for the seat left vacant by the death of Mr. G. H. Van Allen. Into the hands of these men and women has been committed for the time the keeping of the integrity, prestige and public usefulness of the Liberal party: not only in Edmonton, but in the province at large.

It will be their duty to see that the candidate chosen is one who will help to maintain Liberalism as the vital force it became under the leadership of Mr., now Justice, W. R. Howson, and who stands squarely for the platform duly adopted and championed by the party at the recent general elections. This no delegate can do if he allows himself to be led into any compromising alliance with parties who fought and helped to defeat Liberal candidates on that platform two years ago.

HIS PART

Italy having refused to join them, the other nine Mediterranean powers are proceeding with their plans to patrol that sea and suppress submarine piracy. If the pirates have not already taken the hint and returned to their home ports to escape being drowned or caught and thus disclosing the identity of their sponsoring government.

It does not follow that Italy will not have, or has not had, any hand in stopping the marauding. If he has not done so already, Mussolini will no doubt instruct the pirates to get back to their bases while the getting is good. Unless all signs fail and circumstantial evidence means nothing, a word from him could stop the piracy quicker than the combined navies of all the Nyon powers.

CHOLERA

Japanese officers accuse the Chinese of spreading cholera germs in order to check their advance. If they did, it was only moderately successful. And if they did, what right have the invaders to blame them for it? Japan cannot throw the recognized rules of war into the waste basket and still claim or expect that the Chinese should observe them. They who come into the court of world opinion must come with clean hands. If the Japanese soldiers had not been where they had no business being, the Chinese could not have harmed them by scattering cholera germs in the Shanghai area, and would have had no reason to do so. Outlaws are not entitled to complain if they are treated according to their own standard of conduct. And what people on earth wouldn't use cholera germs or any other available weapon against an army of invaders who swarmed into their country and murdered wholesale?

Canadian authorities, by the way, it is to be supposed are taking due precaution to see that ships returning from the Orient do not bring cholera germs into Canada. Due precaution in this case means going the limit in the way of quarantine requirements and all other conceivable preventive measures. Canada's trade with China and Japan is not worth a row of pins against any liability that the disease might be imported into this country.

WORK FOR IDLE MEN

The city council of Moose Jaw is telling Ottawa of one job on which a large number of idle men could be set at work making a badly needed and permanent public improvement. The city is short of water, because of the continued drought. So short that rationing is in force and a famine by no means impossible.

To remedy this situation permanently it is proposed to tap the South Saskatchewan river and carry water through a seventy-mile pipe line to the city. The cost is estimated at about $2,000,000. The city cannot meet the whole cost, but has $500,000 to contribute. The province and the Dominion would have to supply the balance.

Of course it is unusual that a province or the Dominion should be asked to stand the cost of supplying a city with water. But the situation is also unusual, and granting Moose Jaw's petition would not commit provincial or federal authorities to do the like service for other cities not in a similar predicament. There is a difference between meeting an emergency and establishing a "precedent" of general application.

Since there are vast numbers of farmers, farm boys and townsmen in Saskatchewan who must, because of the drought, be supported by provincial and federal money, they might as well be digging the ditch and putting in the pipe line as drawing "direct relief." And if the city is liable to have a water famine whenever drought conditions become severe, soon or later the work will have to be done. Why not now?

THE COMMISSION

The Royal Commission on Dominion-provincial relations is in process of organization at Ottawa, and public hearings will begin in due course, to be held at centres throughout Canada. The Commission consists of Hon. N. W. Rowell, chief justice of Ontario, chairman. Hon. Thibaudeau Rinfret, justice of the Supreme Court of Canada, J. W. Dafoe, editor of the Winnipeg Free Press, Professor Mackay of Halifax and Professor Angus of Vancouver.

The Commission is instructed to enquire into the allocation of revenue sources and governmental burdens to the federal and provincial authorities;

To investigate the character and amount of taxation collected from the people of Canada, in the light of constitutional limitations and financial and economic conditions;

To examine public expenditures and public debts in order to determine whether the present division of the burden of government is equitable;

To investigate Dominion subsidies and grants to the provinces.

These are specific subjects, and while a commission may and sometimes does wander beyond the lines laid down in the text of its submission, there is not much likelihood that the present body will do so. The urgency of the financial position of some of the provinces and the continuing drain incidental to unemployment is a compelling reason why the commissioners should stick closely to the matters definitely assigned to them. That they will find either time or inclination to canvass the question of a general revision of the constitution, there is little or no probability.

The last item in the list of subjects submitted is the one bearing directly on the immediate financial necessities of the provinces, and is therefore likely to get close and perhaps major attention. How to enable the provinces to make ends meet, pending a revision of the constitution by a process of negotiations bound to be protracted, is the subject of present moment. It will not be strange if the Commission hears more appeals for larger subsidies than demands for broader provincial powers of either taxation or control.

HELP FROM ONTARIO

Hardly a day passes without the drouth-stricken sections of Saskatchewan getting a reminder that hearts elsewhere in Canada are beating in sympathy with them. We take this from a press despatch from Midland, Ont.: "Ministers and priests of the Georgian Bay towns of Midland, Penetanguishene and Victoria Harbor decided Monday to send a carload of fruit, vegetables and canned goods to the drouth areas in Saskatchewan."

There have been almost countless numbers of such despatches since the beginning of this drouth era in the West. They have been accumulative witness to neighborliness and generosity.

And it is interesting to note that invariably the church, in one branch or another, or frequently in co-operation, is the leader in these shipments of help to the West. The church in Canada, in these difficult years for the West, has well emulated the Good Samaritan who did not pass by on the other side.—Regina Leader Post.

Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

It was the voice of Major-General the Honourable W. A. Griesbach, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D., K.C., that roused my attention. The Sergeant-at-Arms was calling the Unity Cabinet to order. It had met to discuss a proposal to create a new portfolio—that of Minister of Irrigation.

Acting-Premier, the Hon. S. W. Field, K.C., solicitor for the Mortgage and Loan Companies of Canada and President of the People's League, presided. Ministers present included Hon. H. H. Parlee, K.C., solicitor for the Canadian Bank of Commerce and president of the Edmonton Liberal Association; Hon. H. R. Milner, K.C., solicitor for the Royal Bank and Canadian Bankers' Association and president of the Edmonton Conservative Association; Hon. J. F. Lymburn, solicitor for the Bank of Montreal, representing the U.F.A. party; Hon. L. Y. Cairns, K.C., solicitor for the Dominion Bank and member of the Conservative Executive, and Hon. A. W. Auxier, K.C., solicitor for the National Trust Company and secretary of the People's League.

"I think we are all here except Dick," said the acting-Premier. "Dick was called away to give one of his uplift talks to the students at the University of Saskatchewan. They've been getting out of hand, with no room in the professions for them. Dick will give them his famous 'pick and shovel' talk. That'll uplift 'em."

"They won't need much 'up-lifting'," said Hon. L. Y. Cairns, K.C., "not if they've taken another notch in their belts every time Dick has told them to."

Grins met the sardonic jest. "I think it would better become my learned friend to speak more respectfully of our advisory-Premier," said Hon. H. R. Milner, K.C., reprovingly.

"Meaning what?" demanded Hon. Mr. Cairns, K.C.

"Referring to the Rt. Hon. Richard Bedford Bennett, K.C., as 'Dick.' Remember, if it hadn't been for Dick—I mean the Rt. Hon. Mr. Bennett, K.C.—coming here and getting us all together at the Macdonald that afternoon, we'd none of us be here today. Besides, as counsel for the Royal Bank, I can't forget that Mr. Bennett is our biggest shareholder."

"Bigger than Sir Herbert Holt?" asked Hon. Mr. Parlee in surprise.

"You heard what I said, Mr. Parlee. I said 'our biggest shareholder.' Surely that is enough."

Hon. L. Y. Cairns, K.C., gave a quiet whistle. "Gosh," he said, "no wonder Dick can speak so feelingly of the sacredness of money contracts. Phew!"

"He means the biggest round the waistline," interjected Hon. A. W. Auxier, K.C.

"No flippancies, please, from you," said Hon. H. R. Milner, K.C., severely to the younger man. "Let's get down to business. What's on the agenda?"

"I've a proposal," said the acting-Premier, Hon. S. W. Field, K.C., "that we enlarge the Cabinet by creating a Minister of Irrigation."

"Who have you in mind for the job," asked Hon. Mr. Lymburn cannily.

"I don't wish to disclose his name at this stage," said the acting-Premier warily, "but he is an expert on irrigation engineering. Besides we owe him a debt—a moral debt at any rate."

"There's never any collateral to moral debts," observed Hon. Mr. Auxier, K.C.

"I think I know who you have in mind," observed Hon. H. H. Parlee, K.C., "and as I was—shall I say particeps criminus—in making use of him, I shall be glad to support the proposal of the acting-Premier."

In a flash Hon. H. R. Milner, K.C., was on the defensive. "Hold hard there," he said. "It's all right for my learned friend to try to pay his political debts in this fashion, but I maintain the job should go to a good Conservative. After all, we supplied the brains and we supplied the money."

"I'm varry much afraid that this might spoil the r-reputation of the Government," said Hon. Mr. Lymburn, K.C., purringly. "No doubt he is a varry pliable young man and understand ir-r-rigation. But he's is no a King's Counsellor and he disna r-represent a bank."

"How's this for a suggestion," interposed Hon. Mr. Cairns, K.C. "Give it to Mr. S. B. Woods, K.C. He helped us with an interview in The Journal."

"I'd be opposed to that," said acting-Premier Field, K.C. "He's my law partner and it wouldn't look good. Besides I'm quite capable of representing the mortgage and loan companies without any help."

"How about the General here?" suggested Hon. Mr. Milner, K.C. "He's a good Tory, a K.C., and his legal firm represents several trust companies. He should do."

"Same objection," demurred the acting-Premier. "His firm is represented in the House already. You remember the good work, gentlemen, that Mr. Gerald O'Connor did in fastening the Fortin Plan on the people of Edmonton. I think we'd better leave the General standing on guard, O Canada, for thee."

Silence fell upon the group, broken at last by Hon. Mr. Auxier, K.C. Said he, "Here's where you fellows need a smart young lawyer to help you over the technicalities. Let us assume that by virtue of his position the young man is nominally an adviser in Alberta to the federal Premier. That makes him King's counsellor. Get the idea!"

"But how about representing a bank. That's the obstacle," said Hon. Mr. Cairns, K.C.

"Just as simple," said Hon. Mr. Auxier, "let us claim for him that he represents the most valuable banks of all—the earth banks that retain the water in the irrigation ditches."

"That isn't a bank—that's the bunk," said Hon. Mr. Milner, K.C., with an air of finality.

"Your trouble, Ray, is that you don't know your history," retorted the younger lawyer. "The first bank on record to do a checking business was a bank of earth."

"I'll bite," said Hon. Mr. Cairns, K.C. "When was it?"

"When Moses gave Pharoah a check on the Bank of the Red Sea."

Laughter greeted the quip, save from counsel for the Royal Bank. "Punning is the lowest form of humor," he said scornfully. "Besides, if Dick—I mean the Hon. Mr. Bennett, K.C.—was to hear of you making puns on the Bible, you'd find yourself out on the street. What's the next business?"

"Just a minute," said Hon. Mr. Lymburn, K.C. "As the old proverb says, 'There's many a true word spoke in jest.' These banks of earth our young friend speaks of lightly, are among the most profitable of projects to the banks we represent. Why, when I was Attorney-General I got a guarantee for the Bank of Montreal of a loan of $218,000 for one irrigation project. I remember that $5,400,000 of 6 per cent bonds were guaranteed for the Lethbridge Northern. When we went out it was $6,669,191.66 in the hole—and every cent of it guaranteed by the government."

"I hadn't thought of that," mused Hon. Mr. Milner, K.C. "Perhaps we'd better call Dick up and see if he'll o.k. the appointment." Turning to Major-General the Honourable W. A. Griesbach, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D., K.C., he said, "Get Mr. Bennett on the long distance at Saskatoon."

"Be sure and tell him," went on Hon. Mr. Lymburn, K.C., "that the young man started off right, with a speech at Hanna, in which he told the Acadia electors that he had no platform, but he would build them an irrigation project as soon as he got in. That'll help with Dick."

The phone started ringing. "Mr. Bennett is ready," said Major-General the Honourable W. A. Griesbach, C.B., C.M.G., D.S.O., V.D., K.C. Hon. Mr. Milner, K.C., went to lift the receiver from the hook. "By the way," he said, "what is the young man's name again. It slipped my memory."

Hon. Mr. Parlee opened his mouth to speak the name. I strained to listen, but the phone kept on ringing as if it would never stop. It kept on ringing and ringing, until I rubbed my eyes, got out of bed, turned the alarm clock off and started another day on the journalistic treadmill.

Current Comment

WHAT ABOUT IT?

It was a week ago today that Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hugessen, British ambassador to China, was shot down by Japanese airmen in Shanghai.

After the shooting, the British government despatched a note to Japan asking for formal apologies and for an undertaking that such insolent carelessness (to put the kindliest interpretation upon it) should not occur again.

The reply from Japan is most unsatisfactory.

The British protest was a note that incorporated the traditional politeness of the British with a good deal of the British tolerance and forbearance. It has been pretty plainly said in a good many quarters that had anyone but a government with pacifist leanings written that note it would have been couched in terms markedly stronger.

Be that as it may, we are proud that our Empire is powerful enough to be notably compassionate in the threats it makes against those who try its patience.

But surely there is a limit to the forbearance of even an Empire whose patience attests its civilized status.

There is surely a point beyond which upstart affronts cannot go.

Japanese casuistry in answering this kindly note piles insult upon injury.

Heaven forbid that either Britain or any British institution should say one word that might add horror to the martial holocaust in Asia.

But the apparently studied indifference of Japan in regard to the attacks on British institutions goes beyond the point that can be excused by any plea of naivette or even barbarity.

The time for politeness is wearing very thin. It is drawing perilously close to the occasion for a blunt demand for satisfaction or a recourse to those extremities which no one would deplore more than the British Empire which would be forced to employ them.—Vancouver Sun.

IS DEMOCRACY GROWING SOFT?

The Nazi Party Congress at Nuremberg raises questions which the world will have to face sooner or later. We hear Joseph Goebbels, propaganda minister, rise to denounce democracy by name and to call on Fascism everywhere to fight it. That fight is part of the Nazi Party program.

Of the three leading schools of political thought in the world today, democracy, Communism and Fascism, Fascism is the youngest, the rawest, the most vociferous. Believers in democracy hate Communism and Fascism; Communists hate democracy and Fascism; Fascists hate democracy and Communism. Each ism opposes the other two—but Fascism, with the raw energy of newness, is the most articulate and the most aggressive.

Of the three schools, democracy is the oldest. It is also the least aggressive, the most supine. We hear condemnations of Fascism and Communism in democratic countries, but we don't hear of any organized campaign to further democracy, to spread democracy, to organize the world in the forms of democracy. Next oldest is Communism, which, in a middle-aged way, still talks of world revolution. But in Russia it seems content to stay at home, while the Communists themselves are split on the question of revolutionary activity abroad.

Possibly the older a school of political thought grows the more contented it becomes; the layers of fat deposited by age, comfort and success take their toll in lack of energy. It is always the raw young school that beats the more rotund older ones; always the thin and hungry barbarians who defeat the fat Roman burghers. History is a story of the wreckage of civilizations by the uncivilized; victories over higher forms by lower forms. Is the world again facing the ride of the barbarians? The echoes of hoofbeats are heard in the Goebbels speech. Believers in democracy are not alarmed, just as the sedate, peaceful, herbiverous mastodons were not alarmed when the meat-eating tiger first made his appearance; the mastodons are gone—the tigers are still with us.

Recent European events give small comfort to believers in democracy. Fascism snarls at every obstacle and at every slight; it fights; it takes what it wants; its method is audacity and shamelessness. But we see the two great European democracies, Britain and France, accept slight after slight from the Fascist countries; watch them rape Spain; see them take over the seas; observe them destroy treaties, and we see these democracies sit back and smile contentedly.

Fascist energy is the energy of freebooters and racketeers scenting juicy stores of loot in the near distance. The barbarians plan their way; civilization sits on its cushion and waits. If Goebbels' speech does not stir British and French opinion, does not result in a hardening of British and French policy, then American believers in democracy have something to fear. The wolf does not often give so much warning as this.—New York Post.

ADMITS PRINCIPLES SOUND

Editor, Bulletin: City Relief Manager, H. F. McKee admits Social Credit will solve the relief problem.

It must be very encouraging to the people to know that another of the leading men of Edmonton has given his O.K. to Social Credit principles.

"Mr. McKee reported that no changes in the shoe repair department had been made because 'it was definitely stated Social Credit was to be put into effect this fall and that the premier has committed himself to that program even to the extent of calling another session. I felt that this had a very important bearing on the matter of unemployment relief and I am free to confess that I have postponed this expenditure and change partly due to that reason', he said."

The provincial government has always maintained that the use of our own Credit will solve the burdens and the distress under which our people are struggling to exist. Some of the city officials belong to the Peoples' League, a combination of disgruntled men who cannot shake off that air of servitude to the bankers.

Mr. McKee has set an example to other leading men to face the facts as they exist and bring about the only solution, namely—

J. H. UNWIN, M.L.A.

AN OPEN LETTER

Editor, Bulletin: My first thought is "Thank God for the freedom of speech, and an open press".

My next is my indignation at those who wish to dictate to the Liberal party of this city in connection with how this present vacancy is to be filled.

My next thought is the Liberals are asleep. The tactics of the different parties opposing the Liberals at the present time are to promote their individual interests, with the assistance of the great Liberal party. What shall I call it?

My next thought is Dictatorial tactics. The Tory is full of "Do as I say", not "Do as your judgment directs y[illegible]." Why don't they stand on their own feet with dignity? Do you ask me why My answer is easy. They are afraid that their policies in the past will not be entertained by the general public. Conseqently they seek an excuse to strengthen their defects.

My next thought is, do they forget or do they think that the public forgets their legislation in the Dominion government of recent years? Let me call to your memory where you were told to "take up your belt another hole", and also, "sound money is our motto". You had already taken your belt in to the l st hole, and then the end came, and and what did the whole of this great Dominion do—with the exception of Alberta, they turned to the great Liberal party and they put their trust in them, never to be betrayed.

My next thought is a question, are we as Liberals to be dictated to by different so-called parties of no standing in our city? What is your answer? The election of an early date will answer my question.

My next thought is the reply that appeared in the public press from Mr. Gray. Please allow me to comment on same. Mr. Gray was elected leader of the Liberal Provincial party some time ago. He made a provision in his acceptance of the leadership, intimating that he was to have a free hand to be allowed to hold a round table conference with opposition parties, etc. My next thought was, he was not serious. He was not a Liberal. He was what you might call an Independent. I wish to be fair to him. He takes his hat off to the enemies of Liberalism. What he should have done was to say: "If the Liberals of Edmonton want me to contest the constituency recently occupied by Mr. Van Allen, I will do so, but under no other conditions."

So now my next thought is, what are we going to do about it.

Are we going to be dictated to by the Tories, Peoples' League, U. F. A., C.C.F. and Communists, or are we going to stand for Liberalism?

My next, and very important thought is—we will not stand for coalation with this faction.

We will nominate a true and well though out Liberal gentleman, that has spent long years in the Liberal ranks, and we will elect him.

You say who he be, and my answer is—H. H. Parlee, K.C., and if he does not accept nomination, my next nominee is E. C. Fisher, you don't have to ask anyone who he is, we all know him. His photograph will appear in the press and his association in the Liberal party will be substantiated by the press, so that you will be fully acquainted with him.

No truck or trade with the enemy. The Editor has my name and address.

OLD LIBERAL.

A Day in Canadian History

By FRED WILLIAMS

On September 18, 1841, Lord Sydenham, suffering though he was from illness, accentuated by a fall from his horse, prorogued at Kingston the first parliament of the Province of Canada, created by the Imperial Act which had reversed the policy of 1791 when the Province of Quebec was divided into Lower and Upper Canada and had made them one. But it was in name only. The Lower Canadians were dissatisfied because Canada West was given the same representation as they had, while they were also banned from the executive council. Sydenham meant well; had his health not broken he might have been remembered as the great conciliator, but fate was against him. Canada killed him just as it had killed Lord Durham, and it was not long before Sir Charles Baggot had to admit French members to his council, nor many years before the French language, banned by Sydenham, was permitted. Thus did French-Canadians begin assertion of that policy which ever since has secured for them through unity concession after concession. Sir Charles also fell a victim to Canada. In less than two years he too died, at Kingston in May, 1843, the third gubernatorial victim of attempting to create a working system of government for Canada.

Thirty-seven years ago today, William Lyon Mackenzie King was appointed the first deputy minister of labor of Canada. Who would have predicted on that September 18, 1900, that within 21 years he would be prime minister of Canada, or that he would be the only man, so far, to have been sworn into that high office three times?

The Bank of Upper Canada, which played so prominent a part in the story of that province from 1823 onward, was compelled to suspend, payment on September 18 1866, five years after its great political antagonist, William Lyon Mackenzie, had passed from the scene. The failure, caused by the collapse of a railway and real estate boom, caused much inconvenience and some distress, but the advent of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and the opening of new branches by Montreal banks soon alleviated the situation. But never again did a bank play politics in Canada as did the "Bank of the Family Compact."

Sunshine Shafts

The class was having a nature lesson and the teacher had just drawn a picture of a deer on the blackboard.

"Now, Tommy Brown," she said, "what animal is that?"

Tommy hung his head and gazed intently at the floor.

"Come, Tommy, surely you know what that is! Why, what does your mother call your father when he brings his wages home?"

"Aw" said Tommy derisively, "that's not a drunken old pig."

"I wish I knew if my job is a permanent one. When I was taken on the boss said, 'All right, I'll give you a trial,' and I don't like to ask him whether I've given him satisfaction in case he finds fault with me."

"Yes, that's awkward. How long have you been working for him?"

"Nigh on forty years now."

"My father and a man named Dooley have been fighting for twenty years, but now they have stopped."

"Why? Did they bury the hatchet?"

"No; they buried Dooley."

In his coronation speech, King Henry IV of France wished "that every peasant in my country have two chickens in his pot on Sundays."

NEW BOY STAR FEATURES IN RIALTO FILM

Ra Hould's Background Reveals Reasons For His Stardom

Genealogists who are interested in tracing the stuff of which stars are made, would find a wealth of material in the family tree of 12-year-old Ra Hould, who stars in "Dangerous Holiday," at the Rialto today until Tuesday.

Artistic nature? Ra's can be traced directly back to James Butlin, his maternal great grandfather and a sculptor who died in Rome many years ago. Some examples of his art may still be seen at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England.

Poise? He inherits it directly from his grandfather, Mr. Richard Arthur Hould, who came to New Zealand from the north of England in 1858 and was one of the brave early pioneers to that country later becoming a government official in the Department of Justice. He retired from his judicial post in 1908, but took a very keen interest in politics, and being a brilliant writer he devoted the rest of his life to journalism.

As for Ra's self reliance, exhibited in marked degree while he is yet a youngster, it comes from his father, Arthur Hould. Born in Nelson, New Zealand, and educated in Auckland, he became affiliated with the New Zealand Shipping Co., Ltd., in the direct trade between New Zealand and London. After forty years service with that company in many capacities, mainly in Auckland, Christchurch and Dunedin, Mr. Hould retired and decided to visit California with his wife and son.

All of Ra's personal charm and beauty comes from his mother's side. Amy Beatrice Hould, born at Liverpool, England, trained for nursing in the Croydon General hospital, going from there to Blenheim, New Zealand, where she combined her nursing profession with her favorite avocation—the theatre. In 1917 she was about to join a hospital ship for active war service when she met Mr. Hould, to whom she was married in July of that year.

Three clergymen — a dean, a vicar and a curate — might have been observed in all their ecclesiastical dignity at the Gainsborough Studios a few months ago.

If you wonder what brought the three clerics into the hurly-burly of a film-studio, the answer is—"All In," the new Ralph Lynn comedy now showing at the Rialto as the second program feature.

They were not real clergymen, however, but actors in priest's clothing. The curate was none other than Gibb McLaughlin, playing the second clerical part of his career.

"I'm not really a parson, either," said cleric number two, who wore the gaiters of a dean. "In the picture I steal the real dean's clothes, but actually I play the part of a horse-dealer." It was Claude Dampier who made this confession.

"What I don't like about it," said the third, "is this collar. It melts! I, too, am not a real parson. I belong to the race-course fraternity in the film and, as with Claude, these are borrowed plumes."

Thus spake Jack Barty, another of the team of laugh-makers, which, headed by Ralph Lynn, makes "All In" one of the quickest, slickest comedies ever made by a British studio.

Jean Harlow, Robert Taylor At Dreamland

Jean Harlow and Robert Taylor is the thrilling new star combination presented by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in the new comedy-romance, "Personal Property," which comes to the Dreamland theatre starting Monday for a three day showing.

Taylor, current idol of the screen, comes from the arms of Garbo in "Camille" to his romance with Miss Harlow in the present photoplay which is based on the H. M. Harwood stage success, "Man In Possession." Miss Harlow was last seen in the four-star hit, "Libeled Lady."

"Personal Property" comes from the hands of W. S. Van Dyke, who has achieved the unique record of never having turned out a failure. Among Van Dyke's recent hits were "After the Thin Man," "San Francisco," and "Rose Marie."

In Drama of Sea

PACKING LUNCHES

Along about this time of year, mothers become interested in the lunch problem due to the fact that they must again begin packing lunches for the children to take to school. However, there are many who find the lunch question an all-year problem as they regularly carry their lunches to work with them.

The lunch carried on any one day should be considered in relation to the other meals of that day in order that a well-balanced diet may be used but in this article I am going to suggest some good specimen lunches which you may use, and will let you arrange your other meals accordingly.

The following are some good lunches which will prove both satisfying and highly nutritious.

Number 1. Two or three sandwiches of whole wheat bread filled with peanut butter and lettuce. Do not put the lettuce and peanut butter in the sandwiches. Slice the bread before packing in the lunch and wrap it in waxed paper so that the slices will remain fresh and moist. Take along a small jar of fresh butter and also one of peanut butter, and some head lettuce, wrapped in a moist cloth. When ready to eat your lunch, spread the butter on the bread, then add the peanut butter and a plentiful supply of lettuce leaves. Any lettuce which is left over may also be eaten.

Or, carry well-washed celery with you which has been wrapped in waxed paper and eat the celery along with the sandwiches.

Number 2. Use the same whole wheat bread as for the peanut butter sandwiches, but vary the filling used. Any of the following may be taken: almond nut butter; minced eggs; minced ripe olives; cheese; roast beef or chicken. Any of these make excellent fillers for the whole wheat bread sandwiches. If you wish, you may take one or two sandwiches having a "hearty" filling such as roast beef, and in addition the third sandwich may contain a vegetable filling of finely chopped lettuce and celery, or a mixture of chopped celery and ground carrots. Sometimes the vegetable sandwich will provide a refreshing addition to the more nutritious fillings. When the chopped vegetables are used, the sandwich should be prepared at home and carried in the lunch box wrapped in waxed paper.

Number 3. One pint of certified milk, together with any kind of fresh fruit desired, such as apples, oranges, peaches, etc. The combination of fruit and milk will digest perfectly if no other food is used at the same time. Or, as a variant, use dates and buttermilk, or dates with fresh milk.

Number 4. Cold broiled or roast chicken, or cold roast beef, string beans (either canned or fresh), and salad materials of lettuce, tomatoes and cucumbers. The string beans may be left over from the night before and may be heated at breakfast time and immediately put into a thermos bottle, which will keep them warm until noon. The lettuce, tomatoes and cucumbers should be taken wrapped in a moist cloth, and the salad prepared fresh when ready to eat.

Try some of these suggestions and see how much better you feel when you use a healthful lunch.

SAGA OF SEA OPENS TODAY AT CAPITOL

Gary Cooper, George Raft and Frances Dee Cast in Powerful Film

A glance back at motion pictures for the last decade reveals the rather surprising fact that most of the big, epoch-setting films were stories of the sea. "Down to the Sea In Ships," "The Sea Wolf," "The Sea Beast," "Captain Blood," "Mutiny on the Bounty" and "Captain Courageous" are a few films which bear this out.

Now comes another, as big and as epochal as any—the powerful, dramatic and beautifully filmed motion picture, "Souls at Sea," which opens a week's run at the Capitol today.

Here is a motion picture, taken from an actual occurence in history, so skillfully directed and acted and so masterfully produced and photographed that its place among the great motion pictures of all time is assured. The cast is headed by Gary Cooper, George Raft and Frances Dee, which should be enough to lift it into the top ranks at once. But its dramatic, well-told story, rugged in its appeal and massive in its scope, transcends even what the skillful cast could do to make it a perfect entertainment.

FAMOUS TRIAL

"Souls at Sea" is based on a famous trial in the last century which concerned the guilt of one "Nuggin" Taylor, a sea captain, who assumed command of the bark "William Brown" when the vessel took fire at sea. Because of the paucity of lifeboats, Taylor held a trial while the ship was sinking, to determine who was to be permitted to escape into the lifeboats and who was to remain and go to the bottom with the ill-fated vessel. He included himself in the number assigned to the lifeboats not, he pleaded to the court later, because he wanted to save his own life, but because somebody had to go along to navigate the boats and he was the only seaman in the lot.

One of the chief witnesses against Taylor at his famous trial was Margaret Tarryton, played by Miss Dee. She was the sister of a deserter from the British navy, who was ordered to remain on the "William Brown" by Taylor, and despite the fact that she loved Taylor and he loved her, was forced to testify against him by the conviction that he had been unjust to her brother.

TOLD IN FLASHBACK

The story is told in flashback. It begins with the trial and then goes into the story of the ill-fated journey of the "William Brown," reaching its powerful climax back in the court room where a jury holds Cooper's fate in its hands.

Cooper turns in what is probably the best performance of his brilliant career. George Raft, as "Powdah," Taylor's hard-boiled sidekick, is masterly, as is Miss Dee. The cast also includes Henry Wilcoxon, Harry Carey, Olympe Bradna, Robert Cummings, Porter Hall and many others. It was directed by Henry Hathaway, and includes some excellent original music written exclusively for the film by Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin, and Bernard Kaun.

Vegetable Dishes To Be Given Away At Rialto Monday

Lady patrons of the Rialto theatre are reminded that one of the larger pieces, the vegetable dish, will be given out starting on Monday.

Approximately 3000 of these beautiful pieces will be given out as long as they last. Those who have been saving this set are urged to come as early in the week as possible so that they may secure this piece to complete their set.

When tethered and fed, on a new circus lot, circus camels pluck all the thistles within reach, before beginning on their hay.

LOVE UNDER FIRE TO PLAY AT STRAND

Stumbling into fame might be a mild way to describe the success of Borrah Minevitch, who, with his gang, is featured in the supporting cast of the Twentieth Century-Fox romantic comedy, "Love Under Fire," which opens Monday at the Strand theatre. Loretta Young and Don Ameche, who thrills millions as the hit star of radio's biggest Sunday night air-show, are co-starred in the adventurous romance laid against the exciting background of turbulent Spain.

Borrah Minevitch actually stumbled into the limelight, and not so mildly, either.

Celebrating his chance to play with Dr. Hugo Risenfeld's orchestra at the Rivoli theatre in New York some years ago, he went to a fashionable restaurant and ordered a large meal. He became so engrossed in the food he missed the first show. Disconsolate, he walked up Broadway and returned just in time to receive his cue for the second show. He made his stage entrance so hurriedly he stumbled into the orchestra pit, pushing his head through a kettle drum. The house was in an uproar, but Borrah recovered himself, and started to play. He stopped the show, playing encore after encore. He was a success.

Borrah Minevitch was born in Kiev, Russia. The family moved to America and settled in Boston. He sold papers at Scollay Square and at the Beacon building, where he became known as the "harmonica-playing newsboy." He sold papers to Mayor Curley, of Boston, and the late Calvin Coolidge, then lieutenant-governor.

Princess Will Play Story Of Late Mark Twain

According to Mark Twain, the late great novelist and humorist, his story, "The Prince and the Pauper," is one of those things that "might have happened."

It is the tale of two boy babies born in London at the same moment in the 16th century—one being Prince Edward, heir to the throne; the other being Tom Canty, brat of a ruffian and thief. And Twain had them resemble each other identically — meet — change clothes—get their childish lives all mixed up.

It was a great novel. It became a great stage play. Now it has reached its top height as a movie, which comes to the Princess theatre on Monday, because at last the perfect players to fit the title roles have been found in Billy and Bobby Mauch.

They're a pair of what science calls "identical twins." Billy and Bobby Mauch whom you may have heard on the radio within the past couple of years. They're so much alike that even their own mother can't tell them apart except for one little thing. One of hem (you shan't be told which) is left-handed.

EMPRESS WILL GIVE DOUBLE FEATURE BILL

The Empress theatre is presenting two double-feature bills next week. On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday the pictures will be "Private Lives," starring Norma Sharer and Robert Montgomery, and "Trader Horn," the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture which startled the world and which is being brought back because many want to see it again.

On Thursday, Friday and Saturday the Empress pictures will be "Blazing Sixes," with Dick Foran, the "Singing Cowboy," and "Venus Makes Trouble," with James Dunn and Patricia Ellis in the starring roles.

In "Private Lives" is grand entertainment, both Miss Sherar and Mr. Montgomery being exceedingly popular in this city. It is a gay comedy and is from a Noel Coward play.

"Trader Horn" is a picture of Africa and its filming was an amazing feat. Eighty tons of equipment had to be moved over particularly difficult ground before the filming could be started.

Superstition holds it to be a harbinger of good luck for a bride to be carried across the threshold by the bridegroom, as they enter their home for the first time.

Vancouver Island Vignettes: "Cougar Smith" Explains

After hearing all sorts of thrilling stories about Cecil Smith, employed by the Government of British Columbia to keep down vital statistics among the cougars of Vancouver Island, I deliberately went upon his trail. It was like tracking a man-eating Bengal tiger; the nearer I got to him, the more formidable he became until at last I visualized him as something between Tarzan the tree-top tourist and Frank Buck who cleans out jungles with his naked hands.

R. H. DAVIS

Well, nothing could be further from the truth, as I discovered when at last I found him seated on the veranda of his snug little cottage in the midst of his family, surrounded by an old-fashioned garden under the shade of whispering pines. For a certainty he does not look the part of a varmint slayer, yet the number of cougars, deadliest enemies to the domestic livestock and deer of Vancouver Island, that have fallen to his gun during the last thirty years, is well nigh beyond calculation. A milder-mannered, gentler soul than "Cougar Smith" never strolled through a forest; or ran a marauding cougar to his doom.

If I were called upon, which of course I won't be, to find fault with this particular Smith, I might complain of his obvious contempt for heroics. He doesn't believe his occupation is dramatic or thrilling.

"Whenever the critters go too far slaying sheep, calves, barnyard fowl and the like," said he, "it is my business to do whatever cougar killing seems necessary. I am subject to call at any hour of the day or night, same as a doctor. A summons for me and the dogs means action. Oh, yes, it keeps us moving, but like the Royal Mounted who always get their man, we are expected to get our cougar. And do, knowing their habits. Really, my friend, in spite of the cougar's marvelous intelligence, he hasn't a chance."

What did "Cougar Smith" mean by intelligence? Would he mind giving me some particulars?

"Glad to," he said, somewhat relieved that I had shifted from him to his victims. "All the family from wild lions to alley cats have the best brains in the animal kingdom. The lynx, the leopard, the panther, the cougar, all possess reasoning power, particularly when called upon to protect their own. At least, so far as the female is concerned, that has been my observation. A cougar with a litter is harder to run down than one without. Her performances are uncanny, and she will deliberately sacrifice herself if in so doing she can save her young.

"When the cougar litters she becomes the head of the family, the male deferring to her superior wisdom. And so it remains until they get their growth and the family disbands, each for himself alone. A litter of three is the average. For the first few months they are kept under the eye of the mother, who holds herself responsible as the food purveyor, the male being occupied with feeding himself. If he makes a kill which will help to supply the family, all good and well, but the female, having little or no confidence in his ability as a go-getter, attends to that detail herself."

"Do you mean to say that the male cougar is not looked upon as a good provider?"

"Yes and no. And voluntary contribution is appreciated but if he were to be removed altogether, the female would carry on without him and make no complaint. There is another peculiarity about the cougar mother; she is a gypsy. While the cubs are growing, she wanders from place to place, making an abode wherever the fancy takes possession of her. Nothing could be more systematic than the program under which the young are brought up. When the female decides that it is time to move, she goes on the trail, four, five or six miles from home, makes a kill and covers the carcass with a mound of leaves, rubble and turf. Without pausing even for refreshments she returns to her family, breaks up housekeeping and under cover of night, escorts the cubs and the male to the new home site, already stocked with provender. Her first care is to pick a section where there is plenty of game. For a year or more, covering the four seasons, the cougars, changing their residence six to eight times, train their young in the art of living in the wild and bring them to sturdy independence, the mother in charge. Not until the young are full grown, the males larger than herself, does she consider her responsibilities ended."

"What is the preferential diet of a cougar?"

"Spring lamb, and plenty of it. Mature mutton isn't good enough; too strong. A cougar will kill a sheep only for the blood. I know of an instance where a single cougar in one night killed eighteen ewes and sucked the blood from their clawed necks. Lamb is different. A terrier in a ratpit is less destructive than a cougar in a drove of sheep. Weight? I've known them to tip the beam at 200 pounds; the average is about 160 for a full grown. They will tackle a deer on the run and break his neck. I never saw one in the act, but I have come upon many a venison brought down by cougars, and in every instance the vertebra was broken just below the horns back of the ears. Frankly, I would like to know just how they accomplish this terrible result. There is much yet to be learned about cougars, and some things perhaps that will never be known."

"Smart as a cat," I said, quoting the old line.

"And so, even among the domestic bred," replied the cougar man. "Mr. Peacey, who runs a drug store over in Cumberland, sent a pet cat to Victoria in a closed wooden box, a distance of 150 miles. Three weeks later, apparently none the worse for travel, smiling like the legendary cat that had swallowed the canary, pussy walked into the drug-store. What do you think about that?" asked Cougar Smith of a hound dog lounging on the veranda steps.

Yeggmen Blast Pair Of Safes

CLYDE, Sept. 18. — Yeggmen blasted the strongboxes in Robinson's general store and Vernon Burrows' hardware Thursday night. Estimates as to how much loot was taken were not available early Friday. Police are seeking clues.

LATE GRAIN RIPENING

BUSBY, Sept. 18.—All late grain in this district is ripening quickly. Oats and barley are showing a good yield. There is still some wheat to cut on low-lying land, and the late wheat is much freer from weeds than the early crops. The best yield of potatoes in years is being harvested, and the roads are good for trucking out the farm products. P. Hislop has opened up a meat market on the main street of Busby.

YIELD 30 BUSHELS

NEWBROOK, Sept. 18.—Threshing in the Newbrook district is well on the way to completion, four threshing outfits being at work in this area. A yield of about 30 bushels to the acre is expected. The crops in this district escaped any frost damage.

Terrence O'Connell Proposes - - - By Irene Hunt

A Bulletin Short Story Complete On This Page Every Saturday

WE met Lizzie and Kathleen on the stairs the day we moved into Mrs. Fish's respectable but very dull "lighthousekeeping" rooms on Central avenue in Chicago.

We were just married—Mr. and Mrs. William Herrick in the sight of God and according to the laws of the State of Illinois—on the strength of Bill's twenty-five-dollar-a-week job on one of the Chicago dailies, and my hundred dollar prize for a short short in one of the "Amateur Writers Contests" of the season, and any rooms where we might be together looked pretty good to us.

We were lugging our books and the wedding presents, half of mother's sheets and table linen and half of Bill's mother's canned fruit up to the second floor when we met the middle-aged women who were to be our neighbors.

Kathleen, the younger and many time lovelier sister, was in front, and she smiled at us in passing—a shy, sweet smile like that of a lovable child. Lizzie, the red haired one, however, stared past us, and continued her way down stairs with a firm step and tightly folded lips. Bill and I may have appeared as romantic young lovers to Kathleen, but to Lizzie we were just a couple of bums who would probably have the common bathroom in a mess and raise cain during the hours when honest folk were abed.

Mrs. Fish, waiting for us at the head of the stairs, told us who they were—very estimable Irish women only a few years over, she said; lovely people who were never a day behind with their rent and extremely thrifty in their use of gas and electricity—this last bit of information was accompanied by a rather alarmingly fixed stare.

Mrs. Fish's approval didn't awaken any particular enthusiasm for the sisters in either Bill or me. We seldom saw them in the days that followed as they left early in the morning for their work—Lizzie to the altering room of a loop dress shop, and Kathleen to the cosmetic counter of one of the big department stores.

At first I didn't give them a thought, but later I longed for some one to stop in and admire the bright, new draperies with which I had replaced Mrs. Fish's limp atrocities, and to exclaim over the kidney-shaped dressing table that Bill had installed for me and which I had adorned with a billowing curtain of sprigged chintz.

Bill was working hard—often late into the night, and I'd sit listening to the hum of Lizzie's voice next door, wishing I could invite them over to see our new hanging book-shelves and the demitasse cups we'd found downtown and had bought against the stern outcries which even our somewhat stunted judgments made.

Finally I did make an effort. For an hour or longer I labored over a plate of grainy fudge in my kitchenette; then putting on my brightest house dress and patting the waves more deeply in my hair, I took the plate of candy and walked over to the next door, humming casually. Lizzie answered the door. Her "Good evenin'" was a cold interrogation.

I couldn't stay casual. Stammering something intended to convey the neighborly spirit, I offered my fudge. It suddenly seemed an awfully asinine thing to do and Lizzie's eyes appeared to confirm that opinion though I think she may have suspected arsenic as well as presumption.

"Shure, it's thankin' you very kindly, I am," she said distantly, "but my sister bein' that delicate, and myself bein' never a one for sweets——"

She didn't finish for there was a rustle from the corner of the room, and Kathleen's voice interrupted. "Lizzie!" was all she said, but there was a low warning and reproof in that voice that closed Miss Lizzie up very effectually. Kathleen came to the door then, her large, blue eyes shining from their surrounding shadows, a smile on her faded pink lips.

"My sister is that shy about takin' a gift," she told me gently, "but me, I'm the greedy one that's always findin' candy welcome. And we've been wistful to know you these weeks; you must come in, and Lizzie will be makin' a cup of tea."

Lizzie's Family Grows

BILL said, "Susan, you're a thick-skinned child," when I admitted to him that I had gone in after Lizzie's reception. But I was interested, and anyway it took just that gracious little speech from Kathleen to convert her sister from a stiff-necked, cold-eyed stranger to the loyal friend she came to be.

For Kathleen, in Lizzie's eyes, could do no wrong, could make no mistake; she would have stood in defense of this delicate, younger sister before Satan or all of the archangels, en masse, and if Kathleen chose to invite a presumptious stranger in for a cup of tea, Lizzie felt free to relax and enjoy herself.

I smiled inwardly at the change as I sat with them that first evening. Kathleen, after her welcome at the door, sat quietly in her corner smiling at me occasionally, making soft little noises of approval, surprise or mild indignation according to the nature of our chatter, but hardly opening her lips for another word.

Lizzie, on the other hand, was inquisitive and voluble. How were we getting along entirely in our new home? And had I found a good market to buy my groceries and meat? And what, might she ask, was I payin' for rump roast, the pound? Mother of Heaven, did Kathleen, did Kathleen hear that? And were we millionaires then? Shure, and I should be comin' with her the next Saturday to Stacey's where I could get meat reasonable-like, and not be squandering my young husband's salary altogether, him bein' the likely-lookin', upstandin' lad he was.

Lizzie's family was enlarged after that evening. She had worshipped and pampered Kathleen all her life; now she was suddenly moved to take care of Bill and me. There were times when I felt that my status as a married woman entitled me to more respect than Lizzie saw fit to offer, but, like it or not, I was chaff before the wind of her maternal instincts, and there seemed nothing much to do about it.

She grew especially fond of Bill, and he of her after his first resentment for her early treatment of me had died down. "Himself" she called him, and he was ridiculously gratified by the title. His diet was a source of worry to her, and I received some very sharp lectures on my duties in the culinary line.

"Sendin' him off to work with a piece of toast and coffee of his own makin'," she scolded. "Shure, and I was thinkin' you'd turn out to be a better wife than that. Now you be makin' him a bowl of hot porridge that will stick to the ribs of him. And mind you cover it with no leavin's in the milk bottle; a spreadin' of cream will not break you up, and an egg or two in a side dish will not come amiss these wintry mornin's."

It seemed to me for awhile that Bill was her fair-haired darling and I the stepchild, but Lizzie wasn't long in showing herself above favoritism. Bill and I had had a quarrel one evening, and though the fault was about fifty-fifty, Lizzie didn't know that, and finding me very weepy about quarter past midnight, and frightened because Bill had not come home when it was his night off, she waited up for him. He told me about it later when we had made up.

There was Lizze, he said, in a faded blue dressing-gown, her red hair twisted tightly in a knob on top of her head, her hands resting militantly on her hips, waiting for him at the head of the stairs.

"And what have you to say for yourself?" she wanted to know in a hoarse whisper. "You, a great, hulkin' lad to flout off in a temper, leavin' her to fret and worry the night through. And her not as big as a cake of soap after the week's wash, and a look in her eyes that wouldn't make me o'er surprised to hear she was expectin'."

Neither Bill nor I had thought of that last suspicion of hers, but she was right. It took Lizzie to break the news. We were expectin'.

Kathleen's Grief

BUT in her solicitude for us, Lizzie never for one moment neglected her Kathleen. She did the cooking and marketing, the sweeping dusting and scrubbing — all in her high-minded way above Kathleen's gentle protests. I think she would have dressed her sister and fed her with a spoon had she been allowed. Kathleen was always "Macushla" to her sister, and Lizzie's eyes would fill with ready tears and her sharp voice grow soft at the mention of Kathleen's name.

"Oh, but it tears the heart of me out to see her that young and lovely" (Kathleen must have been nearly 40, but Lizzie was at least right in calling her lovely), "to see her like a sweet daisy of the field, and to be knowin' that she's after grievin' her life away." Lizzie's voice would rise in the mournful keen of her ancestral fisher-folk as she talked.

"Kathleen grieving, Lizzie," I exclaimed. "I've noticed that she's quiet and thoughtful, of course, but I didn't know she was unhappy." Something contracted in my throat as I spoke. Kathleen was like that; you loved her before you were conscious of it, and the thought of her being hurt was like knowing the baby down the street had scarlet fever, or like hearing a puppy whine out in the cold.

Lizzie laid her sewing in her lap and looked at me reproachfully.

"And how would you be feelin' if Himself was back in the Old Country workin' year and year out, sayin' never a word, but eatin' his heart out for you all the same?" she asked.

"I'd feel terrible, naturally," I told her. "And I'd go to him just as soon as I could pay my passage back to Ireland."

Lizzie sniffed. "You wouldn't be after goin' back to a man whose tongue is that shy it can't be formin' the words to ask you," she said.

"Is there any Irishman with a tongue like that, Lizzie?"

"Terrence O'Connell's is that though you'd swear the truth wasn't in me if you was to lay your eyes on him—big and handsome as he still is though he's nearin' fifty if I must admit it. His place was adjoinin' to father's back on the old sod, and the three of us children grew along together—Terrence and me with some ten years the start of Kathleen. Many's the day we've raked a last load of hay together against the comin' of a storm, and I've stood beside him at lambin' time on a wild March night and we've worked together, and gone at last to the house where Kathleen would have a pot of tea ready to warm the marrow of our bones." She sighed heavily and continued.

"It was as natural as the changin' seasons that they'd love one another—Kathleen sweet and lovely enough, if it is her own sister that's sayin' it, to be wife of the finest, and Terrence O'Connell—" She stopped and shook her head. It seemed that Terrence O'Connell baffled all description.

But I felt exasperated with her precious Terrence. He seemed to me a pretty poor stitch of a man if he couldn't summan courage to tell gentle little Kathleen that he loved her.

"Could there have been any reason other than shyness, Lizzie?" I asked after thinking it over.

"Not one that I can put my finger on though I've lain many a night wonderin'," she answered. "There he was with a fine, well-stocked farm and a bit of dot from his old father—it wasn't a decent livin' that was troublin' him, and as for another girl—faith, he walked to mass with the two of us every Sunday of his life 'til we left—me, like as not, goin' on ahead and leavin' him to help Kathleen along the bog. 'Shure, Lizzie, she's the loveliest under the sun,' he's said to me time and again with a look in his eyes as gentle as a dog's, and I could have taken him to my heart for lovin' her as he did."

Stammering, I offered my fudge. Lizzie's eyes confirmed that she suspected arsenic as well as presumption.

Lizzie blew her nose mournfully and I felt awfully depressed. "Maybe if you'd stayed in Ireland a while longer," I suggested at last.

Ireland

SHE took up her neglected sewing and shook her head. "Times was hard," she said, "and when father was dyin' he told us to sell out and come to our older sister and her husband in America. And in the weeks before we left, Terrence O'Connell wore the glumness of the world in his face. Once he come to me, and says he, 'Don't you do it, Lizzie—don't you go to America. You'll never be happy off the old sod,' and I knowin' what he meant, all but shouted to him, 'Tell her that, tell her, and though it will tear my heart, I'll be leavin' her with you in a minute,' but in all modesty you can't be throwin' your sister at any man's head, so I bit the words, and thought I managed that they be alone together as much as possible, we left with never a word of understandin' between them so far as I have known."

I told Bill about it, and he thought Terrence O'Connell was a chump. I suspected it myself, and I made every effort to be kind to Kathleen to partly atone for her lover's apathy. She was frequently ill with violent headaches that left her weak and pale from the pain. On those days she'd be home alone and I would leave my work to go in and make tea for her or to stand at the bed rubbing her blue-veined temples.

She seldom said much; Lizzie had often told me that Kathleen was the "tight-mouthed one," and I think she was a little hurt at her sister's lack of confidence. Occasionally, however, when she was recovering from one of her headaches, Kathleen would sit with her white, slim hands folded in her lap and tell me stories of Ireland.

"It's a contented woman I'd be, Susan, if I could lay my head on a patch of shamrock again, or watch the sunlight sparkle on the river that runs by the old home-place." Her eyes would hold a look of patient sorrow as she spoke that made my heart ache for her.

When my baby was born, Kathleen seemed happier for a time. She would sit beside the crib for hours at a time, talking softly to my big-eyed Susan while I pounded my typewriter in the kitchenette. Sometimes she would sing plaintive Irish airs, and whether it spoiled my child to be sung to sleep or not, I wouldn't have had her stop. There was one I loved more than any other:

"Praise be to God, and there it is—
Down on the hills of Ireland,
God's angel lifting the veil of Night
From the fair, sweet face of my sireland.

Oh, Ireland, and isn't it grand you look,
Like a bride in her rich adornin',
And with all the pent-up love of me heart,
I bid you, "Top o' the mornin'."

"Like a bride in her rich adornin'," there was something in Kathleen's eyes, I thought, which told more than she would have had me know as she sang that, and I felt like a spying gossip as I watched her. I was angry at myself for knowing her secret; I was even a little angry with Lizzie for her garrulous tongue.

But one couldn't be long angry with Lizzie. Her officiousness was so incited by genuine affection and sincerity; her sharpness so offset by lovable wit and kindliness—we raised our eyebrows sometimes and pressed our lips pretty tightly together at others, but we liked her immensely. For it was Lizzie who came privately to Bill offering the loan of her small savings to pay for the help we had had to have in getting our young Susan safely landed; it was Lizzie who all but burned joss-sticks to the Grim Reaper when my great-aunt Agatha died, leaving me five hundred precious dollars, and it was this same Lizzie who then went piously to church where she performed Bill's and my duty by burning a grateful candle to the old lady's memory. And we certainly could feel nothing but tenderness for her when the blow of Kathleen's leaving fell upon her faithful head.

That was a blow, indeed, and the sight of Lizzie's plain face drawn with bewildered trouble touched me deeply. Bill said that I divided my time into emotional turmoils for first one sister and then the other, but I noticed that he was mighty tender toward Lizzie in those days. It happened like this:

Terrence's Intentions

THERE was a joint letter for the two of them one night. From Terrence O'Connell, and what was he doing but coming to America for a visit, and where in America should he be heading for but Mrs. Fish's "light-housekeeping" rooms in Chicago.

He said that it was important for him to see them; that too many years had already gone by before his decision was made. It certainly looked as if Terrence O'Connell had something on his mind, all right. Bill thought maybe he'd just finished a ten-lesson course on "How to Propose Gracefully—Results Guaranteed or Money Refunded."

Lizzie and Kathleen were delighted—Lizzie doing all the talking, of course, and Kathleen sitting quietly with smiling and sometimes tear-wet eyes.

"To think we'll be seein' him—straight from the old home, Susan," she said to me, and I put my arm about her shoulders as she spoke. It seemed so plain that she wanted her love of home to mask her love for Terrence. And no wonder, I thought. It isn't a pleasant thing to have one's friends know that the man one loves is tongue-tied on the subject. That night when I prayed that Bill would always love me as much as he did then and that little Susan wouldn't take the whooping cough she'd been exposed to, I added a petition for Kathleen. "And please, God," I asked Him, "make Terrence O'Connell propose this time."

Lizzie scrubbed and scoured their already immaculate rooms and gave them an extra polish for luck. She even commenced baking favorite dishes of Terrence's, early as it was—"to get her hand in, again" she told us—and when there was nothing else to do she sewed as if her life depended on new cuffs for Kathleen's dress or on a dainty bonnet for my Susan.

"Terrence will think she's the broth of a colleen," she assured me encouragingly as she crooned over the baby. "And she is that too, or the truth never fell from my lips, and a comfort she's goin' to be to me when the sea is between all of us and Kathleen."

Her face sobered a little at the words, but brightened after a minute. "Well, then, 'twill be blessing enough to know she's happy with Terrence, and in a home of her own back in the old country. And certain 'twill be a good reason for me to work and save for the day I'll be goin' back to see them." There wasn't a doubt in her mind about Terrence's intentions on this visit.

A Surprise From Kathleen

SHE was talking along in such a vein as this on the evening that Kathleen came home with her news. I had never seen Kathleen animated before, and the glowing radiance of her little, heart-shaped face with its great blue eyes sent a thrill of pleasure through me as I looked up at her.

"Lizzie—Susan," she gasped, "I'm going back to Ireland. In ten days, Lizzie, back to old Ireland." She threw her arms about her sister, and laughed like a delighted child.

I figured it out in a flash—Terrence O'Connell had come to America sooner than he had said he would; he'd arrived in Chicago, had gone straight to Kathleen, he had made himself master of that faltering tongue of his, and all their plans were made. I was so sure I was right that I felt a little superior to Lizzie who was still looking at her sister in amazement.

"You're goin' back in ten days, Kathleen? And with Terrence ready to leave Ireland, like as not, on his way to us. But you couldn't be doin' a thing like that, Macushla."

Kathleen's voice was like a song. "But Lizzie, darlin', I am going," she said. "To see Terrence would have been a joy, but this—to be back home, Lizzie,—to smell the peat smoke on the hearth again—to walk along the edge of the bog at twilight, and hold my breath against the sight of a leprechaun—this will be nearer Heaven than I've thought to come these last weary years."

She seated herself on a hassock at Lizzie's feet, and fondled her sister's hand as she spoke.

"It's through a cousin of one of the girls at the store. Irish he is, and rich, and wanting to give his young daughter a year in Ireland where she can learn to love her father's birthplace as he does. He hears of my longing to go back through my friend at the store, and finding, as he says, that I am a woman of intelligence and breeding, asks me to be his daughter's chaperon."

I just sat there looking at her, and thinking that if Bill Herrick were on his way to see me after a separation of years, nothing but grim death could pry me away until he was safely here. And then I realized that the difference in our feelings was that I loved just Bill—anywhere—in Madagascar or on Mrs. Fish's musty second floor, while Kathleen loved only her homeland. It was hard for a person like me to comprehend such a situation; it just didn't seem to make sense.

In the days that followed, Lizzie's cheerful voice was hardly ever heard. She walked about quiet, bowed with her unhappy thoughts. She would come into my kitchenette occasionally and sit thoughtfully watching me prepare the baby's formula without offering one criticism of my procedure; it was as if the old domineering Lizzie had died.

"If you could know how he's always loved her," she'd say over and over again. "Always so tender-like and thoughtful of her with his whole heart shinin' in his eyes—and 'twas plain as the nose on your face from his letter that he is comin' with a question of love on his lips." She sighed heart-brokenly. "I've done many a hard task in my time, Susan; life has never been o'er easy for me, but the tellin' of this to Terrence is the hardest I've ever faced."

However there wasn't much time for talking about it. We sewed and shopped and packed for Kathleen at high speed. I had a picture of the baby rushed so that Kathleen might have it for a farewell gift; Bill brought her flowers the morning she left, and Lizzie, though her face was white, behaved like the sporting soul she was.

"Mind you enjoy every minute of your life in the old home, Kathleen, darlin', and if you should meet up with Mollie Maguire, a little braggin' about how well we've done in America won't damage the sweet soul of you none—her with her fine sayin's of how we'd be starvin' in the States."

Then she was gone—lovely, frail Kathleen whose eyes had lost their haunted look of sorrow and whose homesick heart had no room for Terrence O'Connell.

We tried our best to comfort Lizzie afterward, but nothing helped much. She never cried or wailed, but the spirit in her seemed snuffed out. There were no scoldings, no lively tales, no pettings from Lizzie after Kathleen left. She even neglected little Susan for the first time since she had laid eyes on her. I fixed gay, tempting suppers so that when she came home tired from her work, she might find food and companionship waiting; Bill squandered six dollars on theatre tickets for the three of us, but we might as well have not taken her. She was as quietly grateful as Kathleen would have been, but I saw her sitting in a deep study during the play quite oblivious to the actors. Kathleen was gone, and Terrence O'Connell was coming to America only to be hurt—that was the requiem in Lizzie's soul those days.

Arrival

TERRENCE arrived one afternoon about ten days after Kathleen's departure—suddenly and without announcement. Lizzie was at work and Mrs. Fish out at the market, so I ran downstairs to answer the insistent door-bell. I knew him at once; a big, broad-shouldered man with crow's feet around his kind, blue eyes and a considerable sprinkling of gray in the hair around his temples.

He was dressed in a stiff blue serge with a rough topcoat and his very new suitcase and shoes were of the same gleaming yellow. He seemed about as old as Dad, and for a second it struck me as being a little funny that a man of that age should be coming across the Atlantic in a wooing mood.

Then I remembered that this kindly, smiling Terrence was in a short time to hear how his Kathleen had walked out on him, and there seemed nothing funny about that. I think my voice held the maternal vibration strongly as I greeted him with the thought of Kathleen in my mind.

"You would maybe be Mr. Terrence O'Connell himself?" I asked him in Lizzie's manner.

His face glowed. "Faith, you must have a strain of Irish in you yourself, entirely, to be spottin' an Irishman so quick and sure-like," he said.

"It's because I've heard so much about you," I explained. "You may not believe it, but I know your favorite songs, and how you part your hair and the way you like your potatoes best." I held the door open for him, and he stepped inside chuckling.

"All that blather would come from the pratin' tongue of Lizzie Leary, I haven't a doubt," he said.

He knew who I was from Lizzie's letters, and seemed pleased with my invitation that he come into our living room and wait until Lizzie came home. "She'll be here within a half hour," I said, suddenly nervous at realizing that I wasn't mentioning Kathleen. Then he asked the sort of thing I was dreading.

"Will she—will Lizzie be gettin' home before Kathleen?" he asked. There was an apparent wistfulness in that simple question; the wistfulness, I thought, of a lover, who longs for a moment with his sweetheart before a third party arrives.

I didn't know what to say. Here I had pitied Lizzie for days to think of her hard task in explaining things to Terrence and now I had blithely let myself in for her job. I stammered and got red.

"Yes, Lizzie will be here first tonight," I said stupidly. "You see, Kathleen—that is, you see, Lizzie is the only one that will be here."

He was looking at me soberly. "From your way of sayin' it, I know something is wrong," he said quietly. "Is it that Kathleen is sick—or something worse?"

Oh, but I liked that fine, steady look of his. There was no use hedging before it; I knew that he'd have to have the truth, and that he'd take it like a man so I told him.

"It's like this, Mr. O'Connell: Kathleen had been homesick for Ireland ever since she came here, and only a few days ago she got a chance to go back, and is now on her way. She was terribly sorry to miss you, but she felt—we thought—it really was such a splendid opportunity——" I commenced to falter and then breathed more freely again. For Terrence O'Connell's face showed great relief and little or no disappointment.

"Bless you, girl," he laughed. "And why were you after lookin' so tragic at the tellin' of it? You had me fair scared out of a year of me life." He leaned back in his chair and sighed comfortably. "I'm that glad to know she's on her way back to the old sod, much as I'd have liked seein' the sweet face of her."

Terrence Comes Through

AFTER my first breath of relief, I began to feel rather cool toward Terrence in spite of the fact that I liked him. So he hadn't come a-wooing, after all, and all the sympathy that Lizzie and I had stored up for him was just so much wasted emotion.

I wondered how in Heaven's name Lizzie had ever got the idea that this drink of ice water before me was romantically inclined. I didn't say anything more; just sat, getting madder and madder as I thought things over.

He was silent, too, for a while, evidently busy with his thoughts. Then he suddenly leaned toward me with an almost sheepish expression on his face.

"Do you know that things are after workin' themselves out for the best all 'round?" he asked.

"I don't think I quite understand you," I said, still a bit distantly.

"Has Lizzie ever in all her talkin's, mentioned anything to you in regard to a feelin' between Kathleen and meself?" he asked.

I nodded and he went on. "It's been like that the whole of our lives," he said. "Kathleen has been the darlin' of her heart, and everything on earth was for Kathleen. She would fair push that sweet, dreamin' child, that was never thinkin' of a husband in front of me, and off she would scuttle herself. And any one could see her plans shinin' out of her eyes—all but Kathleen. She never paid much attention to Lizzie's talkin's at any time."

"Then it's all been in Lizzie's mind? You don't care for Kathleen at all?"

He looked at me reproachfully. "I'd give my life's blood for her sake," he said stoutly, "but she's not the one for a wife to a rough man of the soil like me. She's far removed and above either Lizzie or me in her ways of thinkin', and more akin, I've always thought, to the angels of Heaven. I've need of a companion who will stand at my side and battle agin the storm or crack a joke in the teeth of despair. I've need of Lizzie, missus, but I've never the chance with her because of her way of pushing Kathleen between us. Lizzie, you must know, would be after takin' over the reins of Fate herself, and crackin' the whip."

I just stared at him open-mouthed. "And it was Lizzie all the time," I said at last, more to myself than to him.

"It was, with all me heart, and has been like that since we were children," he said simply, and I could have hugged him.

We heard her coming up the stairs a short time after that, slowly and heavily without the little humming tune that used to announce her homecoming. He walked to the open door and waited till she turned the bend in the stairway.

"Terrence O'Connell!" I heard her gasp.

"Lizzie, me darlin' girl," said Terrence O'Connell.

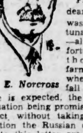
I pushed him gently out into the hall and closed my door discreetly. Then I hurried to the telephone to call Bill.

Our Old Country Letter

By J. E. Norcross

LONDON, England, Sept. 11.—(By Mail).—That food prices are rising fairly rapidly has for some time been disagreeably apparent to every householder in the country. For some reason the advance appears to be more apparent in the north than in the south.

Nevertheless, the Daily Herald probably exaggerates a little when it declares that in the north of England the cost of living has reached the highest levels for more than fifteen years.



J. E. Norcross

Flour is much dearer than it was in 1934. Fortunately, however—although not so fortunately for those Albertan farmers who have wheat to sell this fall — no farther rise is expected, the world wheat situation being promising in this respect, without taking into consideration the Russian crop. Figures as to this latter are not available but Russian wheat is already finding its way to England and a considerable surplus for export is said to be in prospect.

Russian wheat, however, will not wreck the wheat market as it did some years ago. At that time Russia needed foreign credits badly and undersold other exporting countries in order to obtain them. Today Russia demands the full world price for her output.

Meat prices have advanced considerably, and very lately so rapidly that one large meat traders' association has felt it necessary to tell the customers of its members that prices have risen because supplies from abroad are being artificially restricted by quotas on which, it is stated, the British consumer must pay 1½c a pound in order to provide the British farmer with an annual subsidy of $25,000,000.

The subsidy is part of the government's agricultural policy which is designed to increase home production of foodstuffs in view of the possibility of another great war. Unfortunately, it is having the practical effect at the moment of raising the prices of foreign meat, the meat of the poorer classes. According to official figures the prices of 32 out of 34 classified meat products have been increased in the last year by percentages varying from 16 to 70.

Bacon has disappeared from many breakfast tables. Eggs are dearer because feed has become more expensive and butter costs more without, however, by raising the value of the surplus, bringing cheaper milk any nearer.

THE price of milk is to be raised to every British householder from Oct. 1. The Milk Marketing Board sets the figure. The Milk Marketing Board is wholly and solely representative of the producers. It declares that the proposed increase will not cover the producer's cost of materials and labor and that for making good the balance he must trust to rising consumption.

Until comparatively recently the British Diplomatic Service was strictly the preserve of people of high birth and wealth. To get into it with a view of making it a career, as in the case of any other branch of the civil service, a young man had first to be successful in a very stiff competitive examination. After that he had to show that he had the necessary social qualifications and, in addition, a private income of $2500 a year.

This latter was abrogated some years ago but the candidate had, and has, still, to show that he knows the conventions of Belgrave's drawing rooms and St. James street clubs.

It is rather remarkable, therefore, that Mr. R. G. Howe, who is now on his way to China to take charge of the British embassy during the incapacity of the ambassador, Sir Hughe Knatchbull-Hughesson, is the son of an engine driver who began his education in a board school—one of the elementary schools attended by the children of working class and lower middleclass people, the only man, so far at least, to attain the diplomatic service from such humble beginnings.

At 14 years of age Mr. Howe won a scholarship which carried him from the elementary school to Derby school—the equivalent of a Canadian high school. From there another scholarship took him to Cambridge university.

He has served at Copenhagen, Belgrade, in Brazil and at Bucharest. For the last three years he has been counsellor at the embassy in China and only recently returned to England on transfer to another post. But he goes back to China as fast as air-craft can carry him to represent Great Britain as temporary chief of the embassy he had so lately left.

Mr. Howe's career demonstrates that character and ability will carry a man far in this country despite the "old-school" tie, but Mr. Howe would be the first to acknowledge what he owes to his parents, who had to make many sacrifices to secure an advanced education for their four children.

Mrs. Howe, now a widow, still lives in a little red brick cottage. The reporter of a Derby newspaper who called to acquaint her with her sons's promotion found her washing up the tea-things after her evening meal.

MR. W. S. LIDDALL, M.P., proposes to attempt to emulate the feat of A. P. Herbert and get a controversial measure through parliament as a private member's bill. Mr. Herbert, it will be remembered, got a new divorce act on to the statute book last session.

Mr. Liddall's bill will deal with a cognate subject, the awarding of damages in breach of promise cases.

He asserts that the present law allowing damages to women merely because they have had engagements broken is wrong.

Actual losses are another thing. A woman, he thinks, is entitled to recompense for costs she has incurred in clothes and furniture or in other material ways, but not to "heart balm."

"If the people find they are not cut out for each other they should part," he says. "I feel the present law may have led to unhappy marriages because young men concerned have feared a court action for breach of promise."

RESERVISTS have been offering themselves at the rate of 250 a day to take advantage of the opportunity to return to the colors now afforded them under the new regulations issued by the secretary for war, Mr. Hore-Belisha. More than 3000 have come forward already, most of them leaving other employment and thus proving, what had previously been asserted, that many men like army life well enough to make it a career.

At the same time the intake of recruits has more than doubled, more men being sent from the depot to their respective regiments than at any previous time this year.

That the success of Mr. Hore-Belisha's plan will be so great as to meet the need of the army for men is not expected, however, and his further proposals to that end are awaited with interest.

He has, indeed, now taken another step forward. Hitherto the upper age limit for men enlisting in combatant units has been 25. This is now raised to 28 for new recruits and 30 for men re-enlisting. The age for non-combatant units remains 30 years.

THERE are only 50 rooms in the House of Commons available for members of the government and leaders of the two opposition parties. Mr. Lloyd George comes under another category but he has a room and apparently intends to keep it. Ramsay MacDonald has lost his, and Lord Baldwin, the only other surviving ex-premier, has gone to the House of Lords where he has no private room of his own.

The room occupied by Mr. Lloyd George is badly needed by the government but possession is nine points of the law, and the former prime minister has had a private room in the house continuously for more than a quarter of a century.

Sir Philip Sassoon, the first commissioner of works, who has the last word in these matters, is hardly likely to disturb his old chief, to whom he acted as parliamentary private secretary in the years after the war.

GIRLS from Germany, Austria and the Scandinavian countries are coming into England at the rate of 500 a month to work as domestic servants.

At least 24,000 domestic servants are sought by housewives each year. The labor ministry has spent big sums on posters, attractive literature and pamphlets setting forth the advantages of domestic service but the labor exchanges can meet only 50 per cent. of the demand.

Yet in the distressed areas of Wales, in the north of England and in Scotland there are thousands of unemployed girls. They say they do not like domestic service and have no desire to work far away from their own homes.

So Ernest Brown, the minister of labor, is making a trip to Wales and the north to look into the matter and see what can be done to get idle girls into empty kitchens.

En route he will probably peruse the report, just issued, of the Domestic Service Inquiry Committee of the Women's Liberal Federation. The committee gives as first reason for the unpopularity of domestic service the fact that domestic service "is looked down on." There are other reasons also, but the great bar is the social stigma and if Mr. Brown can do anything to remove it he will have deserved well of his countrywomen.

Cecil Young's Plays Gain Recognition At Pacific Coast

Few youths have had their plays accepted at twenty years of age, but Cecil Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Young, has just recently attained that distinction. Two one-act plays which he finished last month will be produced in Vancouver, under the directorship of Miss Elsepeth Lehman, a Vancouver high school teacher who is in charge of several Little Theatre groups.

"The Last Race," a story of horse-racing, which has a running time of about thirty minutes, is the product of many exhausting hours of writing and re-writing. It was presented informally at the Banff School of Fine Arts last month under the guiding hand of Elizabeth Sterling Haynes.

TRIBUTE PAID

Professor F. H. Koch, of the Chapel Hill university, North Carolina, who is nationally known for his work in the theatre, paid Cecil one of the highest compliments that even an accomplished writer can receive, when he said: "It gives me what I most want to find in any play: a picture of the life it depicts."

The second play is of a rather tragic nature and is tentatively named: "Six Authors in Search of a Character." It's value lies in the delightful dialogue rather than in the plot itself.

FIRST FAILED

Cecil wrote his first play when he was sixteen. Like so many first attempts it met its end in the waste-paper basket. His three following attempts met the same fate but finally he scored in the two plays which he finished writing while he attended the Banff school.

Last spring Cecil took his first major part on the stage when he played the lead in "Richard of Bordeaux," the Victoria High school annual play. His performance was quite remarkable in view of his inexperience in that line of work. "Help Yourself," which was written this summer by Theodore Cohen and was based on the co-operative movements in Alberta, was another major production in which Cecil took part. This was included in his work at the Banff school, where he took lectures on all phases of the theatre.

Cecil has read several books on the playwriting technique, but his favorite is Archer's "Art of Playwriting." Planning to keep practising in the hope that some day he may make a name for himself in the realm of the footlights, he will take a course in a good dramatic school when the opportunity presents itself.

"Through the reading I have done I have discovered that there is one thing in common with every playwright and novelist . . . they are both widely travelled. Life is the only source of material for worth-while literature, and it is my hope that I shall be able to travel to the United States and Europe in the search of experience which is absolutely necessary to a successful playwright," Cecil told a Bulletin reporter recently. "I shall keep on working hard at writing and study the best plays in an effort to become a success."

INDUCTED AS A JUDGE AND A BOY SCOUT

A novel dual ceremony was that by which Charles W. Frossel, of New York, was made a Justice of the city court and at the same time a formally qualified member of the Boy Scouts of America. At the close of the induction of Judge Frossel into his office on the bench, an Eagle Scout (equivalent of a Canadian King's Scout) came forward and administered the oath of the American Scouts. The added ceremony was carried out at the request of Judge Frossel, who had been for 16 years associated with scouting in New York City, although not officially invested as a Scout.

A photograph of the new King, when the Duke of York, shows him in full Scout kit and wearing the Silver Wolf, Scouting's highest honorary award. The decoration was presented by Lord Baden-Powell in 1926, in recognition of the Duke's service to the movement as president of the Boy Scouts' associations of Yorkshire and of London.

SILVER HAWKS BICYCLE CLUB MAKE HISTORY

Strict Rules and Expert Coaching Make For Success

Cycling as a major sport in Edmonton was still in the background until a contingent of six Edmonton boys went to compete in the St. Boniface-Kenora cross-country race, and came home with five winning places to their credit. Put up against some of the finest amateur cyclists in Canada, our boys put on a performance that has never been equalled in the west. Their success is due to the painstaking coaching which George Crookett gave them and to the strict adherence to their training rules. Since early in the summer when that race was run, Edmonton boys have become "bike conscious," and various cycle clubs throughout the city have sprung up.

Probably the most important of these is the Silver Hawks Cycle club. This club was originated in 1933 with about half-a-dozen members. After the first year the membership was enlarged to 12, then to 24, until finally today the membership is set at 36.

The boys have a meeting every Tuesday evening when they either ride or practice in the gym, which is equipped in their club rooms. The back of the Norwood Cycle Shop serves them as club rooms. During the summer they ride at least three times a week and practice on their gym apparatus when they have time.

TO BE A MEMBER

To become a member of the Silver Hawks, the applicant must fill out an application form, accompanied by a small fee. This goes before the club and two members have to sign their names to it as a reference to the boy's character. It is then voted on. If there is a negative result the first time, it is brought before the club at two more meetings. Two "nays" will black-ball a prospective member.

The training rules are singularly strict and are adhered to, to the letter by the boys. They have a regular constitution with an executive to carry out the business end.

SOCIAL

Norman How is president, Kenn Horrocks, secretary, and Tom Edge, treasurer. The club holds dances during the winter months, the first of which was held Friday evening in the I.O.O.F. hall. Saturday evening a corn roast in Victoria park is another item on the social program. Each month the club tries to pay a visit to some place of interest. Last year a trip to the Edmonton power plant and one to the fire hall proved enjoyable. The big social event of the year is the Father and Son banquet, the first Tuesday in April.

Besides the bike races the club has a sports day when they compete with the other city clubs for the "Pedal Pushers' Mug." It is of original design, having been made by two of the club members out of an angel-cake pan, a plunger and a spitoon. "We tried to solder it," Norman How stated, "but it was no go, so we just put a big bolt right through the whole thing. There is more hard work goes into competition for this trophy than any other."

There are several trophies up for competition, a great number of which have been won by members of the Silver Hawks. Bob Allan holds the C.C.M. trophy for the ride from Edmonton to Morinville. Gar Lush holds the Pioneer trophy for the same run. Tommy Edge won the T. Eaton trophy for the 25 mile race from Cochrane to Calgary. George Christmas won the club handicap trophy for the 25 mile event.

The manner in which this race is run off is rather complicated. For about a month before the race the boys are clocked for that distance. The rule is that they must beat their own time and come in under the hour. The Alberta record held by Ken Yeathard, of the Edmton Cycle club, was one hour, one minute and twenty-five seconds. George Christmas came first, winning the gold medal; Alex Allan second, for the silver medal, and Bob Allan third for the bronze medal. Yet Jim Jackson won the race because he came in first even though he had a large handicap.

George Crockett trains the boys and has as his assistant Bill Thompson. Bill Bridmore is physical training coach.

Playing Truant Is Worth While When the Fish Are Nibbling

The dream of every boy comes true when the old fishin' pond is thrown open to attempts to rest the elusive perch and trout from it. Edmonton boys are no exception as they are tempted to play truant these fall days to try out the old bent pin once again.

Lougheed Girl To Reside In Ottawa

Miss Yvonne Gerard of Lougheed who left early this week for the east, where she will make her home in Ottawa, has been delightfully entertained at several affairs recently. Yvonne was presented with a Baby Brownie camera by her school mates prior to her departure.

She was also guest of honor when the Junior Society of the Nazarene church entertained at the home of Mrs. B. F. Dixon. Mr. Frank Dixon presented her with a beautiful gift at the close of the social evening. Assisting Mrs. Dixon in serving were: Miss Irene Robertson, Miss Ethel M. Hobson, Miss Annice Dixon and Miss Vivian Dixon.

Those present included: Miss Margaret Robertson, Miss Gwen Whyte, Miss Audrey McClure, Miss Dorothy Jack, Miss Joyce Skoberg, Miss Lorraine Wright, Miss Beatrice Winger, Miss Elsie Bell, Miss Yvonne Gerard, Miss Dolores Dixon, Mr. Maynard McClure, Mr. Arthur Pedlar, Mr. Donald Sax, Mr. Gordon Kirkman, Mr. Frank Dixon.

Junior Authors' Club

Hello, Junior Authors:

How are you all enjoying your extended holiday? Holidays seem nice for a while but they do get tiresome after a while, don't they?

Now for some news. You have a new editor. The former editor has gone to Calgary to live and your new editor hops that you will send in lots of letters right away because it helps so much to make our work happier when we feel that there are a lot of little members who read the Club news. There are still several pretty buttons and membership cards for new members and the editor will send them out to every new member who writes a letter, story or a poem. So let's make this a real corner for the young people!

Today we have a lovely letter from one of our old members, Nina Joy Cooke, 7201 85th Street. Here it is:

Dear Editor:

I am sorry I have been so long in writing to the club; I was away on my holidays on a farm near Millet the latter part of August and since I have been home I have been busy. I had a wonderful time. We gathered a lot of berries. I will write again soon. Best wishes to you and the club.

Your friend,

NINA JOY COOKE.

Thank you for your kind wishes, Nina, and we shall be waiting to hear from you again. Here is the Coronation poem you sent in, and the Editor is sure that all the little pals will understand why you won a prize for it in the Boys' and Girls' Fair.

HIS MAJESTY THE KING

His Majesty the King
Will wear the jewelled crown
In front of all the people
In ancient London town.
Her Majesty the Queen
Will share the throne with him,
And wear a crown upon her head
With His Majesty the King.

His Majesty the King
Will wear the royal robes
And sit in state upon his throne
In ancient London town.
The abbey bells will ring,
The people all will sing,
With loud and gladsome voices,
"God Save Our Gracious King."

His Majesty the King
In golden coach will go,
And guards of honor march with him,
In ancient London town.
The bugles loud will blow,
Banners waving to and fro,
And cheering crowds will shout for him,
His Majesty the King.

His Majesty the King,
Today we drink a toast,
And loyal homage give to him
In all his kingdom round.
Wealth, health and loyalty,
To him and to his queen;
Stand up! Hats off to them,
Lords and gentlemen—the King!

We are pleased to welcome a new member, Betty Joyce Grimley, of Edmonton. Your letter was very interesting, Betty, and we are more than glad to add your name to the Junior Authors membership roll. Here is her contribution:

Dear Editor:

I hope that you will print my letter as I would like very much to become a member of your club. I am 10 years old and am in grade five. I like school a lot and hope that I shall be able to go back next week. I read your page every Saturday and like the Junior Authors Corner best.

Sincerely,

BETTY JOYCE GRIMLEY.

Thank you for your letter, Betty. Will you try and send us a story or a poem next time? We shall wait for another letter real soon.

* * *

The new editor has been reading over the files in which all the letters you members have sent in, are kept. So many of you say that you will write again, but you must have been very busy, some of you, because there are no more letters than just the first one. So how about making good your promises to be real active members of the club? The editor is waiting for your correspondence, so hurry along, pals.

THE EDITOR.

NEW ALBERTA GOVERNOR A "SCOUT"

Hon. J. C. Bowen, new Lieutenant Governor for Alberta, and like his predecessor, patron of the Boy Scouts' association of the province, was duly invested as a Scout by Provincial Commissioner J. H. Woods, of Calgary, at a largely attended Scout Coronation Sunday service in the Prince of Wales Armouries, Edmonton.

LOUIS DEANE HURT

The students of Lloydminster public school sent flowers and fresh fruit to their fellow-student, Louis Deane, who is in hospital recovering from bad head cuts received when the bicycle on which he was riding collided with a car recently. The injured lad is making rapid progress towards recovery.

Betty Cairney Is Proud Possessor of Cups, Medals for Highland Dancing

Proud possessor of eighteen cups and seventy-six medals for Highland dancing! . . . that is the record of Betty Cairney, eleven-year-old Edmonton girl. Betty started to dance four years ago and has since won every medal and cup in her class. From Winniper to Seattle she has competed in every Highland fling, sword dance, sailor's hornpipe and Sheantrues. Betty says the sword dance is the most dif icult but she likes to do them all. She wears for her Scotch dances the Hunting Napier tartan, a plaid in blue and white. For the Irish dances she chooses the yellow and green plaid. Her plaids are straight from the Old Country and her newest Highland costume was made in Glasgow.

Betty's teacher, Miss Helen Shirlaw has been holder of the Dominion championship in Highland dancing for the past five years.

Betty hopes as soon as she is old enough to compete for the C.N.R. trophy which is emblematic of the Dominion championship. She has just returned from a trip to Nelson, B.C., where she won all the honors in the games there, and was judged the best-dressed Highlander for the fourth time.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Cairney, Betty's parents are both from Scotland and have pridefully watched the developing talent for the dances they love so well in their daughter.

Betty's mother accompanies her on all her trips to the games and gets her ready for the competitions. She has her regular limbering-up exercises, a cold bath, leg massage, and then she doesn't eat anything for about an hour before she dances. All in all, these things together with Betty's natural talent for dancing, have made her one of the most successful youthful dancers in Alberta.

SCHOOLS NOT SLOWED UP BY NEW SYSTEM

In spite of the confusion caused in the high schools by the new curriculum, organization meetings for the various school activities, are in evidence. The new curriculum has altered the complexion of all the schools, with dramatics, music and household arts now optional courses.

VICTORIA HIGH

At Victoria the assembly hall is devoted to dramatics in the morning and classes in chorus and orchestra in the afternoon. Needlework, another option, is taught in the library. In order of choice the popularity of the optional courses is dramatics, biology, book-keeping, chorus, physical geology and needlework.

Students' Union nominations and elections took place Thursday and Friday of this week, and the new executive will hold a meeting on Monday to select the cabinet members.

SPORTS

Rugby practices have started but there are only the Junior and Senior teams at Vic this year as the Bantams have been dropped because of the intermediate schools.

Tennis fall tournaments are being organized and the tennis club will hold an ice-cream sale next week, in aid of new equipment. Students are allowed to play free of charge on the school courts for the balance of the season.

Under the direction of Mr. Baker the school orchestra is looking forward to a most successful year as this term there seems to be even a surplus of musical talent in the school. The remnants of last year's orchestra which was led by Saul Ornest is turning out to practices along with the addition of an eight-piece orchestra under the direction of Ernest Nix.

GARNEAU HIGH

Rugby practices are in full swing at Garneau and it is expected that the age-old feud on the grid with Victoria will be keener than ever. Badminton and basketball will hold the interest of a large number of students and the courts and floor will be the scene of good turn-outs within the next few weeks.

Social activities commence in the form of the fall meeting of the Garneau Literary society. Plans for a hike to the "Pines" are being made and this will start the extra-curricular activities off.

TECHNICAL HIGH

Technical High School has lost no time in electing its Students' Union. The nominations were received last week and the following were nominated for president: James McBride, Arlo Peterson, Vera Sluzar and John Turner. For vice-president: Susie McColman, and Stuart Baptiste, and for secretary: Leslie Usher and Peggy Ross.

On Tuesday afternoon there was a general assemblage of the students in the wood shop, and the candidates addressed the meeting, outlining their platform for the coming season.

The election was held Thursday afternoon, the polls being open from 11.45 to 1.30 p.m. and from 4.15 to 4.445. Returning officer Don Stewart declared James McBride, president; Susie McColman, vice-president, and Leslie Usher, secretary. Friday the classes will meet to elect their representatives to the council.

BOYS' WORK IS ORGANIZED IN PEACE RIVER

Returning from a three weeks' trip through the entire Peace River country, Rev. H. R. Ross and Alvin J. Cooper, who spent that time doing boys' work, expressed themselves as highly satisfied with the enthusiastic response the boys gave their efforts. Motoring through to Dawson Creek the party visited all along the line on the return journey.

At Dawson Creek, a social evening arranged by Rev. Jack Gardiner, started the ball rolling. Since it is at the end of the steel, Dawson Creek offers many opportunities for youth along many different channels. At this time a Trail Ranger group was organized, which will keep the boys in this flourishing town engaged in worthwhile work.

RECORD SET

A provincial record was set at the sport meet in Hays Centre when a thirteen-year-old boy put the six-pound shot a distance of 45 feet. At this point a boys' organization under the leadership of Edwin Miles and Mr. Gott will be set up to carry on the work which was so ably started by Mr. Ross and Mr. Cooper. Additional track meets were held at Beaver Lodge and Wembley.

Contacts were made in every town in the country touching the railroad and at Spirit River a lively bunch of boys enjoyed themselves at an old-fashioned sing-song with refreshments rounding off the evening.

Mr. J. G. Houlden and Mr. Darrell Peterson are doing a great deal to organize boys' work in the country schools near Fairview. Berwyn boys held a track meet and the evening spent in the club-rooms was featured by chalk talks. This town represents the strongest frontage of boys, young and old.

Peace River Crossing was the scene of another track meet, while at MacLennan, Mr. Newington presented his boys in a well-conducted gymnastic display. It is hoped that the strong organization at present existent in this country will grow yet stronger and in this way strengthen the character and development of the boys in the Peace River Country.

June Pasley, North Visitor Is Enjoying Life In Edmonton

JUNE PAISLEY

"I like my playmates in Edmonton because they talk white." little June Pasley exclaims. June has lived nearly all of her five years on Victoria Island in the North West Territories, where she has only the Eskimo children to play with, and with the frankness of youth she adds: "And they don't smell like the huskies, either." She makes herself understood among the northern kiddies with the few words she has picked up of their language which they call Kogmouluk.

June has been "out" twice before but this is the first time that she has been old enough to enjoy it. Her greatest delight is a Shirley Temple outfit which her mother had especially made for her. Nothing would do when June was all dressed up in it, but that she should have some curls like Shirley's. So now Miss June has a Shirley Temple permanent!

LIKES SHOES

There are a good many phases of city life that this little northern visitor likes and then some that aren't so popular with her. The airplanes make her deathly sick, and the street cars and motor cars aren't much better. But June does love the clothes that she can wear in our warmer climate. After wearing long underwear, wool stockings and fur leggings as for the greater part of her young life, the brief ankle sox are a continued source of pleasure to her. She has several pairs of shoes and keeps changing them many times a day. She found it rather hard to walk in them at first, because she was so used to wearing mucluks and walking in rocky country where she had to step up or down almost every step, but she is running around with the ease of a veteran nowadays.

June is very tall for her age and insists that her size is due to the fact that she drinks her Cocomalt regularly. She is rather old-fashioned and talks in very grown-up phrases. When she gets excuted she is liable to break out in an Eskimo dialect which rather confuses the children with whom she plays.

WEARS PARKA

Although June likes her "city clothes" better than those she wore in the north, many an Edmonton youngster would give anything for a parka made of white fox and Arctic squirrel such as she wears when she is at home.

The mysteries of the "touching up" process in photography have not been explained to June and she insists that the pictures she had taken in a down-town studio are not of herself. "Because that girl in the picture has teeth and mine have come out."

TO TRAVEL

Glad that she won't have to ride in another "dickie bird," as she calls the airplanes, for some time, June will travel with her mother and father through the United States, to Europe and finally back across Canada to Edmonton from whence she will take off for her home in the far north country in about a year's time.

Y.W.C.A. CLUBS TO COMMENCE NEXT WEEK

Fall activities at the Y.W.C.A. are scheduled to begin next week. The varied program includs gymnasium and dancing classes, girls' clubs and swimming classes. The pool announces to school girls' swimming clubs this year. The Aquatic club, which will include coaching for form and style in the various strokes, speed swimming, fancy diving and monthly swim meet, starts Monday, October 4. A similar club will meet Wednesdays and has been especially arranged for those girls who are not as far advanced as the girls in the Aquatic club. Any girls who can jump off the diving board and swim three lengths any style is invited to attend. The first meeting of the club is Wednesday, October 6, with Miss Willcock in charge.

For beginners, Saturday afternoon has been set aside with teachers for each group. The groups will be divided according to the age of the girls, and each will have its special leader. This club will start Saturday, October 2, at 3.00 p.m. Commencing Saturday, October 2, at 4.30 p.m., life saving classes will meet.

Besides the regular gym classes for all ages a special class in modern and ball-room dancing is planned. Something new for the tiny tots are the "Rhythms and Swims." Both boys and girls are invited to this class.

The club department will be well under way by the end of next week with the resumption of the various "Y" clubs. The "Y" Quando Quo, the high school girls' group, will hold their initial meeting Friday, September 24. The business girls' club, including Beta Pi Gamma, Gay League and Upsilon, have plans already under way which seem to point to a most interesting season. In addition to several new groups there are the Cheery Chums and the Merry Makers.

Rover Crew Wins First Aid Trophy

Recent winners of the J. R. Gaunt trophy for first aid, presented by the Saint John's Ambulance association, in competition with intermediate (age under 18) teams all over Canada, Saint Faiths' 2nd Rover Crew may well be proud of themselves. Previously winners of the Dominion Junior trophy and runners-up in the intermediate class last year these boys have won at some time or other in the past eight years, every competition for which they have been eligible. Starting as a Wolf Cub pack and then continuing as a Boy Scout troop and Rover Crew the youths don't just only know the theory of first aid. They have on many occasions put their knowledge to practical use. Providing the medical staff for various cub and scout camps, standing by at hockey games in case of emergency, instructing Cub packs and Scout troops in the city the boys have proved themselves of inestimable value.

Trained by Tom Harvie, the team is composed of John Dix, captain; William Whitehouse, Stanley Garside, Dennis Quinlan and Stanley Ward. Rev Canon Clough is rover-master of the crew. Next year the team will enter the novice division of the senior Dominion first aid competition. The trophy for intermediate first aid, which will be presented to the group at a special ceremony later, will be kept for the year — each member of the team will receive an individual award.

SPECIAL COURSE FOR ROVER BOY SCOUTS, WOLF CUB

First of its kind to be undertaken in the province, a special Gilwell Training Course for Commissioners and Assistant Commissioners of Rover Boy Scouts and Wolf Cub organizations is to be held at Calgary on October 1, 2 and 3. Opportunity will be provided all commissioners to become acquainted and to promote a real commissioners' team to develop scouting in Alberta.

Dealing adequately with all phases of Scout, Rover and Wolf Cub work, and including study of Imperial, country and group organization, warrants, competitions, displays as well as the camping, ceremonial and religious aspects of the movement, the course will be in charge of Provincial Commissioner J. H. Woods, C.M.G.

The training school is to be specially honored by having Chief Executive Commissioner John A. Stiles of Ottawa, present. Mr. Stiles is making a tour of the Dominion and will lead in a number of sessions at the Calgary meet. He will be assisted by local commissioners.

Scout officials in Edmonton are preparing a brilliant reception for the Scout dignitary when he comes to the city at the conclusion of the Gilwell course. Mr. Stiles will travel north from Calgary with Provincial Commissioner W. S. Backman.

Canada produced approximately 29,459,000 pounds of sugar and syrup during 1936.

Happy Party Marks Golden Wedding Day

Chrysanthemums in shades of bronze and russet and gold, together with lovely baskets and bouquets of late summer flowers and roses, many of which came as gifts to the "bride and bridegroom of fifty years" filled the lovely reception rooms of Mr. and Mrs. Percy Seager's house at 10734 124 street on Friday when, during the afternoon and evening, they received the many friends who called on them on the occasion of their fiftieth wedding day.

TRIBUTE IN VERSE

Dr. A. E. Porter, a friend of many years composed a poem for the occasion which expressed most adequately the wishes of all present for the continued health and happiness of the bride and bridegroom.

Mr. J. Anderson of Calgary came up for the occasion and spent a number of hours with the beloved pair leaving again for his home late in the evening.

Presiding at tea at the tea-table which was set with tapers and summer blooms were Mrs. Neil Seager, Mrs. George Caywood, Mrs. E. S. McGarvey, Mrs. A. L. Bashor, Mrs. G. J. Henley, Mrs. George D. Mills, Mrs. Percy Jones, Mrs. Harold Seager. Assisting with the passing of tea were Mrs. A. Maloney, Mrs. Hilda McKay and Miss Dorothy Maloney.

Guests who called during the day were Chief A. G. Shute, Mr. J. C. Reef of Winnipeg, Mrs. C. H. Moubray, Mrs. Sophia Essery, Mrs. T. E. Pinch, Mrs. John Jackson, Mrs. G. W. Shipley, Major and Mrs. A. P. Chappell, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. McGarvey, Mrs. M. Jordon, Mr. and Mrs. Olsen, Mr. and Mrs. G. R. Thorburn, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Baker.

Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Werner and their daughter, Mr. and Mrs. G. Robertson, Mrs. H. L. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Bert McGavin, Mrs. A. Brass, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Siesman, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Douglas, Mr. and Mrs. James East.

Mr. and Mrs. N. A. Cardell, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. McGavin, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Connelly, Mr. and Mrs. S. H. Barrett, Mr. and Mrs. A. Goodall, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Flavin, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Milne, Mr. and Mrs. J. Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. Neil M. Ross, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Burger, Mr. and Mrs. T. Whittaker, Mr. and Mrs. W. Fears.

JASPER JOTTINGS

By FAY PARKER

JASPER, Sept. 15—When the Hon. T. A. Crerar, minister of mines and resources, and his party toured the completed section of the Jasper-Banff highway recently, they were every bit as enthusiastic over the magnificent panoramic views the trip affords, as other numerous tourists have been. Ideal weather favored their visit and they were able to see at their best the gigantic snow-capped glaciers, lovely waterfalls, deep gorges, "painted" canyons of colored rock and clay deposits that makes the route so delightful.

GOLF WEEK

Golf week in Jasper, particularly this year, was an outstanding success. The weather conditions were ideal throughout the entire week, and the course was in splendid shape, thanks to Groundsman Brinkworth and his helpers. Even if one was not a winner on the golf course it was possible to enjoy the social side of golf week in Jasper which climaxed on Friday evening with the annual golf dinner dance. A large number of prominent socialites of Edmonton were present.

The Order of the Royal Purple celebrated their eleventh birthday recently with a banquet in the Athabasca hotel following which they held their regular meeting and a social hour. In honor of the occasion, Mrs. R. Richardson made a beautifully decorated cake.

FAREWELL PARTIES

Mrs. Frank Wood, who is leaving with her daughter, Joan, for Brussels, Belgium, and Paris, France, on Sunday, has been the guest of honor at a number of "bon voyage" affairs this week.

This Thursday evening marks the closing of the Jasper Park lodge for the season, and thus concludes one of the busiest and most successful in its history. Soon the inquisitive bears and marauding deer will wander along the paths and around the cabins, no doubt wondering at the strange quiet that has settled down everywhere.

LATE SUMMER TEA IS CHARMING O.E.S. AFFAIR

Entertaining at a late summer silver tea, under the auspices of Allenby Chapter, No. 38, O.E.S., Mrs. J. B. Harper, Mrs. A. Stewart and Mrs. C. M. Dewer received at the home of Mrs. Harper on 65 street one afternoon this week. Mrs. J. H. Wark, matron of the chapter, also received with the hostesses.

Mrs. James Murdoch, Mrs. Slate, Mrs. Priestly, Mrs. K. S. Campbell, Mrs. Ladervitt, Mrs. W. Frederickson, Mrs. C. E. Morris, Mrs. N. Stewart, Mrs. D. M. Stewart, Mrs. W. Thoas and Mrs. G. H. Rydman.

Edmonton Women Share The Enthusiam Of Ancient Greeks For Sporting Activities; Have "Made Good" In Many Fields Of Endeavor

By RUTH HAZLETT

More than a little of the enthusiasm of sport lovers in ancient Athens, where so many centuries ago the famous Olympic games originated, has imparted itself across several seas one cannot help but conclude in turning the pages of the sports annals and seeing the extent to which sport plays a part in the lives of the women of Edmonton.

A long path has been travelled since those early days when women were mere spectators, until today when they have become active participants. Enthusiasm reinforced by active training has brought admiring recognition to the 'weaker sex' in what was once known as 'a man's domain.'

ARE GOOD SPORTS

Breaking into every field of sporting activity—basketball, baseball, swimming, track and field and even hockey, women have left their mark as "good sports" . . . something we'd all like to be but which only a few attain. Mediocracy is the obstacle which few surmount but perhaps one of the secrets of becoming a star is the compelling wish to be one.

We had an interesting chat, not so very long ago with Miss Mary McConkey, talented young swimmer who has the distinction of not only being the first Edmontonian, but the only Albertan to make the Canadian Olympic team.

Holder of three Dominion titles, the 100 yard back stroke, the 220 yard free style and the 50 yard free style, this young aquatic star, who only last year accompanied the Olympic team on the enviable trip to Germany, started swimming before the age of nine with the burning ambition to be as good as the then recognized junior star. She realized her ambition, and more. It was not long until Mary was defeating old standbys and capturing on all sides enviable trophies, until now she is the holder of over 20 cups and numerous medals. Youth and ambition! . . . a great combination, and obviously a good recipe for success in the sporting world.

NEW STAR

Appearing over the horizon another young champion is making a name for herself. Seven or eight years ago a little girl came from Grande Prairie, a month before school closed, and while other children were busily writing exams, this little girl, with her brother amused herself at the swimming pool. Seven years ago . . . not very long in which to become a recognized name in women's swimming, but Miss Ruth Lett has accomplished just that.

Winner of junior Wrigley swim honors for three years, Miss Lett has for the past two years carried away the senior trophy and during the past summer has won every race in Alberta.

Steady training is required, she admits, but it's fun too, for here's where work becomes play. Her aim is the Olympic team of 1940 . . . the chances look good for this clever young star.

YEAR-ROUND

Contrary to club life, social life, musical life and other women's activities which call a halt for the summer months, the wheels of sport keep up their steady grind, and from baseball, swimming and tennis, the interest in sport swings to fall and winter activities.

With the university about to open, interest is primarily centered in track, and may we at this point urge any prospective freshettes who are interested, to be on hand at the Varsity stadium. Miss Helen Rose is president of university track and is anxious to have a good team to take to the intercollegiate meet which will be held at the University of Saskatchewan early in October. So get out the running togs and see if you can make that team.

Basketball-minded Edmonton? . . . We need hardly mention that very soon junior and intermediate teams will be resuming training, but at present what is foremost is preparations for the annual school field day which will be held in the near future.

P.S.—WINTER SPORTS

We feel just a little guilty in bringing up the subject of hockey, which makes one think of overshoes and winter coats . . but there is a more pleasant side to it, the thrills of skiing over snow-clad hills and skating on smooth glass surfaces.

The past few years girls' hockey has fallen down rather badly, due largely to the fact that the necessary support and sponsoring was lacking. Edmonton has a wealth of hockey material as was adequately shown a few years ago when the Rustlers hockey team calmly annexed the Dominion championship. Last season both the Rustlers team and the Muttart team of two years ago had disbanded and the only girls' hockey Edmonton saw was supplied by the Varsity team. Calgary had two active teams and it is hoped that this year Edmonton will follow suit and re-establish this sport in its former standing.

ROSSDALE LADIES TO HOLD THANKSGIVING TEA

A Harvest Thanksgiving Tea to be held on Thursday, October 7 in the social room of First Presbyterian Church was planned by the Rossdale Ladies' Aid when they met for their opening meeting at the home of the president, Mrs. J. Murray.

Two new members were welcomed into the Aid. Following the business meeting tea was served by the hostess.

BLUE skies, golden sunshine streaming down, crisp dew sparkling on green grass and leaves already turning into glorious autumn fabrics of color . . . a lovely morning, and suddenly, as we walked to work, we wanted to sing . . . gay tunes, silly tunes, anything to express a sudden joy at being alive. But—we didn't sing! The fate of a fellow walker put a damper on our high spirits. He wasn't at all the type you would expect to be singing so early in the morning—shortish, with a pert little moustache,—but he swung along, conquering the pavement in huge strides and humming quite audibly, "In the Good Old Summertime." So someone else thought it was a lovely morning! We smiled, nodded our head to the tune, and were thinking quite seriously of joining in the chorus when a disgusted, "The silly dumbell . . ." directed toward the singer reached our ears, emphatically quelling the melody bursting on our own lips.

An alarm clock grouch had spoiled the loveliness of a perfect morning and we didn't sing. Now we sit in our office, perplexed and a little moody . . . wondering just why this great business world who see the glories of the early morning doesn't sing on its way to work. Workers sing in the fields, housewives at their work, gay snatches of song fill the air under Venetian skies . . . gondoliers and gentlemen sing, errand boys and Venetian ladies. A lovely morning is made lovelier by snatches of haunting melodies which linger, leaving a carefree note of happiness as those of the work-a-day world, and women going a-marketing, pass on their way. Here, it isn't done! One must appear smart and business-like, and quite oblivious to the loveliness of the morning. And as for singing—Oh never . . . we wonder why?

Walk-Rite Plans Fall Style Show

On the afternoon and evening of Wednesday, September 22, at the Tivoli ballroom, 15 lovely models will display the smartest of a large collection of smart gowns, suits and coats, which the buyer for the store, Miss Bess E. Conn has just brought back from New York and Montreal.

Stunning Deja dresses, suits and coats from the houses of Langburne, Town and Country and Fashion Firsts, which the Walk-Rite carries exclusively, will be shown and their newest features described by a fashion commentator.

Shimmering moires and swishing taffetas deep-toned velvets, glittering lames, varicolored sequins, sheer mouseline de soie, and luxurious furs . . . a glance around the exciting, well-filled racks at the Walk-Rite is enough to induce the fashion minded woman to enter the Walk-Rite Fashion show in her engagement book. An added attraction at the affair will be a draw for one of the lovely gowns in the store.

The shows will commence at half past two o'clock in the afternoon and at half past eight o'clock in the evening.

"Y" Notebook

First fall meeting of the Gay League will take place on Monday, when members will have supper together at six o'clock, later going over to South Hall to inspect the new club rooms.

Elizabeth Arden gives advice on CLEANSING

Elizabeth Arden says: use Ardena Cleansing Cream followed by Ardena Skin Tonic. The Cream will remove every grain of dust. This keeps your skin from growing coarse and old. The Tonic will remove the Cream without drying effects.

"Over The Teacups"— Twenty Years Ago

From the Files of the Edmonton Bulletin

"MERE MAN" cut a very insignificant figure on the Municipal golf links yesterday. He was content to play when and where he could and had to possess his soul in patience while petticoated experts studied the line of their putts on the green and hunted for lost balls in the rough, quite oblivious to masculine swipers who would have liked to "play through," but were obliged to put a curb upon their inclinations, for the Ladies' Open Tournament was on and the lady golfers had the unquestioned right-of-way. It was a gloriously successful event from every point of view. In the first place, there were something like 30 entries, and nearly all the entrants played and turned in cards. Some exceedingly good golf was played. The course was in A-1 condition and the handicapping made the results very even. The contest was at medal play once around the course, and Greens-keeper Langdon based his handicaps on a bogey of 50 for the round.

Mr. H. H. Cooper is in Calgary. He will be the manager of a new wholesale house in the southern city.

Mr. and Mrs. A. T. C. Belyea and little son are leaving on Thursday for New Brunswick to visit relatives for several weeks.

Mrs. E. A. Howes, University Campus, who has been visiting in Vermilion, has returned.

SOCIETY walked out in its best fall frock on Tuesday to attend the luncheon given by the Women's Canadian Club of Edmonton at the Hudsonia in order to hear a very inspiring address from Mrs. Ralph Smith of Vancouver. About 125 ladies sat down to an excellent dinner served in a highly satisfactory manner from tables daintily arranged and decorated with a profusion of autumn leaves of gorgeous hues and vases of golden glow in artistic bunches.

Judge and Mrs. J. D. Hyndman and family have returned from spending the summer at the coast.

AN INTERESTING meeting of the Press Club took place on Monday afternoon at the club rooms, Civic block, when several subjects of more or less importance were brought forward for discussion. Miss Edna Kells, the president, conducted the meeting. Miss Kells advanced the thought that as there was so much written and talked about the conservation of food, the club should practice the preaching, and until after the war the afternoon tea served should be of the very simplest possible. Mrs. Nellie McClung brought up the subject of having a study club under the auspices of the Press Club, which was approved and thoroughly discussed. Mrs. McClung was made convener, and the first meeting is being arranged for.

The Christ Church Tennis Club held a most successful mixed double open tournament on Saturday afternoon. There were 28 players and many interested spectators. A delicious cup of tea and dainty refreshments served between closely contested games, together with the glorious weather, made the whole affair a most enjoyable one.

Christmas stockings for the soldiers overseas must be ready soon. It seems incredible that people need to think of Christmas things before the leaves have fallen, but it is true, that if the soldiers overseas are to have their boxes as in other years, they must be ready practically at once.

What To Do

I have been reading your suggestions daily in the newspaper and find them very useful and interesting. Now, won't you please help me with my problem? I am invited to a girl friend's home for dinner. She lives on a different social scale than I do, and I am a little timid about taking a meal there. So I would appreciate your telling me some of the do's and dont's that I should know about. Thank you.

HAZEL.

Answer—First of all, be on time, and look your best when you arrive. When dinner is served your friend's mother, who is your hostess, will invite you to the dining room with the rest of the family and she will indicate where she wishes you to sit. From here on simply follow your hostess. When the meal is to begin she will pick up her napkin, and so may you, unfolding it to half its size and placing it across your lap. If there seems to you an alarming array of silver at your place, just remember that you use the fork or knife farthest away from your plate first. But if you find you have used the wrong piece of silver, make no mention of it. Just use watever is left, and no one but you is likely to notice. When your friend's mother places her napkin on the table at the end of the dinner, it is a signal to leave the table, and you then place your napkin at the left of your plate. Otherwise, just be yourself.

DOROTHY DIX Says:

DEAR MISS DIX: I want to confirm your statement, that if a woman is not in love with a man before marriage she will not fall in love with him afterward, by my own experience. I have been married to a woman for forty years, whom I have always loved passionately and wooed assiduously during all that time, but while she has an affection for me she does not love me. She did not love me when we were married and she does not love me now. How can I tell? There are so many ways. She has never taken any interest in my welfare. She is always against everything that I do. She contradicts me at every opportunity. She sacrifices me to her own family. She has no children, nor has she ever wanted any of her own, yet she adores children. She is pleased if she can lower me in the estimation of her friends. She is a back-seat driver of the worst sort. She has no appreciation of all I have done for her, although I have supported her in luxury and been generous to her about money. I fell in love with my wife the first time I met her and my affection has never wavered, but I have not had a happy life, yet I intend to see it through to the last. Have I done right?

MR. UNLOVED.

Answer:

The French have a proverb which says that in love one kisses and one permits oneself to be kissed, and which is the happier one—whether it is better to love or to be loved—is a problem that each individual must solve for himself.

Certainly it is a tragic thing for a man to pour out his heart's devotion on a woman for forty years, to slave all that time to save her from every hardship and keep her soft and warm, and to get for it all nothing but a little lukewarm tolerance. To go through life heart-hungry, to ask for bread and be given a stone, surely few fates are more pitiful than that.

And yet would you be happier away from the woman you love than you are with her? Life with her brings you few flowers for your consolation, but without her would it not be cinders, ashes and dust? Do you not find some happiness in being with her, some generous joy in lavishing upon her not only the things that money buys but devotion that she prizes so little? Is not the greatest happiness the joy that comes to our own souls from the act of giving, not the reward we expect to get from it?

In all events a case such as yours is hopeless, for nothing can be done about it. It would avail you nothing to leave your wife because there would be no second love for you. You have given all you have to one woman and you have nothing else to give another. Nor is your wife to blame because she is as powerless to love you as you are to cease loving her. Love is lord of us all and it scorns to do our bidding. It comes and goes as it pleases.

None of us know why we love. Nor in what lies the mysterious fascination that some individual has for us. We have no idea why we thrill at the touch of one hand, while another leaves us cold. We have no conception of why an intelligent human being should have his whole heart and soul go out to one who has not a single quality that he admires and whose defects he sees all too clearly.

We only know that admiration is not love; that appreciation is not love; that we do not love a person because he or she possesses every fine quality of character. And we know we cannot love because it is our duty to love, or that it would be to our advantage to love some particular individual.

This is why it is so true that if the man or woman does not love the one he or she married before marriage, he or she will not fall in love with the one to whom they are married after marriage. It is in vain that the wife of an indifferent husband tries to light the fires of passion in his heart by being meek and humble and adoring. It is in vain that the men who overpersuades a girl who does not really care for him to marry him in the belief that he can teach her to love him. He never does. If he did not capture her fancy before marriage, he never will afterward, no matter how good he is to her. Marriage is the wrecking ground of illusions, not the factory in which they are made.

Nervous Often Pine For Pine Oil In Bath

By ALICIA HART

Among the new fall toiletries that women like these days is a pine bath oil—not merely pine-scented, but made from true oil of pine needles. Alleged to have therapeutic value and to be the same type of pine oil used at various European health spas, this is recommended as a nerve relaxer as well as a beauty preparation.

The makers of the pure pine essence claim that a bath in a tub of warm water into which has been stirred one teaspoon of the dark green liquid gently stimulates the body, improving circulation; cleanses the pores; soothes the skin and cools it in warm weather; brings relief to tired, aching feet and leaves one feeling calm and rested.

You simply turn on the hot water, pour in one teaspoon of pine oil, then add the desired amount of cold water. The product comes in two scents—light and heavy. Incidentally, if you wish to remove cooking or cleaning odors from a room, simply put ten drops of the heavier scent in a dish of boiling water and set in the center of the room to be deodorized.

The manufacturers of the pine oil have a pine soap with a tiny metal drain on the bottom of each cake. This prevents waste. Their pine shampoo is soapless, has an olive oil base and rinses out easily.

Creators of cosmetics seem to have the interests of the dry-skinned and dry-haired woman at heart this season. If soap just does not agree with you, it's possible to get a soapless, non-drying but greaseless cleansing jelly for face and throat and a soapless vitalizing shampoo for your hair.

BOOTLEGGING WAS NOT STARTED BY PROHIBITION

It is often erroneously stated that the passing of the prohibition laws against liquors started bootlegging. The truth is that bootlegging is as old as liquor taxation, and dates back (in the United States) to the first whisky tax in 1791. In order to avoid paying the tax, bootleggers smuggled their liquor to customers secretly, and thus sold it at a lower price. As liquor taxes have increased, bootlegging has increased and become more and more profitable. It was already a well-organized traffic before prohibition laws were even put into force.

Your Children

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

There is no tyranny like that of children. It is natural, because all of us are despots by inheritance. Who is noble enough to do anything that others can do for him better than he can do it himself?

O. R. Barton

Day after day, from the time a baby is born, he is conditioned to expectancy. He discovers very early that most of his wants are supplied by his mother. As time goes on, his demands increase because there is more than physical need to be met. He wants this and he must have that. He has to exercise and play but he wants it mostly done in his own way.

PARENTS ARE TO BLAME IF CHILD EXPECTS TOO MUCH

The mother, without realizing the fact, becomes a subject taxed beyond reason. Naturally her interest and love prevent her from taking a long-distance view, and she proceeds along her way, blind to what may be ahead of her. The day will come, in all probability, when she feels that her child is old enough to let go a little and give her a rest, but unless she provides for this relief as time goes on, no such miracle is going to happen.

It is not the child's fault if at six, or eight, or ten, he continues to think that his mother is there entirely for his comfort and pleasure. Or that he resents any time she takes away from home. There are youngsters, you know, who fuss and carry on if mother goes out, even though they themselves will be away at the same time. They want to know she is there in case they need her.

I have seen young children begin to devil their mother when she sat down to read. She may sew, or wash or cook without any displeasure on their part. But let her read, take a nap or talk to a neighbor and the fun begins. The reason is clear. When her mind is absorbed by something that diverts attention entirely away from them, they cannot bear it. Her rights are decidedly limited, to their thinking, and their first impulse is to interrupt by one means or another.

I have watched a tired mother with a handful of little tykes after her every minute of the day for something. If it wasn't for this it was that. She had to settle all disputes, which were frequent, because these rather deliberately-manufactured spats gave an excuse for mother's attention.

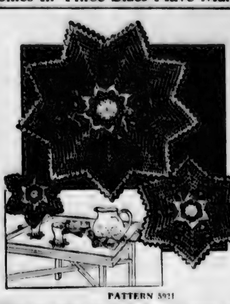
CUTENESS BLINDS PARENTS TO THEIR TYRANNICAL WAYS

Darling little despots they were, and cute enough to blind any but the keenest to their method. Now is the time that she should take measures for the future, and so I told her. She thinks that time will help and that later they will take better care of themselves.

So they will, in a way, and gradually their interests will sail away from home. She will not be so necessary to their immediate wants, and subconsciously she dreads the day. But other things will result. The habit of thinking "away from her," as a person with privilege, once set, is hard to break. "Mother" too often means only a depot of service. The small child who is made to understand that his mother's wants are as important as his, and her rights on a par with his own, will grow in consideration and responsibility.

Doilies In Three Sizes Have Many Uses

Household Arts by Alice Brooks



Make Luncheon or Buffet Sets or Separate Doilies

PATTERN 5921

"Hitch your wagon to a star!" Here's a luncheon or buffet set that will be the stellar attraction in your household. It's easy as two-and-two to crochet this delightful star design. And the doilies are in those three ever-so-useful sizes: 6½, 12½, and 19 inches. Penny-wise? Use everyday string or finer cotton for smaller sets.

In pattern 5921 you will find complete instructions for making the doilies shown; an illustration of them and of the stitches used; a photograph of a section of a dollie; material requirements.

Luscious Cantaloupes Are Worth Preserving

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Years ago one of the best housewives of Okmulgee, Oklahoma, sent a recipe for cantaloupe butter to the editor of the Okmulgee Daily Times. Like all shrewd editors, he knew that good food is spot news. So the recipe was published. That was years ago. Last month an old resident recalled that cantaloupe butter. But she had forgotten the recipe. She wrote to Joseph N. Croom, managing editor. Mr. Croom couldn't remember either, so he printed an S.O.S. in his paper and pronto—rushing into his sanctum came over 60 recipes for cantaloupe butter, including the original one. Below is printed the historical recipe that first made Okmulgee cantaloupe butter conscious.

CANTALOUPE BUTTER

Peel and dice cantaloupe. To one pound of cantaloupe add 2-3 pound of sugar, ¼ lemon sliced thin, including rind, and ¼ teaspoon ground nutmeg tied in a bag. Cook over a very slow fire, stirring frequently until the mixture is clear, very heavy and thick. Seal at once in hot sterilized jars.

The result, according to Mrs. J. A. Mosley, who rediscovered the recipe, is a golden yellow butter with a delicious cantaloupe taste.

CANTALOUPE CONSERVE

Ingredients 3 cantaloupes, 2 cups sugar, 1 cup water, 1 orange, 2 lemons.

Peel and cut the cantaloupe fine. Make a thick syrup of sugar and water. Dice lemons and orange fine. Cook orange, lemons and cantaloupe in syrup until clear. Then put in hot sterilized jars at once and seal. Okmulgee must be a hive of melon magicians. Among many others, there is Mrs. George W. Caperton who wrote to Mr. Croom the amazing news that she could make not only cantaloupe butter but also pumpkin butter, watermelon preserves, cantaloupe preserves and other such things. And she proves her claim to distinction by this recipe for muskmelon butter.

MUSKMELON BUTTER

Select ripe melons, cut in halves, remove rind, seeds and soft part. Place melons in preserving kettle with as little water as possible, just enough to cover melons. Boil until tender. Press through colander and measure pulp. To each quart of pulp, add ½ cup sugar, juice of half a lemon, and a little cinnamon, if desired. Boil until the mixture is thick enough to spread (about 5 minutes), stirring constantly to prevent burning. Pack the hot butter into jars and seal immediately.

All of the above will explain why your food editor is hoping to receive an invitation from Mr. Croom of the Okmulgee Daily Times to stop off sometime and sit in at a typical Okmulgee home dinner. People who know how to treat cantaloupe so handsomely must be nice folks.

Monday's Menu

Minute Make-Ups

By V. V.

Before you step under the water of your shower, dash a bit of fragrant bath oil on a wet wash cloth. And rub it over your entire body. Then step under the spray and scrub yourself with soap and water. The bath, oil, mixed with lather, is wonderfully soothing.

HEART-TO-HEART TALKS

By Kathleen Norris

Woman's Second Marriage Bitterest Experience

DEAR Mrs. Norris: A wife of seven years standing is writing you this, asking your aid in the first real crisis her life has ever known. My husband is a good man, one of the heads of a large preparatory school. We have one son, now five years old.

"Two years ago a quiet Frenchman joined the faculty; for several months I was aware only that he was a pleasant addition to our rather small group. Gradually I and all of us, discovered that he was a man of great distinction, wide experience and some wealth; he came to us only to perfect his English, and to learn something of our beautiful West.

"A friendship developed between him and me. We were congenial; for a long time that was all we knew. My life seemed to take on a new brightness and a new meaning, and in exchanging English lessons for French ones I knew a real interest and thrill. Raoul and I talked, walked, rode, picnicked together constantly, always with others present, of course. Even winter evenings by the family fire became satisfying because he was so often there.

"At Christmas time we discovered suddenly that our lives were bound up in each other. It was not love, as the word is usually used; it was something infinitely deeper, something that embraced every thought and act, put significance into even the least significant things and made the world miraculous. For a few weeks it seemed to us both inevitable that we must become divorced and marry each other. Raoul has a wife in France, and a son and daughter aged fourteen and sixteen; he has not lived at home for five years.

"I immediately told my husband everything, and there ensued some weeks of wretchedness that I cannot remember even now without pain. George flatly refused me a divorce, claiming that his work as a professor, our son, and his invalid mother, who makes her home with us, would be all upset by any such change. It seems incredible that a sensible man and a good man could quietly take such a stand, and persist in it even though it made us all suffer. His mother, why sympathizes with me, our boy, who sees that I am unhappy, Raoul and myself all must pay for this one person's stubbornness. It has of course made a great difference between my husband and myself; he insisting that 'when I come to my senses' I will see it all differently.

"But that isn't my question. Raoul has gone back to France, and I am facing the bitter necessity of reconciling myself to the vanishing of my dream of happiness. Can you help me to find some way to live the old life again; to discipline myself to make the best of it when every fibre of my being is screaming out against it? I have determined on my course; I shall live now for Stuart and his grandmother; my attitude toward my husband being one of civility and endurance only.

My husband does nothing, except occasionally meet a guest at the train, keep the woodboxes filled, and now and then tinker with a blown fuse or a broken ice-cream freezer. Otherwise he loafs. Should I divorce him?

"But my heart is sick within me. It seems to me that I cannot bear it; the monotony, the dullness, the routine, the veiled sympathy of some of my friends, who of course suspect what the situation is. Places where we were happy, books we read together, French phrases that I still hear in his accents, haunt me. I am sick for the sight of my husband, the sound of his voice, the touch of his kind big hand. I am thirty years old; I may have thirty years more of this. What shall I do?

WILLETTE."

My dear Willette: You will not have thirty years more of this pain, nor thirty months. But that does not mean that the next year will be an easy one. You speak of this experience as a dream, and a dream it was.

We humans, seeing misery and disillusionment and complications all about us as a result of these second marriages, still like fondly to imagine that in our own special case everything would be different. The passion of love would last. Marriage would never lose its first rapturous charm. The new husband would never develop the trying characteristics of the old one; he would be forever faultless, a wonder man, an ideal, a perfect lover.

Look about you, Willette. You have plenty of friends who have thrown husband, home, children aside to complete the perfect romance. Are they any better off than they were? Not often. And when by some rare chance a second or third marriage really does give a woman the happiness that the first failed to give her it is only because she herself has changed. She is less exacting; she is gentler, she is more tactful and self-sacrificing. She could have made a succes of the first marriage on those terms, had she been wise enough.

She Should Forget Herself

More often than not her second marriage is the bitterest lesson a woman ever receives. She must stick to her guns, see her children sacrificed, give up a thousand things that were valuable to her, even if she didn't know it when she had them. She must change—and believe me, changing is an agonizing process. For just as plastic surgery and bone readjustment hurt the body, so do the corresponding processes wring the soul.

Be wise in time, Willette. Establish for yourself a little program of study, exercise, service to those about you; forget yourself for awhile. And the time will come when harmony will be once more the atmosphere of home, and the wild dream relegated to the past with other dreams.

Today's second letter comes from a woman who signs herself "Martha," and who seems to be a real Martha where housekeeping cares are concerned. This is part of what she writes:

"Ten years ago when my girls were six and four, my husband became ill. I nursed him for weeks through a trying skin trouble, during which time the factory where he had been employed failed. We had a short time of panic when the actual question of food and a roof frightened me. We accepted federal aid for two years, at the end of which time I began to buy the sixteen-room house we now own clear of all debt. I have eighteen boarders; my gross income runs close to fifteen hundred a month; I employ two good colored girls, and have trained my own girls to be of great use. They are in school, of course, fine scholars, and dear and devoted children.

"On my place are several fruit trees of different sorts, so that we have plenty of preserves and pickles, and the cook's son exchanges garden service for his board. For the last five years, since raising my rates, I have had a waiting list, and although the work is hard and thankless, I like it, and am proud of my success.

When Wife Supports Entire Family

"The trouble is my husband; and my question is: should I divorce him? He does nothing, except occasionally meet a guest at the train, keep the woodboxes filled, and now and then tinker with a blown fuse or a broken ice cream freezer. Otherwise he loafs, reads newspapers, works puzzles, strolls downtown with the dog, and helps the girls with homework. I allow him a dollar a week, but he will take more if it is left lying about. He smokes a pipe, likes to go out into the kitchen and for an hour every morning, and never misses church, putter with his own little coffee pot, takes a hot bath no matter if I am too hot, harassed, hurried, busy to go.

"The girls are very fond of their father, and tease him as if he were their age, but surely the time is coming when they will be ashamed of him, and if so, should I act now, and clear him out of their lives once and for all? Sometimes, on a hot Saturday morning like this one, I am so exasperated at him that I would be relieved to hear that a truck had run over him. I really mean it. Please forgive and advise a resentful woman."

I do feel sorry for you, even though this letter, dashed off in the maddening heat and fatigue of a boarding house Saturday morning, did make me laugh. You are a clever woman, my dear, and deserve every scrap of your success. The work will grow easier every year; the girls be more and more a delight. And as for poor unambitious dad, with his pipe and his dog and his puzzles, just remember that in your house nothing strange is going on, only you are filling the man's place and he the woman's. No man resents his wife's loafing and enjoying herself, if he can afford to keep her, but we women are still sufficiently under the pressure of the past to feel uncomfortable when it is the man who takes life easily and the woman who carries the load.

Advised To Be Kind

Having inexhaustible energy myself I would infinitely prefer your life to his. I could not idle about in anyone's boarding house on an allowance of a dollar a week. You couldn't. At the first chance you seized the reins of responsibility, and drove the little tipsy vehicle of your family finances to safe ground.

Be kind to this kindly dawdler; and make your girls happy and your boarders happy; now make him happy too. You really solved the serious problem that you've people about you to love you. That's richness; was too much for him; you're successful; you're busy; appreciate it.

And remember, as the girls grow up, that they'll think, and the world will think, of their father, just what you do. If you accept him with understanding and generously, so will they. If you belittle him you belittle them, and yourself, too.

The Oxford Group

By Nellie McClung

WHEN Maclean's magazine came in last week I read Beverley Baxter's London Letter before I opened my correspondence, for, like the majority of Canadians, I enjoy his crisp, pungent style of writing, and usually agree with him. Now he has told us what he thinks of the Oxford Group and I know he has written this with sincerity and kindness, and I believe his criticism will help rather than hinder their work.

I felt much the same the first time I attended a meeting, which was five years ago in Calgary. I thought I could detect a note of egotism, particularly in some of the younger speakers, as they told of their "masks" and their "paganism," and of how utterly the church had failed in its mission and what "cut-ups" they had been. But I did not say a word of this, because it was a glorious sight to me to see such crowds of young people at a religious meeting and hear a discussion of spiritual matters carried on in an atmosphere of complete frankness. I liked their fun, their jollity, their evident good fellowship. I will confess that it was something of a shock to be at a religious meeting where no scripture was read, and no hymn sung, and no prayer offered.

NELLIE McCLUNG

BEGAN TO SEE RESULTS

Soon after that I began to see results. I heard of strange happenings. The most unexpected people had gone "Oxford." I got a letter from a friend in another city asking me if I could square my life by the "Four Absolutes." When last seen she was a member of a very idle group of young women, spending their time in bridge and cocktail parties. She had even given up her [illegible] from sheer laziness and settled down to as worthless a way of living as anyone could conceive. She said in her letter that she had never known before that there could be real joy in religion and advised me to try it.

My first impulse was one of indignation. The nerve of her! But I was so glad that she had found something to which she could anchor her soul, that I did not mind the inference. Let me add this, her anchor has held.

The next case which came to my notice was a dramatic one.

A man on the high level bridge in Edmonton, about to commit suicide, was forcibly restrained by a young boy who had taken a midnight walk over the bridge "under guidance" as they say. In three months the man was restored to mental and physical health, had lost the desire for liquor, and had his old job given back to him. This case impressed me greatly. It was merely one of many.

TEMPERANCE WORKER

I have been a temperance worker all my life. I have, like many other women, spoken, written, reasoned, entreated, studied charts and diagrams, made house-to-house canvasses, secured names on petitions and had bills amended in parliament. Yet there is not much to show for all this expenditure of energy. People are drinking now who did not drink ten years ago. Young people are exposed to its temptation in a way now that causes all decent people much concern. Accidents directly connected with drinking are increasing so fast that even the liquor people and brewers are concerned. They foresee a great upheaval of indignation which will be bad for their business. And besides that, there are some kindly disposed men among them, who are honestly concerned for public safety.

We are in a bad way, with all our progress in science, and great advances in invention. Our spiritual progress has lagged far behind our mechanical progress—and unless we find the remedy, we will be like the clever locksmith who locked himself out of his own house. Man will be destroyed by his own inventions.

DOING GREAT WORK

The churches are doing a great work, but not great enough. We need a united forward movement, and I believe the Oxford Groups are giving it. Being composed of human beings—they no doubt make mistakes. Beverley Baxter has done them good service in pointing out some of these. I think he is wrong however in saying that Dr. Buchman should render an account of [illegible] money received and spent. Dr. Buchman and his followers make no appeal for money. It comes. God touches the hearts of people and they supply the money with no thought of seeing their names on subscription lists. Money, social position, mean but little to these people. In the fellowship of the Group all are equal.

I believe that they have the same attitude that Christ had to these things. In the presence of the great issues of life the lesser things die out.

SEEM TO BE POWERLESS

We are dwelling in the midst of alarms. War in Spain, China, Japan, strikes, lock-outs. Poverty in the midst of plenty. Everyone knows that these things should not be. But we seem to be powerless to prevent them, yet we know God must have a remedy for them, and it is our business to find it.

Individuals are praying; the churches are working but it is the Oxford Group which has launched a world-wide movement in co-operation with every other human agency to bring in that new day when God will control the affairs of men everywhere, and wars will cease and peace and plenty reign.

Already there are definite signs of a great awakening. The President of the Norwegian Parliament says a new illumination has come to his country. The Danish National newspaper says, "a spiritual revolution is under way in Denmark." The head of a great industrial corporation was "changed" at a house party and seventy thousand employees have had their wages raised.

So what difference does it make if Margaret Rawlings with "her cold, contemptuous beauty" and in "her autumn tinted voice" did criticize the members for laying bare their souls in public.

In the matter of criticism the Oxford Group has fared very well. They draw their supporters from every religious faith or none at all. Their doctrine is a very simple one. They do not enter into competition with any church, nor offend any creed.

The severest criticism comes from the fact that they live at good hotels, dress for dinner, and travel first class. People commenting on this remind us that this expenditure would relieve cases of distress and poverty. There is a tendency in our minds to associate holy living with poverty, and people as a rule like to have religion remain obscure and humble, modest, unobtrusive, and slightly apologetic.

DIFFERENT VIEWPOINT

The followers of Dr. Buchman have a different viewpoint, a wider vision. I quote from Dr. Buchman's radio address, of just a year ago.

"A new illumination must come to the world. Everyone can get light today, if he makes contact with a power station, and it is just as practical to make contact with God. Steinmetz, one of the greatest scientists foresaw this when he said that the next great discovery will be in the realm of the spiritual. What we need is a net-work of live wires around the world, receiving God's guidance. This is the new philosophy of living, whereby the Cross of Christ will redeem the world."

RESIGNATION OF GOVERNMENT IS DEMANDED

Disallowance by Ottawa is Commended in Red Deer Resolution

Exclusive to Edmonton Bulletin

RED DEER, Sept. 18—Fourteen to sixteen hundred people from all parts of Central Alberta attended a mass protest meeting under the auspices of the People's League of Alberta in the Red Deer arena on Friday evening.

The addresses of the four speakers were broadcast. The meeting was orderly and all speakers received a sympathetic hearing. J. R. Mclure, of Red Deer, was chairman.

Three resolutions were passed by the meeting. The first protesting against the policies of the present government of Alberta, demanded the resignation of that body.

FORGET POLITICS

The second was: "Be it resolved that in view of the crisis facing the province this meeting urges all citizens of Alberta, regardless of previous political affiliations, to unite to elect a government that will represent the interest of all classes in the community."

The wording of the third resolution was: "Be it resolved that this meeting goes on record as commending the Dominion government for its action in the disallowance of the legislation passed by this government."

ALL CARRIED

After reading of each resolution by the chairman a standing vote was called for with the result that the resolutions were carried with only seven or eight persons standing as opposed to them.

Speakers heard during the meeting were D. M. Duggan, of Edmonton, Conservative M.L.A.; Alfred Speakman, ex-U.F.A. M.P. for Red Deer; Jos. T. Shaw, K.C., of Calgary, former Liberal M.P., and the chairman, J. R. Mclure. R. C. Drew, of Calgary, secretary of the People's League of Alberta, was also on the platform.

His Death Starts War

commander of a Japanese navy unit, whose death is said to have started the present undeclared war between China and Japan. Oyama and his seaman chauffeur, Yozo Saito, were shot to death as they rode in their automobile past a group of Chinese soldiers at Shanghai. Subsequent inquiry by both China and Japan led to the present war now raging in north and east China and which has claimed many lives. The shooting of the Japanese lieutenant took place August 9.

A modern weather station, fully equipped will be in readiness in the upper floor of the Edmonton airport hangar by the end of next week, according to D. C. Archibald, Toronto, superintendent of Western Airways weather forecasting service, who is here to oversee the setting up of the new equipment.

With arrival of a shipment of equipment from Toronto on Monday, the local station will have everything required for weather observation. The station will not be a forecast centre, the forecasting being done from stations at Winnipeg and Vancouver.

UP TO DATE GADGETS

A complete set of thermometers, wet and dry bulb for determining humidity and dew point, and maximum and minimum thermometers, a rain gauge, a mercurial and recording barometer, an anemometer, or recording wind gauge at a height of fifty feet above the ground, and hydrogen-filled pilot balloons for determining the velocity and direction of the wind at different levels are all being set up at the weather station.

Bethumne Vanderberg, a graduate of the University of Alberta, is to be in charge of the station, and the second in command is to be R. F. Brinkman. Mr. Archibald, who organized the weather service for the prairie air mail some years ago, is to remain in the city until the station is completed and running smoothly.

Weather reports from the whole of North America will be sent daily to the local station over special C.P.R. teletype machines with weather symbol keyboards, the machines being connected with a circuit to Lethbridge, and circuits from Lethbridge to Winnipeg and from Lethbridge to Vancouver.

WEATHER MAPS

Before the end of the year the making of weather maps will be carried on at the local station, and at a later date some more important equipment will be installed.

Weather stations at Lower Post, B.C., and Fort Nelson, B.C., are now being completed, and weather observations taken there will be transmitted to the local airport station by United Air Transport radio operators at these points. The most important station in Alberta will be situated at Lethbridge, while Calgary will also have a station.

WICKHAM STEED BACHELOR AT 65 WALKS TO ALTAR

NORTH LEIGH, Oxfordshire, Sept. 18.—Wickham Steed, former editor of the Times and of the Review of Reviews, was married Thursday to Miss Violet Mason, daughter of the late James Francis Mason and Lady Evelyn Mason.

Steed, who is 65 and until yesterday a bachelor, at present is lecturer on Central European history at King's College, London. He was editor of the Times from 1919 to 1922, and in 1923 took over the Review of Reviews, the magazine founded by W. T. Stead.

The bride's father was Conservative member of parliament for Windsor from 1905 to 1918. He left unsettled property of £1,116,448 ($5,536,317). Her mother is a sister of the Earl of Crawford.

STAR, Sept. 18.—The interior of the Ukrainian National hall at Skaro is now being finished with finishing lumber. The building is being wired for an electric lighting plant, and it is expected that the work will be completed by the end of the month.

Oil Subvention Will Be Asked Of Sir Edward

CALGARY, Sept. 18—Alberta oil producers, who are investigating the possibility of obtaining a subvention on shipments to eastern Canada, will meet Sir Edward Beatty, president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, here next Monday.

The meeting with Sir Edward will follow a conference with T. A. Crerar, federal minister of the interior, at Banff, during the week-end.

Arrangements for the conferences with Sir Edward and Mr. Crerar are being made by C. C. Campbell, chairman of the investigating committee of the newly formed Petroleum Producers' Association.

Sir Henry Cole of England is credited with having sent the first Christmas cards. He had them designed by J. C. Horsley of the Royal Academy of Arts, in 1846.

FORMER CALGARY MINISTER DIES

CALGARY, Sept. 18.—News reached Calgary this week of the death of the Reverend George H. Hogbin, D.D., who for many years occupied a prominent position in the city, both in church and Masonic circles.

Born in England he came out to this country some 47 years ago, going first to Prince Albert to take the position of school master in Emmanuel College.

In 1884 he was ordained both deacon and priest by the late Bishop [illegible] and placed in charge of the parish of North Battleford.

In 1886 when the Indian Industrial school was erected by the government on land east of Battleford, Rev. Mr. Hogbin was appointed principal. This position he held until December, 1907, when [illegible] was closed owing to the [illegible] of the Indians to allow their [illegible] to leave the reservation. There are many Indians on the Blackfoot, Blood, Peigan and Sarcee reserves today who owe a great deal to the influence of Mr. and Mrs. Hogbin.

During the years he acted as principal of the school he also acted as incumbent of the two parishes [illegible] and St. Paul's, Fish Creek.

ANNIVERSARIES ARE CELEBRATED

Interesting anniversaries are at hand. Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, who [illegible] London, England, to a [illegible] charge, is being honored on the approaching 60th anniversary of his first sermon. He was only 13 when it was delivered. The late Dwight L. Moody is to be remembered on the 100th anniversary of his birth. It will be observed in all lands. Great Britain [illegible] interested. The National Council of Churches have [illegible] meeting in Albert Hall [illegible] services in Hyde Park. The name of George Whitefield is also being honored. On last August 8, 200 years had passed since he, as a boy-parson, "shook London." He had been ordained a deacon in the Anglican Church and travelled by stagecoach from Oxford to take an afternoon service in Bishopsgate church, for a friend who belonged to the "Holy Club." The story of his visit to America with John Wesley and later remarkable preaching triumphs in England is being told. Among his hearers David Hume, David Garrick, Lord Chesterfield and the Prince of Wales were frequently found.

New Minister Is at Vegreville

VEGREVILLE, Sept. 18.—At the Presbyterian church on Sunday evening service 7.30, Rev. Mr. Blackburn will preach. For some years Mr. Blackburn has ministered to an important charge in Medicine Hat with great success and he carries with him to Vegreville the highest regard of the people and press of the south. A cordial invitation is extended to all to hear the new minister to Vegreville.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

At all Christian Science churches next Sunday the subject of the Lesson-Sermon will be "Matter." The following is one of the Scriptural quotations contained in the Lesson-Sermon: "Therefore I say unto you, take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment" (Matthew 6:25). One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is as follows (page 62): "We must not attribute more and more intelligence to matter, but less and less, if we would be wise and healthy. The divine Mind, which forms the bud and blossom, will care for the human body, even as it clothes the lily; but let no mortal interfere with God's government by thrusting in the laws of erring, human concepts."

GRACE LUTHERAN WORKERS MEET

Thirty-five senior young people of Grace Lutheran church gathered for their first fall meeting on Sunday evening at their new parish hall on 107 street. In the special service Rev. H. J. Boettcher preached on the words: "Be Ready to Do Every Good Work." Candidate Krueger and Val Kulak spoke on phases of the Walther League program of Christian service. Tillie Enders addressed the gathering on the Walther League program of Christian Knowledge. Refreshments were served by Helen Geistlinger and Katie Lutz. Preparations were made for the first regular meeting on coming Thursday evening.

Hon. W. A. Fallow Impressed With Trip Into North

Impressed with the "immenseness" of the great north country and the possibilities for commercial and industrial development, Hon W. A. Fallow, minister of public works, on his return from a flying visit which took him over a 2,500 mile stretch in two days, declared that "we have got to open that country up—it is the biggest thing yet."

The minister spent 15 hours in the air during his two days visit

He came down long enough to take a motor car trip over the portage from Smith to Fitzgerald and pronounced the road in first class shape, as he was able to travel 40 miles an hour over it, although the two and a half miles in the North West Territories failed to come up to the standard of the test of it

He inspected the proposed Berwyn to Mackenzie river highway route and found that there were no engineering problems involved Also there were no engineering problems on the Whitecourt-Sturgeon Lake highway, which was in good shape

"There has got to be something done about the McMurray-Stony Island highway," he said. This project was urged by the minister on the Dominion government last year, but no action was taken. He declared that this highway ought to be built on the west side of the Athabasca as on the east side there were deep ravines, some as deep as 400 feet which made construction difficult.

TECHNOCRACY WILL RUN ITS OWN AFFAIRS

Howard Scott Terms Communism "Too Bourgeois" For America

Technocracy will take orders neither from Rome, Moscow or Berlin, Howard Scott, of New York, director-in-chief of Technocracy Inc., told a large audience in the Empire theatre Friday night when lecturing on "America's Tomorrow," the second of his two local addresses.

"Communism is too bourgeois and respectable to suit the needs of this continent," he said.

"We have unique problems and special opportunities of our own on this continent, and we will have to meet them in our own particular way. External direction or foreign dictation will not do for us."

TRAINED TECHNOLOGISTS

When Technocracy comes into operation, society's industrial welfare will be looked after by a personnel of trained technologists less in number than those now engaged in political activity in the United States.

"By eliminating all 'rackets,' we will be able to give men and women a more abundant and happy life by employing fewer people than now clutter up the political services of the United States alone," he argued.

Division of society's work among ninety or a hundred special services will secure this desired result, he contended.

Joining of the United States in any war in the immediate future would facilitate rather than retard the approach of the Technate, because conflict would stimulate the technological development of society.

PARTY IS DEAD

"The Republican party, like the Conservatives in Canada, is dead. It was buried after the last election. But the elephant will have to roll over soon to make room for the Democratic jackass," Mr. Scott declared amid laughter.

Mr. Scott was kept answering questions far into the night by the interested audience, despite his assertion that "he was not up to usual form," because of illness. Captain G. D. Koe, field organizer for Technocracy Inc, was chairman.

BEATTY WILL ARRIVE HERE NEXT TUESDAY

Sir Edward Beatty, K.C., president of the Canadian Pacific Railway, will arrive in Edmonton Tuesday, Sept. 21, at 4 p.m., for an inspection of company offices and activities prior to leaving with J. M MacArthur, general manager of the Northern Alberta Railways, for a trip over the northern transportation system the same night.

S. J. Hungerford and Sir Edward Beatty, heads of Canada's two great railway systems, alternate as presidents of the N. A. R. every other year. Sir Edward is present head of the northern route.

The C. P. R. president will reach Edmonton Tuesday at 4 p.m. in his special train from Calgary and leave late that night for his northern trip.

He will be in Calgary Sunday night. Members of his party who will accompany him to Edmonton have not yet been announced, local company officials declared.

Sir Edward Beatty is now making his annual inspection trip over company lines. He spoke recently on the challenge to statesmanship presented by Canada's railway problem at the Chamber of Commerce convention at Vancouver.

The railway president will return to Edmonton from the north Saturday morning, Sept. 25. He will go east the same day at 3 35 p.m. via Lloydminster.

Local officials said that details of the program to be arranged for Sir Edward Beatty during his brief stay here have not yet been concluded.

The Inquiring Reporter

After watching autos during the rush hours wind themselves around the centre of down-town street intersections, in a whirlpool of bleating horns and nudging bumpers, The Bulletin's Inquiring Reporter held up traffic with this question: "Do you think we need more traffic lights in the city?". The replies were:

MAYOR JOSEPH A. CLARKE: There is no need at present for additional traffic lights in the city, and besides, the lights are too expensive to be bought at this time.

POLICE CHIEF A. G. SHUTE: Of course, more lights would facilitate the handling of heavy traffic, but the cost of the equipment is prohibitive as far as this city is concerned.

ORVAL MAXWELL, university student: We certainly do need more traffic lights in the city, particularly on busy corners as well as the intersections near the McLeod building and the Eaton's store. There are frequent tie-ups in traffic at those corners.

SID GIRARD, taxi driver: "I think the city could get along without any traffic lights at all. The street cars at First and Jasper barge into the traffic stream and tie up the proceedings anyway, so there might as well be no lights. The same would apply to any other corner where street cars make right angle turns.

Police Court

Charge of vagrancy against James L. Dandy, companion of Ellison Terreberry, Ontario youth who is in the Royal Alexandra hospital here recoving from a gun shot wound received when he fled from a police officer in North Edmonton last week, was withdrawn at the request of the crown when Dandy appeared in police court Saturday. Police state that they are satisfied that Dandy's story that he and Terreberry had just got off a freight and were in search of work, is truthful, they said.

Pleading guilty to a charge of vagrancy middle-aged Morris Grant was given six hours to get out of Edmonton. If he remains he will serve six months in Fort Saskatchewan jail

Supplies Flying To Russ Search

More than 500 pounds of supplies for use in the search for the missing Russian fliers will leave the city on Monday in a United Transport plane piloted by Ted Field. The supplies will be flown to Whitehorse, where a Pan-American plane will pick up the cargo and take it to Fairbanks, Alaska.

U.A.T. also reported its Ford tri-motor being overhauled at Cooking Lake, one new engine and one overhauled engine being installed

Thugs Obtain Small Cash Loot In Store At Leslieville, Alta.

Series of Robberies in Edmonton and District Bring Action

Thugs broke into the Mercantile Store in Leslieville, a hamlet near Rock Mountain House, 150 miles south-west of Edmonton, during Friday night, blasted the safe to pieces with nitro-glycerine, and looted it of about $8 which it contained. It is believed to be the work of the same gang which has pulled three other jobs in the last two days. Royal Canadian Mounted Police are investigating.

Alarmed by the activities of safecrackers who netted themselves $2,000 in a "job" at Bittern Lake Wednesday night, and an unstated amount in two more jobs at Clyde Thursday night, besides the Leslieville robbery, Royal Canadian Mounted Police have joined forces with city detectives in an effort to apprehend the gang believed to be responsible for the crimes.

The fact that Clyde is about 60 miles north of Edmonton and Bittern Lake is midway between Wetaskiwin and Camrose, has led police to believe that the headquarters of the gang is in Edmonton and that they are in possession of an auto with which they dash out on their nocturnal raids

Police are investigating the possibility that the cracking of the safe in the Bell Gasoline company's office in Edmonton last Friday, which netted thugs $200, was the work of the same gang.

WORKED WITH SKILL

In the Bell Company crime the dial was knocked off the safe, the spindle punched and the tumblers pulled back by mechanical means, while the country jobs were all "blasts," however, all the crimes were characterized by skill which linked them as the probable work of the same mechanics.

At Bittern Lake, Wednesday night, the thugs used "soup" to blast two doors off a "burglar proof" safe in the store of C. P. C. Roper, from which they took $2,000 in cash.

SAFES WERE "SOUPED"

At Clyde Thursday night, after cutting electric light wires, they "souped" safes in Robinson's General Store and in Burrows Hardware and looted the till in the Alberta Lumber company office From the lumber company they got only two cents, but from the others took an unstated amount of currency and cheques.

Meanwhile city detectives are checking up on the whereabouts and activities of suspects in Edmonton, Mounted Police are maintaining a patrol on all trunk roads leading out of Edmonton, and elevator agents, storekeepers, and others in the country districts who find themselves forced to keep large accounts of cash on hand are warned to take all possible precautions against burglary

SEPTEMBER HEAT NEARING RECORD

There's happiness abroad these days in the fields, around the lakes and along the boulevards, as old man sunshine continues to make a 1937 bid for fame in northern and central Alberta. As yet he has still a little farther to go to beat his record in 1898 when he hit a high in September of 90 degrees, an 87 in 1932 or an 89 in 1934. The best he could do yesterday was 84, which was warm enough for most people.

But in the frosty bracket, in which he has made no recording as yet this month, he has outstriped himself since 1919. Last year the low for the month was 25

From the high of 84 yesterday the red line dropped to 45 at 4 a.m. Saturday and perked up to 63 at 9 a.m

The forecast for Alberta is continued warm today and Sunday with little change in temperature

The near north is enjoying clear skies with the exception of an eastern portion of the province in the McMurray area, where it is reported cloudy, but no rain

COMMERCE PARTY GOES TO REGINA

"I want to thank Edmonton for the gracious hospitality and cordial welcome extended to our group, declared Hon R. C. Mathews, immediate past president of the Chamber of Commerce and head of the local party

DEEPLY GRATEFUL

"In all our trip across Canada, we have received nothing comparable to the warmth of this welcome and I am confident I am speaking for every member of the party when I say we are deeply grateful."

Following the luncheon meeting at the Macdonald hotel Friday at which Premier William Aberhart and P. W. Donner, English M.P. were guest speakers, the visiting business executives were taken for a drive through the city and adjoining areas by members of the Edmonton Chamber

Feature of their day's stay was a reception tendered them by the United Farm Women of Horse Hills community Friday evening

Members of the Canadian Chamber of Commerce were guests at the community hall at a special "rural dinner." Prominent farmers of the district were present. Informal conversation about agricultural problems took place, but no formal addresses were made

"It was simply a case of having city and country get together for a friendly evening," said John Blue, secretary of the Edmonton Association, who described the Horse Hill meeting as a success

Many members of the local chamber accompanied the visitors to their special train as it left late Friday

In charge of serving and catering at the Horse Hills supper were Miss Adele Irving, Mrs. Reg. Horner Mrs. C. West, Mrs. F. R. Darley Mrs. A. H. Corbett, Mrs. E. W. Corbett, Mrs. W. G. Clark, Miss Marie MacLean, Miss Marjorie E. Lowe Miss Joan Clark, Miss Ethne Corbett, Mrs. Lavinia Patton, Mrs. Ed Broder, Miss N. May, Miss Mary Stickney, Miss Martha Yoachem Mrs. George Stanlake, Miss C. Clark Mrs. T. Weekes, Mrs. J. Appleby, Mrs. G. Hutton, Mrs. G. West Mrs. W. L. Sharp, Mrs. J. Clarke Mrs. W. B. Borgwardt

A meeting of the Property and Finance Committee of the Edmonton Public School Board will be held in the Board room at the Civic block on Tuesday, September 21, at 8 p.m

Fur Trade Chief Is Here From Arctic

After spending winter and early part of the summer covering his territory as Western Arctic superintendent of the Hudson's Bay company's fur trade, A. Copeland arrived here Friday evening from Coppermine in a Canadian Airways plane, piloted by Jack Wright.

Mr. Copeland has little to report on northern fur conditions and spent Saturday attending to company business in the city, prior to leaving for the fur trade headquarters at Winnipeg.

Looking Them Over

By Jack Kelly

Action at Once

Now or Never

Small Kills

EDMONTON'S hockey situation still hogs the spotlight. Just one week from Sunday, representatives of the senior clubs here will have to go to Calgary and talk turkey to the southern clubs if we are to be included in a senior loop with Drumheller, Olds and Calgary. At this meeting Edmonton must be prepared to step up and say exactly what it is going to do in the puck-chasing business this winter—give tentative lineups and know what it can or can not do from a financial angle.

At the moment it is impossible for either the Dominions or Superiors to even guess as to where they stand owing to the fact that the city has not yet decided on who it will turn the Arena over to. This is a matter of vital importance to both senior clubs, since they must find out what percentage they will have to pay for the arena before they can tell what they can do in the matter of players and travelling.

With only a week left to carry out a lot of negotiations on which the success or failure of hockey here this winter may depend, there seems to be no reason why the city commissioners can not reach a decision at once and let the team managers get busy. Any more delay over the leasing of the Arena may possibly result in Edmonton being frozen out of hockey. That is something that the city cannot afford to take a chance on in view of its $40,000 investment in artificial ice and arena alterations.

Business Men Not Providing Jobs

IT is hard for the average person to concentrate on hockey in summer weather, but unfortunately it is now that the groundwork for this season's hockey here must be laid. Recently the Junior Chamber of Commerce endorsed an undertaking to find jobs for eight or nine hockey players—local boys who would otherwise be going to other points for the coming winter.

The Senior Chamber of Commerce agreed to co-operate in providing these jobs, yet to date nothing has been done. October 15 is the last day on which players can move from one place to another and still be eligible for hockey. Several of our best seniors of last year now have offers before them to go elsewhere—but they would prefer to stay here if they can get any sort of regular job at all.

The future of Edmonton senior hockey is now squarely on the shoulders of business men here. Surely in a city of 85,000 population there are seven or eight jobs for energetic young fellows who were born and raised here and want to stay here. These players are not asking for big salaries and they are not looking for soft jobs. They do of course expect to get off from time to time when they have to travel.

These players are very likely to prove real assets to any firm giving them a break. I could name half a dozen who were given jobs in bygone years as a sporting gesture who have turned out to be among the most efficient men the firm has.

The urgency of the situation can not be over-emphasized. Something must be done this coming week, or Edmonton hockey and our artificial ice investment is going to take an awful sock on the chin.

Limit Bags of Ducks Scarce

THE exceptionally fine weather that has prevailed since the opening of the duck shooting season has given the birds one of the best breaks they have had in years. With lakes as calm as a mirror, decoys and blinds have netted hunters little or nothing. This balmy weather has also made the birds very picky about the grain fields they select for their morning and evening meals.

I hear that on opening day the Royal Canadian Mounted Police details stopped something like 265 cars of hunters coming into Edmonton to check on bag limits and permits. Out of this number it is said there was not a single hunter with his limit of 12 birds.

The kill here is likely to be very light this season. None of northern ducks have come down yet, and by the time they do arrive it is more than likely that threshing will be completed if the present weather holds. Without grain fields to lure them, the huge northern flocks will barely pause in central Alberta before heading on southward.

Keen Baseball Battle Sure At Renfrew Park on Sunday

The Army and Navy Cardinals and the North Edmonton Belmonts will clash in the fourth game of the Senior Baseball League finals at Boyle street park Sunday afternoon at 3.00 o'clock.

The Cardinals boast a two to one lead in games won so far in the four of seven series. The Cards won the first and second games by 9-1 and 1-0 counts, while the Belmonts came back strong in the third encounter to take an 8-6 verdict.

While the Army and Navy crew is intent on taking a commanding lead tomorrow, the Belmonts are equally determined and confident of evening up the series.

The Cardinals are expected to send in their ace chucker in the person of Manager Ralph Morgan, who has already chalked up a playoff victory.

The Belmonts will probably send out Tommy Scottweld to oppose Morgan. While Scottweld hasn't hurled during the present playoff series he is said in top shape and should be able to turn in a smart performance for the North Edmonton crew.

Both teams can flash smart fielding and heavy clouting when in top form and a fine baseball tussle should be dished out for patrons.

John Ducey and George Green will umpire.

Rabbit is Free For Major Berth

MONTREAL, Sept. 18.—Between mouthfuls of food at a drug store lunch counter, "Rabbit" Maranville swiveled about on a high stool, looked a questioner in the eye, and said today he was "free to shoot for a higher job" if any was offered him.

The scrappy, little fellow, who made his share of baseball history in 23 seasons in the big time, said his contract with Montreal Royals expired this year and "there's nothing to stand in the way of my taking a big league managerial post if it's offered me."

Wallis Returning To Inglewood Club

Jack Wallis, the popular and capable pro who proved so efficient last season, will again return to the Inglewood Badminton club for the coming season, it was announced last night by J. H. Wildman, president of the board of directors of the club.

Wallis is leaving Toronto Oct. 6 for Edmonton and will start his duties at Inglewood on Oct. 15. Arrangements are now being completed for what promises to be another successful season and prospective members are urged to get their memberships at once.

Walsh-Cuthbert Golf Challengers

Leigh Walsh and Jack Cuthbert will be the challengers for the Eaton golf trophy held by Jam Mountifield and Doug Kilburn this week. The challengers are from the Calgary Golf and Country club and should provide a serious threat.

Barr, who was scheduled to come this weekend with Herb Black, can not make the trip since he must play in the final of Calgary open on Sunday. He is leading in this event by a one-stroke margin.

The trophy game here will start at around 2:00 p.m. at the Edmonton Golf and Country club.

Gridders To Give Million in Taxes

WASHINGTON, Sept. 18. — Even before any major team boots the first kick-off, it's simple to forecast accurately that the big winner this football season will be the United States treasury.

It'll take a long autumn of Saturday scuffles to decide the national championship. But win or lose, rain or shine, snow or sleet, Uncle Sam can't lose. Every gridiron season about $1,000,000 is collected from the 10 per cent federal amusement tax.

CALGARY HOST TO RIDER GRID SQUAD TODAY

Both Teams Without One Major Star

CALGARY, Sept. 18. — Regina Roughriders, beaten by a 4-1 score in their first game of the year against Calgary Bronks, will attempt today to maintain the record of visiting teams in the Western Canada Interprovincial Rugby Union. In the three conference games played this fall, not a single home team has been victorious.

Although one star of each aggregation will be missing from the match, both squads expect to field their strongest team of the year. Bronks were given a slight edge.

Roughriders will take the field without the services of their star plunger, Fred Ray, still out with a pre-season groin injury. Bronks, who lost an 11-1 decision to Winnipeg a week ago with a badly-crippled outfit, will be at full strength except for Larry Haynes, regular left end.

NEWARK BRUINS COAST TO FINAL

SYRACUSE, N.Y., Sept. 18. — Newark's "wonder team" reached the International Baseball league's playdown finals last night by whipping Syracuse Chiefs 3-1 for a sweep of the four-game semi-final series.

Featuring a five-hit pitching performance by Phil Russo, a rookie from Long Island, and Flash Gordon's third homer of the series, the Bears breezed in with the series clinched with the same ease with which they took the regular season pennant by 25 1-2 games.

The game and series victory qualified the Bears to meet the winner of the Baltimore-Montreal semi-final in the league finals.

Snead Cracks Par

CLEVELAND, Sept. 18.—"Slamin' Sam" Snead of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., shot a par-shattering 68 Friday to gain a two-stroke edge over the field at the end of the first round of the 37th annual Western United States open golf championship.

On his heels were Dick Metz of Chicago, and Jimmy Thompson from Shawnee-on-Delaware, who fashioned sub-par 70's.

Title Playoff

The first of the Juvenile league's title series will be played at Renfrew Park starting at 12:30 noon on Sunday with Riverdale Athletics and Union Busses the contending clubs. These clubs have been playing smart baseball and Sunday's game is expected to produce a battle well worth seeing.

Car Fires Straw: Straw Fires Car

RESTON, Mann., Sept. 18.—J. W. Guthrie's automobile was destroyed by fire here.

Mr. Guthrie parked his car among a lot of straw on the farm of T. Ashcroft. When he started the motor to drive away, the car's exhaust fired the straw. Before the car could be moved the fire spread from the straw to the car, which was wrecked.

Grad Machine to Begin Fall Drills Next Week

Members of last year's Commercial Grads, Gradettes and Comets, who have been itching to get a basketball into their hands once more, will have their chance early next week according to an announcement made by the management of all three organizations last night.

On Monday night, beginning at 8 o'clock, the members of last year's Grads and Gradettes who played on the provincial intermediate team, will hold a preliminary workout at the Normal school, while those girls who played on the second Gradette team, plus those who worked out under the direction of Ken Shaw last season, will gather at Commercial High at the same hour. Coaches Percy Page and Arnold Henderson will have charge of the combined Grad-Gradette workout, while Coach Clare Hollingsworth will be in charge of the practice at Commercial. Details as to this year's activities, such as the personnel of the teams, as well as nights and hours of practice, will be given out on Monday.

While these practices are not restricted to any particular group of girls, a change has been felt necessary from that of last year. Formerly, invitations were extended to any girl in the city to try out for a place on one of the three teams, but this open invitation resulted in scores of girls reporting for practice who were much too immature to catch a place on even the youngest team. This year the workouts will be confined to those girls who played a sufficiently high calibre of basketball to entitle them to a trial with one of the Commercial groups. Girls who are doubtful as to their ability should consult one of the above-mentioned coaches before reporting for practice.

The Grads' first captain, Mrs. R. Tait, of Vancouver, formerly Winnie Martin, is now in Edmonton on a visit and will be on hand for the Monday practice to see how the new machine compares with the famous pioneers she piloted.

HAMILTON, Sept. 17 — Huck Welch, kicking and running halfback star, announced today he would play with Hamilton Tigers this season in the Big Four football campaign. Previously the Tiger ace had said he would retire.

INDIANS GAIN SPEEDY BACKS FOR BIG FOUR

Montreal Wingline Is Weak This Season

MONTREAL, Sept. 18.—Football fates have provided Johnny Ferraro with the backfield he prayed for and, if for no other reason than that, he expects to lead Montreal Indians somewhere in particular this fall in the Interprovincial Union football race. But the wingline—well, it isn't a dream-line.

A heavy-footed backfield was as good reason as any why Indians failed to win the 1936 big four title. That has been corrected, with Ferraro, Oke Olsen and Pat Ryan, banned by the "No import" rule a year ago, ready to play alongside Abe Eliowitz, who had too much work to do it all properly last season.

Ferraro has lost Freddy Wigle, All-Eastern snap, and he has only one experienced outside wing, Len Hutton. At snap and outside lie his major problems.

Elsewhere along the line the situation is fairly sound, though the coach still is experimenting with middle wing position, where Glenn Brown is a certainty on one side. When veteran George Pigeon, one of the best insides in the business, failed to report, Ferraro shifted Bill Davies to this spot.

Davies was one of the most consistent and heaviest hitting plungers in 1936. As alternatives, Ferraro has Harry Smith, a former intermediate, and is toying with the idea of shifting Dave Ryan from snap.

WINNIPEG BEATS CONCORDIA TEAM

WINNIPEG, Sept. 18.—Fritz Hanson, playing some of the most sensational football of his career, galloped twice through the Concordia college team to score two touchdowns and give Winnipeg Blue Bombers a 14-0 victory Friday night in an exhibition game under floodlights here. United States rules prevailed.

In the first quarter the former North Dakota state star picked up a Concordia kick on his own 25 yard line. Hemmed in by the college players from Moorhead, Minn., he headed back to his own goal line and then broke down the left side of the field for a touchdown, converted.

Basketball Plans New Card System

VANCOUVER, Sept. 18.—A new system of registration of Canada's basketball players, giving a definition of an amateur and empowering the branches of the Canadian Amateur Basketball association to pass upon the amateur status of players, will be presented here today to the British Columbia Amateur Basketball association's annual meeting.

Walter Harwick, president of the C.A.B.A., announced last night he had drafted the system and sent copies of it to all branches of the C.A.B.A. It would supplant the former system of registering under the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada. It follows severance of relations last June between the two bodies.

K. of C. Team Plays Consols Sunday

On Sunday, Sept. 19, at Coronation Park (old Diamond Park) the Edmonton British Consols, monarchs of Alberta softball, will meet the Knights of Columbus, champions of the Fraternal league, in a game billed to start at 2:00 p.m.

This should prove to be a red-hot tussle as the Knights of Columbus have been itching for this chance to play the highly-touted Consols.

3 1-2 Games Still Separate New York From Chicago Cubs

Vicious Bees and Friendly Pirates Largely Responsible for Giants' Present Lead In National Loop

NEW YORK, Sept. 18.—Those buzzing Boston Bees, Bill McKechnie's pesky outfit which has only an outside chance of winding up in the first division, are playing a decisive part in determining whether Chicago or New York will take the National League pennant. Both teams failed to improve their positions in Friday's games. The Cubs trimmed Philadelphia 10-2, while the Giants defeated Cincinnati 6-3. This leaves the New Yorkers still with a 3½ game lead.

It was largely the savage attack from the second division Boston Bees, however, that put Chicago this far behind, and the Giants are thanking the schedule makers for arranging things so that the Bees were winding up their fixture with the Cubs at the same time as Terry and his crew were hammering their Pittsburgh cousins around.

On their return home to the Polo Grounds, the Giants will have two games, however, against the Boston outfit and Chicago is hoping that Bees will be victorious enough to take them both. It is a faint hope, however.

Chicago has another game at home today against Philadelphia. Then on Sunday and Monday they are hosts to the sixth place Dodgers. This is followed by that series of series—the Giants' three-day stand at Chicago. After this the Cubs go to St. Louis for three games and then to Cincinnati for four games and return to finish the season at home against St. Louis in three games.

The Giants are pennant favorites right now, but Chicago isn't out of the battle yet by any means.

Terriers Win

ORILLIA, Ont., Sept. 18.—Orillia Terriers won the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse association title and the right to advance in the playdowns for the Dominion championships when they defeated Mimico Mountaineers 19-16 last night in the fourth game of a best-of-five series.

PACKERS MEET LETHBRIDGE IN ALBERTA FINAL

Hoping to make a clean sweep of city and provincial girls' softball and baseball championships the Canada Packers tangle with the Lethbridge softball squad, Southern Alberta champions, in the deciding games of the provincial series at Boyle street Sunday afternoon.

The first game will be played at 2:00 p.m. with the second game at 4:00 o'clock.

The Packers will enter the battle favored to cop the provincial title by virtue of a 3-1 victory won over Lethbridge in the southern city recently.

Two rousing softball encounters seem assured with the Lethbridge team determined to even things up in the first game and the Packers out to win in two straight.

Orioles Even Up

MONTREAL, Sept. 18.—Baltimore Orioles packed enough power in their bats last night to even their semi-final International league baseball series with Montreal Royals at a game apiece by winning 9-6, although they played like a bunch of amateurs afield. Four victories will decide the seven-game series.

By breeding pea plants, Mendel discovered that certain characteristics depend on the presence of determining factors, and that the second and later generations of crossbreeds exhibit these characters in definite proportions.

Contract Bridge

By WILLIAM E. McKENNEY

Contract bridge proves even in its terminology the debt that it owes to whist, first of the partnership card games, which gained great popularity both in Europe and America.

North: ♠ A 9 6 ♥ 7 4 2 ♦ J 6 ♣ A Q J 7 3
West: ♠ 8 3 2 ♥ K Q 10 9 ♦ Q 9 5 4 ♣ 8 2
East: ♠ K 7 5 4 ♥ 8 6 5 ♦ 10 8 3 2 ♣ K 6
South (Dealer): ♠ Q J 10 ♥ A J 3 ♦ A K 7 ♣ 10 9 5 4

Rubber—None vulnerable

South	West	North	East
1 N T	Pass	3 ♣	Pass
3 N T.	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead—♥ K — 20

One of the terms used in bridge, which came to us from whist, is the Bath coup, used to describe the refusal to win the first trick in a suit, when the opening lead is the king and the declarer holds ace, jack and one small.

While players of bridge may be ignorant of the source of this play and the reason for the unusual name, which has nothing to do with cleanliness, the prime object of the play is not to gain a trick, but more to cause opponents to waste an entry, through forcing them to abandon the lead of the suit.

Some players might prefer a different opening bid, but that is not the question. On the opening lead the deuce was played from dummy, East played the five and when South played the three, it was apparent that East's card was not a signal.

Obviously, to continue hearts would be to play the declarer's game, and West won with the king and returned a heart, South played the jack and West won with the queen and knocked out the ace, but the Bath coup had accomplished its purpose.

Contract Problem
(Solution in next issue)

South is playing a contract of three no trump. When the dummy is spread, he can count eight tricks. Should he try to find his ninth trick in clubs or hearts?

North: ♠ 8 3 ♥ Q 5 4 ♦ K J 2 ♣ Q J 10 9 8
West: (Blind)
East: (Blind)
South (Dealer): ♠ A K ♥ A 7 2 ♦ A Q 9 7 5 ♣ 5 3 2

Duplicate—None vul.

Opener—♠ — 20

The club finesse could now be taken with safety, since, if West held four hearts originally, East could have none to return, and a losing club finesse would not defeat the contract.

PACKERS WIN TITLE; BEAT O.C.'S 16-5

The Packing girls last night went out and trounced the Orange Crush nine by a 16-5 count in a challenge game for the Irving Cline trophy and the city softball championship. The Packers have already won the city senior baseball crown.

There was never any doubt as to the outcome of last night's game played at Boyle street park.

Behind the six-hit pitching of Dorothy Spratt, the Packers collected 14 hits to easily salt the game away. A bevy of about seven Orange Crush errors helped in the debacle.

However, the Crush girls never quit fighting and made valiant attempts to bridge the gap and made things interesting throughout for the Packers and the fans.

Less Butter

HALIFAX, Sept. 18.—The Nova Scotia Department of Agriculture estimated July production of creamery butter in the province at 846,173 pounds this year, as compared with the 859,313 pounds of the same month last year. The decrease was said to be due to the higher consumption of milk and cream and ice-cream throughout the province this season. Butter prices are the highest since 1930.

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C., Sept. 18.—Richmond Homes last night earned the right to meet New Westminster Salmonbellies for the inter-city box league championship by defeating New Westminster Adanaces 15-12 in the third game of a best-of-three series.

Spendlove Crowned With Chair By Ire Patron, First Bout

WHILE Duke Rupenthal's victory over George "Wildcat" Pete in the headline event featured the card, two rousing semi-windups just about stole the show in the Memorial hall wrestling bouts last night.

The highlight of the evening was the "crowning" of Billy Spendlove by an irate customer, who brought down a chair on the Spendlove cranium with a resounding crash when he maltreated young Harvey Hall. The latter won the bout when Spendlove failed to get back into the ring before the end of Referee DeBlick's count.

In the other semi-windup, "Speedy" Franks, a rough and tough hombre, won the decision over the favored Art Belcher in a rousing engagement.

CHAIR EPISODE

The chair episode might have had dire consequences for Mister Spendlove had it not been for the quick action of Chief of Police A. G. Shute and his co-time-keeper, Syd. Bowcott.

Both Spendlove and Hall had a fall to their credit, when the former, disregarding Referee DeBlick's warnings, gripped Hall and flung him out of the ring. He then pounced upon Hall to finish the "kill". But an irate customer, fired by the "injustice of it all", grabbed a loose chair and brought it down on Spendlove's dome. This made Billy very mad indeed and he was all for making "hash" of the bold ring-sider, but Chief Shute and Bowcott quickly came to the rescue and tied Spendlove into a variety of knots.

Through all this Referee DeBlick was counting steadily and when he reached 20, Hall automatically became the winner. This didn't agree with Spendlove's ideas in the least and he clambered back on the mat and for a few minutes went berserk with fists and feet. All to no avail! DeBlick stuck to his guns.

ROUSING MOMENTS

The Wildcat had a bit the upper hand in the first heat and took the fall with a combination arm-bar and leg splits.

Rupenthal came to life with a bang in the second fall and clearly showed Pete to be a "sucker" for a left hook, as he made him describe handsome belly-flops with his porthole wing before pinning him with a body press.

The card was eased off at a bristling pace in the first semi-windup of the evening, when the rough tactics of Speedy Franks prevailed over Art Belcher.

Franks took the first fall after some gouging and cuffing with a body press. While Belcher came back strong to take the second with a tally of slams, he was unable to cope with the rough tactics of Franks in the last heat.

AUTO ACCIDENTS TAKE 1300 TOLL IN CANADA LAST YEAR

Madman's Island

By NARD JONES

CAST OF CHARACTERS

MELITA HOWARD—Kay's roommate and co-adventurer.

PRISCILLA DUNN—The third adventurer.

FORREST BROTHERS and GRANT HARPER—Young scientists whose expedition turned out to be a rare experience.

Yesterday: Showing unusual hospitality, the madman invites Kay and Grant to eat and drink wine. When he returns, soaking wet, after an hour's absence he volunteers to tell them the strange story of this underground home.

CHAPTER XV

"THE story of these rooms?" Harper exclaimed. "We certainly would like to hear it, wouldn't we, Kay?"

She nodded, trying hard to fall into Harper's game of playing for time. And despite her fears, she found herself curious about this strange place beneath the wood and its stranger occupant.

"It is quite a story," the man said. "I do not believe I have ever told it before. But now—now there is no real reason why I should not tell it. Furthermore . . ." (he smiled again in that peculiar way which froze Kay's heart) "it will do no harm to tell it to you two.

"You see," he went on, "many years ago there was a man named DeWitt Montgomery who came here from England. That was before the days of swift transportation—and before people in private cruisers were likely to invade one's privacy. He saw the island during a hunting and fishing trip, and he liked it very much. He brought a group of workmen to build him this underground apartment.

"His theory was that during the daytime he would enjoy the natural beauties of nature above ground. At night, he reasoned, it would make no difference whether he slept above or below ground—an important one—if strangers happened to land here they were likely to find no evidence of occupation.

"The workmen, of course, decided that DeWitt Montgomery was insane. All of them left quickly, as soon as they were finished and paid. One story has it that none ever left at all . . ."

The narrator chuckled, left the fire to settle into one of the big chairs from which he stared at Kay and Harper. "In any event, Montgomery's eccentricities were quickly forgotten. The island was forgotten, too, for it was off the passenger boat lane, and only a few hunters and fishermen saw it.

"So DeWitt Montgomery lived here. For food he planted a garden, made traps, and did some fishing and hunting. Whenever he needed anything from outside he ordered it by mail, going in a canoe to the nearest settlement eight miles south. Sometimes an order would take months to reach him—but he didn't mind. Gradually the place was just about as he wanted it. Not of course, as comfortable as now—because that was a great many years ago. He had no electric lights, no air conditioning."

The man was silent a moment, staring at the two young people before him. Kay stirred uncomfortably, glancing toward Grant Harper. He was sitting easily in the big leather chair, his eyes fixed pleasantly on their "host."

"Please go on," Harper invited.

Slowly the man passed a hand over his face, seemed to resume with an effort. "DeWitt Montgomery was a studious man," he went on, waving an arm toward one of the doors. "I still have his library. Naturally, in a place like this, living by himself, he had a great deal of time for study. He developed many ideas which no doubt, the outside world thought mad. And—this was his crowning achievement—he developed a new religion."

The man paused again, allowing this information to settle in the minds of his listeners. "After all, there is nothing so strange about that. Why should we always accept the religions of the past? Why wasn't DeWitt Montgomery inspired as well as many another? Don't you agree?"

"He must certainly have been a remarkable fellow," answered Harper with well simulated earnestness. "What were the tenets of this religion?"

The narrator sighed. "It would take a long while to explain them. It is a religion not to be taken lightly, not to be learned swiftly as children learn in Sunday school. Suffice it to say that DeWitt Montgomery was chosen to disseminate its good upon this earth.

"He had a well defined plan for doing this. His idea was to teach it to women who would in turn go out and spread its gospel. He chose women for their amenable nature. He chose widows because they were more likely to have done with the ways of the outside world. And he made an effort to obtain widows of wealth so that they would be in a position, independently, to spread the word."

"And was his plan successful?" asked Harper quietly.

The other shook his head. "No . . ." he said. "You see, the women all fell ill. Perhaps it was the rigorous winters of the island. Perhaps some taint in the water, to which DeWitt Montgomery had become immune. At any rate, all died. One by one they came in answer to his advertisements in the English and Australian newspapers—and never left the island."

Kay paled. Involuntarily she gasped out, "You mean that they all—"

"All except one," the man interrupted with strange swiftness. "One returned to England. Unfortunately she had not grasped the meaning of DeWitt Montgomery's teachings. She brought charges against him, claiming that he had inveigled the women into settlements as to their money, then murdered them."

"Do you believe she was right?" asked Harper quietly, reaching for a cigarette from the little table.

The man shrugged. "Who are we to say? After so long a time it would be futile to argue that little point, would it not? Nevertheless the law came to the island to take DeWitt Montgomery into custody. There was a terrific battle, for naturally he had no desire to leave the place he loved so well. But at last he was captured and taken aboard ship.

"The officers did not find his hidden apartment. They foolishly believed that he had destroyed it—and they were interested primarily in his capture, anyhow. DeWitt Montgomery was taken back to England and put into prison. Perhaps you both were too young at the time to remember the newspaper articles. As are all great religious leaders, Montgomery was misunderstood. People insisted in believing that he had tried to operate a love cult. They called him a murderer and a rake and his trial was quick. Yet he escaped death because so little could be proved, and he was committed to life imprisonment.

"You see, I happened to know this story—and in more recent years, when this government put the island up for sale, I bought it. Then I made the improvements which you enjoy, and which you have been so kind to admire."

"Might I ask your name?" suggested Harper.

"Certainly. I am DeWitt Montgomery!"

C.C.F. TO HAVE 40 CANDIDATES ONTARIO VOTE

TORONTO, Sept. 18.—Co-operative Commonwealth Federation leaders today predicted 40 to 45 party candidates would be entered in the October 6 Ontario elections before nomination day, September 29. Now 34 C.C.F. standard bearers are in the lists.

In the last Ontario elections in 1934 the C.C.F. had 37 candidates in the running but only one was elected. Sam Lawrence, lone C.C.F. member in the last legislature, is running again for re-election in Hamilton East, opposed by a Liberal and a Conservative.

John Mitchell, Ontario C.C.F. leader, is seeking election in Waterloo South, where he opposes N. O. Ipel, Liberal, speaker in the last legislature, and a Conservative.

The total candidates of all parties, 12 days before nomination day, stands at 220.

Liberals and Conservatives have almost filled the lists. Each major party have nominated 82. Bringing up the total are the C.C.F. candidates and 22 others of various persuasions including four Independent-Liberals, two Independent-Conservatives and two Communists.

Wheel of Kingsford-Smith Plane Is Found Floating Off the Burma Coast

The tire, floating for nearly two years, was still fully inflated, according to N. M. Andrews, of Moulmein, Burma, who forwarded the picture and details.

A photograph plainly showing the tire factory numerals was forwarded to the B. F. Goodrich Rubber Co. With assistance of the Lockhead Aircraft Corporation, definite proof was established that the parts once belonged on Kingsford-Smith's American airplane.

Kingsford-Smith was believed to have gone down in a severe storm while crossing the Bay of Bengal between Allahabad and Singapore, or to have been lost in jungle country.

The wreckage was taken out of the sea across the Gulf of Martaban from Rangoon, Goodrich was advised.

If You Think Your Brakes Are All Right . . . Read This

IN Memphis . . . as in a growing number of cities, somebody got the idea that many automobile accidents could be prevented if cars were kept in safe operating condition. An ordinance was passed requiring official inspection of motor cars twice a year.

Very few car owners, in Memphis or any place else, knowingly drive their cars with unsafe brakes.

But during the first year, more than half the Memphis cars inspected were found to have faulty brakes. The owners had to have them fixed — and the decrease in accidents in Memphis has been amazing. Fatal accidents dropped more than 14%—at a time when the whole country was showing an increase of 16%.

No matter where you live, you can make motoring safer for yourself and everyone else, by voluntarily having your brakes inspected. In most cases, a simple adjustment will put them in first-class shape.

Mechanical Shape Of Car Paramount To Safe Operation

City and Mounted Police Make Highway Check Of Motor Vehicles

More than 1300 persons were killed and thousands more were scarred and maimed—many for life—in automobile accidents in Canada last year. Every new day adds scores more to the already long list of casualties.

Traffic specialists insist that, under modern traffic conditions, marked by high powered cars, increased touring speeds and heavier traffic, it is imperative that all motorists see that their cars are kept in perfect mechanical condition, especially with regard to brakes, steering apparatus and lights.

In an effort to make the roads safe, city and Mounted Police, throughout Canada and especially in the Edmonton district, have been conducting an inspection of automobiles on the roads.

CONSTANT CHECK

Continued warnings have been issued through the press, and now, in an effort to rid the road of machines which are a menace to life, limb and property, constant check is being maintained on all highways and city traffic lanes.

Police are stopping all cars which have faulty or glaring headlights, or no tail lights, or which look as though their brakes might be faulty. In an effort to make doubly sure, they are picking cars at random on different roads and testing their brakes and lights and giving them a thorough inspection.

"From the results of the tests which we have been conducting all summer, I would say that at least one car in every five on the roads today has faulty brakes," said Constable Ernie Foster, a veteran member of the city traffic squad, when questioned by the Bulletin Friday. "And one car in every four has something broken, worn or missing which makes it a menace to traffic," he said.

MOST IMPORTANT

Most important of all, police state, are brakes, for it is imperative that the driver should have his car under complete control at all times.

Need for good brakes is increased by the fact that there is a lag between the time a driver realizes that he must apply his brakes and the time his muscles respond to the suggestion and apply them. Psychologists have discovered by tests that it takes three-quarters of a second for the average driver to apply his brakes after he has realized that he must do so.

The following chart shows how long it takes to stop a car with good brakes at different speeds.

The first column shows speed in miles per hour; second column, feet per second; third, distance in feet before brakes applied; fourth, distance while brakes working; fifth total distance in feet:

m.p.h	Feet.	Feet.	Feet.	Feet
20	29	22	20	42
30	44	33	51	84
40	59	44	99	143
50	74	55	165	220
60	88	66	251	317
70	103	77	359	436

At 20 miles an hour a car goes 22 feet while the driver is making up his mind to put on his brakes, and at 70 miles per hour this distance is increased to 103 feet. Then, with good brakes, the car will travel an additional 20 feet at 20 miles an hour and 359 feet at 70 miles an hour.

The "sticker" campaign now in progress in Edmonton is being promoted in the interests of public safety. Police state that they will not stop any car carrying a sticker, which may be obtained from any qualified garage or service station. Already more than 3000 automobiles have had their brakes tested and are carrying stickers to show that they "have done their bit" to make the streets safe for motorists and pedestrians.

MOTORCYCLES, DELIVERIES ARE OFFENDERS

Police Are Making Special Plea For Safety in Driving

Sergeant Major A. Riddell, Traffic Head, Asks For Co-operation

Plea to all motorists, motorcyclists and those employing drivers to co-operate with the city police to make Edmonton's streets safe was made Friday by Sergeant-Major Alex. Riddell, head of the traffic department.

Stating that there have been many complaints that motorcyclists have been operating their machines at dangerous speeds and driving recklesssly in traffic, he urged riders of motorcycles to use caution and care in the city.

TWO SUMMONED

Thursday evening members of the traffic squad picked up two cyclists who, they allege, were travelling between 45 and 50 miles per hour along 102 avenue between 124 and 142 streets. Both had girls riding on the pillions. They have been summoned and will appear in police court charged with reckless driving the traffic chief said.

"Edmonton streets must be made safe and we are going to do our best to make them so. All we ask is the co-operation of all in helping us in this task," concluded Sergeant-Major Riddell.

DELIVERIES WARNED

Pea in the interests of public safety was also made by the traffic chief to business concerns operating delivery trucks in the city. "There is a prevailing custom among delivery-men, particularly those operating panel and light deliveries, to speed up their machines near the end of the day," said the traffic chief.

"This results in a danger to the public, for the evening is one time that all should drive with special care. In many cases I feel that the drivers are encouraged by their employers. If we do not receive co-operation from these persons we will be forced to prosecute them."

C.N. Workers Device For Engine Heating Success

FORT ERIE, Ont., Sept. 18—A new method in use at the Canadian National Railways shops at Fort Erie for getting up steam on engines, invented by A. T. Turcotte, railway employee, is working out e. ectively, Jonah B. Cox, general locomotive foreman, said Friday.

Cox said the system is to spray fuel oil on a bed of coal in a locomotive fire box which is done with an atomizer. The sprayed coal bed is then ignited and results in a cool engine being ready for service in about one hour, or at the most an hour and a half.

"Formerly it used to take a good two hours or more to get an engine with sufficient head of steam to put it into service. We certainly are finding the new way very effective," concluded Cox.

British Air Chief On Retired List

LONDON, Sept. 18.—The official London Gazette Friday announced Air Chief Marshal Sir John M. Steel has been placed on the retired list at his own request.

Sir John, air officer commander-in-chief of the bomber command since 1936, is 60. His service began in the Royal navy, and he saw action in the Boer War and in the Battle of Jutland.

Police Speed at Ninety To Overtake Two Gunmen

BRIGHTON, Ont., Sept. 18.—Two men were under arrest here today while police aided by a posse of farmers searched surrounding bush country for a third after police and three gunmen in a stolen motor car exchanged shots in a 90-mile-an-hour chase along the highway near this town. Brighton is 15 miles southeast of Belleville on the Montreal-Toronto highway.

Both captured men refused to give their names to arresting officers. The chase began at Trenton, where police had been advised to watch for three men who broke into Picton Brewers' warehouse and got away with several cases of beer.

Nine miles east of Trenton in the northern section of Brighton, the gunmen pulled their car into a lane and fled on foot. The first man was captured nearby. He was unarmed.

The second man, with a wounded right arm, was captured at nearby Colborne. It was not known how he injured his arm, but police said it was not a bullet wound.

During the highway chase, both bandit and police cars were hit by flying bullets.

Aged Japanese Prince Stricken

OKITSU, Japan, Sept. 18.—Prince Kimmochi Saionji, last of Japan's elder statesmen and long a dominant factor in the government of the empire, was stricken Friday on a train journey from Gotemba.

A stretcher was hurriedly summoned and used to carry the 85-year-old genro to a taxi in which he was rushed to his home here.

Dr. Hinsuke Miura, former court physician, hurriedly called from Tokyo, said the illness was not serious.

William Hart's Old Director Succumbs

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 18—Clifford Smith, who directed 45 of William S. Hart's early films and countless other westerns, died Friday after an operation. Smith was born 51 years ago in Richmond, Ind.

Stars he directed included Buck Jones, Harry Carey, Tom Mix and Hoot Gibson.

NOTICE TO MOTORISTS

The "Brakes O.K." Campaign sponsored by the Traffic Department of the City Police has met with the co-operation of all Garages and Service Stations and the majority of the Fleet Owners of the City.

Many City Motorists have already had their Brakes tested and checked, to do their part in making the City Streets safe. To these motorists we say "Thank You".

The Traffic Squad are commencing a definite check-up of all cars not carrying the Safety Sticker. You will avoid being stopped by the Police if you obtain your Sticker today.

Lone Loyalist Brings Down Plane

VALENCIA, Sept. 18—A government soldier brought down an enemy warplane on the Aragon front with a single shot yesterday.

The insurgent plane was said to have been harrying government trenches near Zuera. While his comrades ducked as the plane dived, the anonymous soldier calmly stood and took aim.

The pilot was found in the plane wreckage with a bullet in his forehead. The agency said he was an Italian.

Scourge To Defer Opening At Ridley

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Sept. 18—Ridley College, scheduled to open Sept. 21, will not open until Oct. 5, Dr. H. C. Griffith, head master, announced Friday. The original opening of the school was to have been Sept. 14 but the postponement was made on the outbreak of infantile paralysis.

31 Years of Unfailing Service

DOGS

by P. Hamilton Goodsell

THE CHOW

A dog from the Far East which has won considerable popularity here and abroad is the Chow-Chow, more commonly known as the Chow. This breed, coming from China, although it cannot boast of having achieved in its own country the high rank and acclaim of its compatriot, the Pekinese, is nevertheless one of great individuality and distinctive appearance, proud and aristocratic in bearing.

It has suffered somewhat from being dubbed bad-tempered and unreliable by those who do not understand or appreciate its nature. Its scowling face and air of satisfied self-sufficiency may have had something to do with this mistake in the estimation of its worth. It is primarily a one-man dog. Intelligent, affectionate and ready to obey its owner and master, it has absolutely no interest in anyone else. With such a nature it is true that it resents a person trying to force himself upon its attention, and if such an attempt is persistent it may take the liberty of expressing its dislike and resentment in summary manner. If permitted to mind its own business it will accord others the same privilege.

SEVERAL PECULIARITIES

It has several peculiarities, found in few, if any, other breeds. The first is the blue-black color of the tongue and interior of the mouth. Occasionally a pup is born with a reddish tongue, which however usually turns black at maturity. Secondly, the hind legs are straight in the hock; that is, these joints do not have the bend in them found in most breeds, and furthermore they are sometimes double-jointed. Thirdly, it is the only breed I know of that is never troubled by fleas or any doggy odor. I have had Chow breeders tell me that dogs of this breed, even if kept in the same yards with dogs badly bothered by fleas, will never have any.

Its origin is somewhat in doubt, except that it most likely is related to such breeds as the Pomeranian, Spitz and Samoyede, or the sledge dogs of the north, which is indicated by its heavy coat. In the central and southern parts of the Celestial Empire it was held in scant regard except as food. That it should have been chosen as the edible dog is of interest because those breeds which I have mentioned as closely related to it were used largely for food and clothing by the peoples of the north.

Some have claimed that it is a very ancient breed, but I am unable to substantiate this by any evidence except a description of one of these dogs written by Gilbert White in 1792, and unless the edible dogs described by ancient Chinese writers were of this breed. It may well be that the dogs of the Arctic regions and northernmost Europe were developed from the Chinese dogs, but, which are the older seems entirely conjectural.

Just when the Chow was introduced into Europe does not seem quite clear, although the breed first appeared in the Stud Book of the Kennel Club in London in 1894, and the following year a breed club was organized in England. In Legge's Chinese Classics we can read: "My near neighbor, a young gentleman in the service of the East India Company, has brought home a dog . . . . of the Chinese breed, from Canton; such as are fattened in that country for the purpose of being eaten." He then describes a Chow fairly accurately, even to the peculiarity of the straight hind legs with no bend to the hocks, and the black mouth and tongue. This indicates that dogs of the breed were in England before they were admitted to the Stud Book.

The breed belongs to the non-sporting group, and representatives of it have done their share in winning best in their group and also in being awarded the supreme honor of best in show. Several years ago a female of the breed, Ming Toy, gained front page fame by being condemned to death by a Maryland court for having bitten a person while she was nursing a litter of pups. But sentence was suspended and the dog was turned over to some person who guaranteed her future good behavior. Soon afterwards she proved her worth as a useful member of society by preventing a large number of dogs kept in the kennels where she was an inmate from being burned to death by a fire which destroyed the building. For this act Ming Toy was awarded a medal by the local humane society, if my memory is correct, and once more her name appeared in big headlines.

Aide Charged

It must be the drink he is mixing which brought this happy smile to the face of Gilbert Romagnino, former bodyguard to the notorious Parisian swindler Alexandre Stavisky. It hardly could have resulted from racketeering and gambling charges which police are pressing against Romagnino.

EDMONTON STOCKYARDS, Sept. 18—Report for week ending Sept. 18:

Receipts—	Cattle	Calves	Hogs	Sheep
Saturday	37	10	70	40
Week	1218	409	558	350

Through this week the market has been active and trading generally brisk as buyers are operating freely. As a result salesmen have found no difficulty in making a good daily clean-up of all their receipts. Prices on the whole have been strong and at the close of the week 25c higher in spots, particularly cows. The following are the ruling prices at the close of the week:

Good to choice butcher steers $5.50 to $6.50, fair to medium $4.50 to $5.25, and common to fair from $3 to $4.50. Good butcher heifers $4.50 to $5, common to medium $2.50 to $4. Good to choice cows $3 to $3.50, common to medium $2.25 to $2.75. Canners and cutters $1.25 to $2. Bulls $1.50 to $2.50.

The stocker and feeder market has been fairly active, particularly on the better grades which have been finding a ready outlet. Plain kinds of stocker steers have been somewhat draggy. Good stockers and feeders from $3.50 to $4.50, plainer kinds from $3 down. Stocker heifers $1.75 to $2.50.

The calf market throughout the week has been showing a firm tone. Good to choice kinds going at $5.50 to $6, mediums $4.50 to $5, and plain kinds from $4 down and as low as $2.50 for common heavy calves.

The hog market throughout the week has been showing a strong tone and at the close on Friday trucked-in bacons sold at $9.40, with selects bringing a premium of 50c per cwt. and butchers discounted 50c per cwt.

The sheep and lamb market is showing a firmer tone. At the close of the week a few choice lambs sold at $6.50, with the general run from $6 down, yearlings $3 down and ewes $2 down.

IMPORTANT INFORMATION

Concerning the Turner Valley Oil Situation

Inasmuch as we are, and have been from the start, so closely and extensively connected with the development of the now proven crude oil area of Southwest Turner Valley, Huff Investments Limited feel they are competent to present for your thoughtful study the following important facts, opinions and observations concerning the present and future of the industry.

To properly grasp and understand the present situation it must be realized that—

(1) The first flowing crude oil well (Turner Valley Royalties) was brought into production only 15 months ago, and the second one (Foundation Petroleums) early this year; since which time the development has been extremely rapid. But it is only within the past few weeks that Turner Valley has proved its magnitude and capabilities.

(2) Prior to, and during, the proving of Southwest Turner Valley as a major oil field, it has been necessary to import crude oil into Alberta as well as the rest of Canada.

(3) Overnight, almost, Alberta has become capable of supplying its entire crude oil requirements, and, within a few weeks, will be able to supply those of Western Canada.

(4) The change from Importer to Exporter requires a little time and necessitates temporary measures such as proration of wells, which, while it temporarily reduces daily production, does increase the lifetime of the wells.

(5) Canada must obtain oil. The British Empire must obtain oil. And Alberta has got it. Your interests, present and future, are being especially well safeguarded and advanced by the recently formed committee of the Petroleum Producers Association, under the capable chairmanship of Mr. Walter S. Campbell, a director of Anglo-Canadian; and by the Hon. N. E. Tanner, Minister of Lands and Mines. The outlook is unusually bright, and presents magnificent opportunities to those who invest their funds in the proven crude oil area at this time when one of Canada's major industries is still an infant.

Here are some of the facts. Study them carefully; then read the extracts we have quoted from a most important editorial in The Globe and Mail of September 15, 1937, written by Mr. Sidney Norman, Mining Editor.

THE FACTS, taken from Government and other reports:

(1) The British Empire, in peace or war, purchases most of its oil from foreign countries.

(2) Canada is daily importing about 160,000 barrels of crude oil, being 16 times the present daily production of Turner Valley.

(3) Present daily production of Turner Valley is approximately 10,000 barrels of crude oil.

(4) Present daily requirements for Alberta consumption reported to be 10,000 barrels.

(5) Present daily importations into Alberta, mainly from Montana, about 6,000 barrels.

(6) Anticipated daily production of Turner Valley by December 31, 1937—over 20,000 barrels.

(7) Present daily requirements of crude oil for the prairie provinces is about 40,000 barrels, which, if supplied by Alberta, would mean an annual increase in Provincial Government revenue of over two million dollars.

(8) Importation of oil and proration of wells must cease. Canada must use its own oil. Here is what is being done—

From Calgary Albertan, September 17th issue:

Production tests of Turner Valley oil wells in connection with proration of output will be supervised by the Provincial Government, Hon. N. E. Tanner, Minister of Lands and Mines, announced Thursday at Edmonton.

W. S. Campbell, chairman of the investigating committee of the newly organized Petroleum Producers' Association, telephoned Mr. Tanner Thursday, to urge that the Provincial Government control of proration in the Valley, which thus far has been controlled by the Imperial and British American companies, being put into effect the first of the week.

Government control of proration is what the local association desired, Mr. Campbell said, stating that he believes his organization will agree to the proposal completely.

"We shall now endeavor to have the Provincial Government assist us in asking Dominion action in limiting of imports from the United States, and in getting reduced transportation rates to Eastern Canada, for the purpose of extending markets," Mr. Campbell said.

The Eastern Canada viewpoint as expressed by Mr. Norman:

"The present oil situation in Alberta presents an opportunity to the Dominion government which, it is hoped, for the lasting benefit of all of Canada, will be embraced promptly and to the fullest extent."

"After 25 years of discouragement, crude oil in quantity has been developed in Turner Valley. With the key to this great new wealth once found, production is increasing with leaps and bounds and has already exceeded the available carrying and refining facilities.

"The first step in relieving the congestion and bringing this domestic essential of industry into Canadian channels of trade is a pipeline to Moose Jaw and Regina, where additional refining facilities can be tapped.

"Cost of this carrier is beyond the present financial ability of the people most directly interested and, in any event, experience in the United States has proved that such facilities should, in the best interests of a nation, be publicly owned.

"Taking $5,000,000 as the basis and setting a carrying charge of 10 cents per barrel, the annual return would be equal to 14 percent upon the investment, or, in other words, the entire cost could be returned within 15, or to be quite safe, let us say 20 years.

"Has the government of this or any other country ever had a finer opportunity to encourage a great national industry, and supply its people with a domestic commodity that is absolutely essential in every branch of industry, including mining, upon which this nation so greatly depends for prosperity, for aviation, which is the very life blood of northern mining development, for economic operations, for railways and for every other power consuming phase of industrial life?

"With pipeline facilities provided to railway points, the government could use its influence to reach the greater markets of Canada by subsidizing the railways in the matter of tank car freight rates.

"It would be unfair to expect the railways to carry this business at a loss and yet it is more than probable that their managements will see to it that the great mistakes of their fellows in the United States are not repeated and thereby lose forever a line of traffic that would go a long way toward turning red figures into black and relieving the nation of one of its greatest annual deficits.

"There is no way by which the Dominion government could confer greater benefit not only upon the people of the prairie provinces, who have experienced and met with fortitude an era of prolonged drought, but upon the nation as a whole.

Cites Relief Costs

"By its help now, enthusiastic and far-reaching, it would largely if not entirely obviate the necessity for relief funds, which have been such a drain upon the national purse in recent years.

"Up till March 1 of this year the nation had advanced for relief, quite apart from provincial or municipal aid, a total of $108,258,398 to the four western provinces.

"Every dollar of that great sum has been lost forever, gone into sustenance of those unable to find employment in the most devastating depression in all history. There are no public works to show for it.

"Expenditures in expanding the domestic oil industry would merely be loaned and upon the best of collateral. It would provide employment of a permanent nature to thousands and create an entirely new industry within the Dominion.

"How important that objective is may be proved by the fact that the nation now pays out approximately $50,000,000 annually for foreign petroleum and its derivatives.

"The present production in Turner Valley is of course small in comparison with that of the United States, but unless all signs fail, a new great industry has been born in Canada out there in the shadow of the Rockies and one likely to revolutionize economic conditions, besides wiping out an adverse balance of trade now equal to $5 a head for every man, woman and child in the Dominion.

"There can be no valid argument against public ownership of carrying facilities, as opposed to private ownership, and there is not the slightest doubt that investment of public funds in such facilities, under the best of engineering advice, will earn big returns. That has been proved by experience in the United States.

"We offer this proposal to the Dominion government firm in the belief that it would meet with public approval and result in one of the best and most far-reaching investments any government has made in recent history.

BROWN NO. 1 BLOWS IN AS CRUDE WELL

CALGARY, Sept. 18—Brown Corporation No. 1 blew in at 6:45 Friday evening, with indications of becoming a good crude producer. The well flowed for about an hour and then the flow choked off. Practically all the drilling fluid has been cleared from the hole by swabbing and when the well came in, it blew the swab nearly to the top of the derrick.

Further swabbing to start the well will be resumed if the well does not begin to flow again under its own power.

The choking situation was blamed on the oil between the casing and the tubing backing down, and lowering the back pressure while increasing the weight of the oil in the tubing. A considerable quantity of oil was taken in the tanks while the well was flowing.

The rate of flow during this period would indicate that Brown No. 1 will possibly be in the 400-barrel daily class.

Brown No. 2 is drilling 320 feet in the limestone, while Mercury No. 8 is making fair time 305 feet in the lime. These wells may be completed within a few days.

Granville Oils is making hole more than 100 feet in the Madison, with Share Royalties and Model Reward Spooner about 90 feet in the Turner Valley producing formation. Prairie Royalties, which contacted the lime at 6,830 feet Thursday night, is preparing to set a full string of casing.

Commeil Pete, at 6,951 feet, and National Pete No. 1, at 6,630 feet, are deep in the Fernie shale and expect the lime shortly.

JAP EMPEROR HEARS REPORT ON CHINA WAR

TOKYO, Sept. 18.—Emperor Hirohito today received Premier Fumimaro Konoye to hear a report on the situation in China.

Authorized sources said Japan's reply to the British note protesting the wounding of Sir Hugh Knatchbull-Hugessen, British ambassador to China, probably will be made before the end of the month, although no date has been set.

The Japanese enquiry into the incident has failed to establish that the ambassador was wounded by machine-gun bullets fired from a Japanese plane, as the British note charged, it was said. The ambassador's car was flying a Union Jack.

Third Conservative In Ottawa Contest

OTTAWA, Sept. 18—Conservatives will have plenty of candidates to choose from when they visit the polls in South Ottawa for the Ontario elections. Eric F. J. Hanna, Ottawa lawyer, is the third Conservative to enter the contest for the riding. He took out his nomination papers Friday. He is running as a straight Conservative. Other Conservatives are G. H. Dunbar and Arthur Ellis, former member.

Alberta Girl Is Chased By Rattler

"I heard the snake's warning rattle," she said. "But nobody here ever heard of a snake chasing a human being. Then it started to follow me. I was pretty scared."

Nippon Reported Killed In Action

PEIPING, Sept. 18.—Japanese authorities Friday said one reporter for the newspaper Osaka Mainichi was reported killed and another missing in the Fangshan region, west of the Peiping-Hankow railway.

Fangshan was captured two days ago by the Japanese army driving toward Chochow, 40 miles south of here.

Doyle's Next

It will be the fourth marriage for Mrs. Delphine Dodge Cromwell Baker Godde, motor fortune heiress, and the second for Jack Doyle, Irish crooning boxer, when they trip to the altar together. The cooing couple are seen together near Reno, Nev., where they announced their engagement while awaiting divorces from their present mates.

REBELS CHARGE RUSSIAN SUBS WITH PIRACY

LONDON, Sept. 18. — Insurgent Spain Friday formally accused Russia of submarine piracy in the Mediterranean, a Reuters despatch from Salamanca, Spain, reported.

The despatch said insurgent General Franco's headquarters claimed "irrefutable proof" that Russian submarines have attacked merchant shipping in the inland sea.

Franco's communique said the facts would be submitted to the European "Hands Off Spain" committee in London. It charged that "at least two of the pirate submarines in the Mediterranean belong to the Soviet fleet." It described the submarines as 950-ton craft, each of which carried 22 torpedoes.

Fourth Paralysis Case At Regina

REGINA, Sept. 18.—Fourth infantile paralysis case has been admitted to a Regina hospital. The patient is a young man, resident of the Zehner district, and contracted the disease at his home.

Of the four cases now in the Regina hospital, only one has been found to be a resident of the city.

Regina Pioneer Dies

REGINA, Sept. 18.—Mrs. Robert Sinton, 76, pioneer resident long associated with social and church services of this city, died Friday. Mrs. Sinton was born in Georgetown, Que., in 1861, Christina Campbell, married Mr. Sinton in 1897, and they made their home in Regina since 1882.

LOYAL SPAIN ASKS LEAGUE TO INTERVENE

Demands That Germany, Italy Be Named As Aggressors

GENEVA, Sept. 18.—Dr. Juan Negrin, Spanish government premier, demanded today that the League of Nations name Germany and Italy aggressors in Spain and force an end to their intervention on behalf of the insurgents in the civil war.

The Madrid-Valencia "win the war government" opened debate on foreign intervention in the civil war before the League of Nations assembly with the declaration the conflict in reality has become a "war of invasion" by Germany and Italy.

OCCUPATIONAL PACT

Their intervention on behalf of General Franco, Negrin asserted, is the result of "nothing more than an occupational pact."

He asserted that the non-intervention scheme by European powers is "dead" and that "yesterday's announcement that Anglo-French naval patrols off the Spanish coast have been withdrawn may constitute the ultimate steps towards its final burial."

FIVE DEMANDS

1—That German-Italian aggression, of which Spain has been the victim, be recognized.

2—In consequence of this recognition that the League of Nations examine a means of putting an end to this aggression.

3—That the Spanish government once more have the right to acquire freely all war material it may consider necessary.

4—That non-Spanish combatants be withdrawn from Spanish territory.

5—That measures of security adopted in the Mediterranean be extended to Spain and that Spain be assured of her legitimate participation in them.

"The fact of invasion is recognized and proclaimed with the greatest cynicism by these international highwaymen," Dr. Negrin declared, citing Premier Mussolini's and Chancellor Hitler's words that they favored and upheld the cause of Fanco.

French Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos followed with a defence of the League of Nations as a unit for maintaining peace.

"If the covenant had been accepted and practised by all, the problem of peace would have been solved," Delbos said.

Some species of sphinx moths have tongues that are twice as long as their bodies, and they take splendid care of the tongue by curling it up under the head.

ALWAYS ENCLOSE A STAMPED ADDRESSED ENVELOPE

Address all correspondence to: The Director, Stamp Collectors' Club, The Bulletin, Edmonton, Alberta.

For some years The Bulletin has made possible guidance in the hobby of an internationally known philatelic expert, who is at your service to advise regarding your problems.

YOU are welcome in membership. State your age, size of collection and what stamps are of special interest to you. Enclose postage for reply always. You will receive a membership card and some stamps for your collection.

WHERE TO BUY STAMPS

Following the series of articles, concluded with Club Notes No. 407, dealing with the arrangement of a collection, we will chant today about where to shop for your stamps. Many daily papers, and the various philatelic publications that appear weekly, semi-monthly, quarterly, etc., carry advertisements in which offers of stamps are made, in sets, singles or packets. In the early stages of a collection one may obtain a "showing" of a countries' stamp issues, and at the lowest possible cost, by obtaining a packet of that country. Packets are usually of "second grade" items; that is, the stamps are sound in every way but are off-centre, or more heavily cancelled than stamps that are purchased from approval selections. Some dealers estimate that 15 per cent "good" copies are all that come from a hundred copies "as they run." Even with the very commonest stamps, the time involved in sorting—picking out of the comparatively few nice-conditioned items, and rejecting the damaged ones to be destroyed—is worth the dealer's money, which a collector must be prepared to pay for. It is the "ordinary run" of stamps that are used to make "packets"—so many different items from a given country, but which will make a start in filling the space. A collection to be worthy of the name, should reflect a gradual improvement in the condition of the stamps that are collected, stamps in better philatelic condition gradually replacing the "space-fillers," which, in turn, are used as "traders" with other collectors who are not so far advanced in the hobby.

It is probable that 85 per cent of stamps merchandised are sold from approval selections. Of course, there are "approvals," and "APPROVALS"! One of the most reliable and successful stamp dealing firms Errington and Martin of London, England, who have since been taken over by another firm, used for some decades the slogan, "Business by correspondence only." Their entire stock was at their customers' disposal by post, and stamps could be selected at leisure in one's own home. It is noted that the largest stamp firm in Western Canada has also made this their policy, as better value and service can be given by mail. This Edmonton firm, The North Land Stamp Co., have been established here for the past ten years and report their growing list of clients as coming from those collectors who have had dealings with them and are pleased with the service and value received.

PHILATELIC CONDITION

The stamps of some countries (Spain, as an example) are generally poorly centred and a much larger number of items must be picked over in order to select a well-centred stamp. Some issues are also heavily cancelled, owing to the type of obliteration used by the post offices of the country of issue.

The ideal used copy for a collection is, of course, one well-centred, and lightly cancelled. When one goes to sell a collection, the purchaser's first thought is "condition." While one may pay slightly more for some items when buying from approvals, it should be born in mind that it is economy in the long run, and one has true value in buying such single items. Apart from the enjoyment of the hobby, as a hobby, the thought can be kept in mind of ultimate value—an asset, that can be turned into money.

CONDITION CRANKS

DON'T be a "condition crank," however! There are such collectors who expect for ordinary price, an item that is more than 100 per cent perfect. Bear in mind that the dealer wants your business, and offers his stamps at competitive prices. It is natural for him to be in close touch with the stamp market, and he above all knows the varying conditions in which issues of a country may come.

Club members, who have not bought stamps in the ideal way—from approval selections—should try it! Remember, the selection is the property of the dealer, and as great, or greater care should be taken of the stamps while in your possession, than if they were your own. Report promptly, within the usual 10-day period, and advise what stamps are of special interest to you. You see and examine the stamps before buying and know exactly what you are getting.

IMPORTANT ANNOUNCEMENT
Tune in on CJCA Monday, Wednesday, Friday, 11:15 to 11:30 a.m.
"COLOR IS YOUR HOME" by MONARCH PAINTS

"Last September I struck a match

—"and lit the pilot light of my Gas furnace," says one of our customers.

"This Spring I went down to the basement and turned it out. That is practically all the attention my heating plant required."

REVENGE GAME IS CALLED OFF AS FUNDS SHRINK

BIARRITZ, France, Sept. 18—Gambler Amleto Battisti called off his revenge baccarat game Thursday but announced he would try again next year.

Then, said the Uruguayan mathematician who lost $370,000 instead of winning back the $1,000,000 he lost eight years ago, amateurs with less than five years' experience will be barred.

So Peresha Cortina Solzetra, blond senora from the Argentine who took about two thirds of the $370,000 Battisti lost, will be out of the game. She played at the direction of a "voice" which directed her draws and betting.

Battisti said he was "far from broke."

Mother Dies: Boy 2, Alone For 10 Days

NEW YORK, Sept. 18—Cries of a half-starved two-year-old negro boy Friday led police to the discovery that the death of his mother had held him captive and virtually without food for about 10 days.

Apparently realizing she was dying, Mrs. Sarah Spence, about 35, had released the child from its crib. Evidence indicated he had ransacked all closets and the ice-box and had subsisted on two raw eggs and a small piece of butter

Major and Minor Notes

By John Oliver

Mrs. Ernest Meaden, the indefatigable secretary of the Women's Musical club, whose efforts on behalf of the 1937-38 Celebrity series of concerts are bearing attractive fruit, is hard at work again in preparation for the season that will be opened by Roland Hayes, tenor. Mrs. Meaden, irrepressible in spirits and fairly radiating enthusiasm, encountered this writer on the street a few days ago and spoke enthusiastically of the series and the response to it.

Relying solely on memory, the thought it retained that Mrs. Meadon said that already, at this distance, no fewer than 700 season subscriptions had been taken out, which is most satisfactory.

She also disclosed the fact that Helen Jepson, beautiful and blonde, who sings at the Metropolitan Opera and who was to have been the second in the series of attractions, will not be here. It appears that in these enlightened days, those artists fortunate enough to obtain Hollywood or big time radio contracts, must give them preference. Miss Jepson, as most know, is among those in demand in those two realms, as well as at the Met. Consequently, she will be in Hollywood when she should be here.

However, there is a silver lining in every cloud and while Miss Jepson, beautiful and blonde, will not be here, Rosa Tentoni, beautiful and brunette, will be here. Miss Tentoni is one of the younger crop of stars, who is gradually forging to the forefront. In proof of her contention that Miss Tentoni is easy to gaze upon, Mrs. Meadon submitted a picture. Just to show how restfully she falls upon the eye, this picture is reproduced elsewhere on this page.

The other attractions in the Celebrity series are the Trudy Schoop ballet; Albert Spalding, violinist, and Muriel Kerr, pianist, all of which indicates a highly successful season and ample reason for Mrs. Meaden's broad smile and spontaneous enthusiasm.

The first meeting of the season, of the Ladies' Lyric club, will be held at the I.O.O.F. hall, 103rd Street, on Monday next, September 20, at 8.00 p.m. This meeting will take the form of a social function with a special view to welcoming new members.

The Elysian Ladies' Chorus, which held a successful season inaugural meeting last week, will meet again on Tuesday next. Officials point out that there are vacancies in the chorus for a few good voices.

WANTED
A GIRL OR A BOY
TO WIN THIS
C.C.M. BICYCLE

Smart appearance—light weight—long life—easy pedalling—all of these and a dozen other things that you get in a C.C.M. Bicycle are important. But the most important of them all is the accuracy with which C.C.M. Bicycles are built.

A C.C.M. is a beautiful piece of precision built machinery down to the smallest detail. Particularly is it true of the main moving parts—the front hub, the rear hub, and the hanger, to which the main sprocket, cranks and pedals are attached. These parts are carefully machined by precision tools and are closely tested for accuracy.

Thus the fast moving parts fit so accurately together and work with such sweet harmony that very little leg-power is required to make the C.C.M. move swiftly along the road or on the racing track. It's this amazing accuracy that is the secret of the C.C.M.'s [illegible] quiet running, and the long life of its [illegible] working parts.

Even a small imperfection in the machining of a fast-working part, or a bearing that is not quite true, can set up a surprising amount of internal friction which, if continued day after day, will shorten the life of the bicycle and make it harder to pedal. C.C.M.'s extreme accuracy in manufacture safeguards against this.

Notice To Creditors and Claimants

NOTICE is hereby given that all persons having claims upon the estate of the above named Levi A. McKim, who died on the 21st day of December, 1936, are required to file with John MacGregor Thom, Esq., Public Administrator, at the Court House, Edmonton, Alberta, by the 18th day of October, 1937, a full statement duly verified of their claims and of any securities held by them, and that after that date the said Administrator will distribute the assets of the deceased among the parties entitled thereto having regard only to the claims of which notice has been so filed or which have been brought to his knowledge.

DATED this 17th day of September, 1937.

T. H. WELLS,
Solicitor for the Administrator,
720 Tegler Bldg.,
Edmonton, Alberta.

Government of the Province of Alberta

Notice To Holders Of Province Of Alberta Debentures Which Matured April First, 1936:

The Province of Alberta will pay interest to bona fide holders of debentures of the above issue at three per cent in respect of the half year ending October 1, 1937, being at the rate of $15.00 and $7.50 respectively for each $1,000 and $500 denomination.

Holders will be paid interest as above on presentation of their debenture or debentures for notation thereon of such payment of interest at the principal office of the Imperial Bank of Canada in any of the cities of Toronto, Montreal, or Edmonton. Debentures should be accompanied by the usual ownership certificate required by the Dominion government as in the case of coupons.

HON. S. LOW,
Provincial Treasurer,
Province of Alberta.

Notice To Creditors

OF FIRST MEETING WHERE ASSIGNMENT MADE

In the Matter of the Authorized Assignment of BERT ENGEN, carrying on business as "BERT'S GROCERY", in the Town of Bawlf, Province of Alberta, Debtor.

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that BERT ENGEN, carrying on business as BERT'S GROCERY, in the Town of Bawlf, Province of Alberta, made an Assignment on the 17th day of September, 1937, and that the first meeting of creditors will be held on the 30th day of September 1937, at the hour of 4:00 o'clock in the afternoon, at the Court House, in the City of Edmonton, Province of Alberta.

To vote thereat proofs of claims and proxies must be filed with us prior thereto.

Those having claims against the Estate must file the same with the Custodian or the Trustee when appointed before distribution is made, otherwise the proceeds of the Estate will be distributed among the parties entitled thereto without regard to such claims.

IN TRUTH, ALVIN, I OWE MY LIFE TO MY UNCANNY ABILITY IN THE ART OF BALANCING ATOP STILTS!
IT WAS WHILE PURSUING A RARE SPECIES OF MOTH IN MADAGASCAR! JUST AS I CAUGHT THE ONLY SPECIMENS EVER FOUND, I WAS ATTACKED BY FIERCE NATIVES ~~
PURSUED TOWARDS MY CAMP, I HASTILY MADE MY PLANS ~ QUICKLY CUTTING TWO SAPLINGS SOME 20 FEET HIGH, WITH A CROTCH NEAR THE TOP OF EACH POLE, I MOUNTED THEM AND WRAPPED A LARGE TENT, SKIRT FASHION, ABOUT MY ARTIFICIAL LEGS
AS THE SAVAGES APPEARED, I STARTED TOWARDS THEM WITH MIGHTY STRIDES AND WHOOPS ~~ THE NATIVES STOOD AGHAST, AT SEEING A GIANT TOWERING, AS I DID, HIGH ABOVE THEM! THEN PANIC TOOK THEM AND THEY FLED INTO THE JUNGLE ~~
SO WELL DID I ASSUME THE STRIDE AND APPEARANCE OF A MAMMOTH MAN, THAT MY OWN BLACK BOYS WOULD NOT APPROACH THE CAMP UNTIL I HAD DISCARDED THE TENT SKIRT AND EXPOSED THE STILTS UPON WHICH I STOOD ~
I WANT IT HIGHER UP!
BUT DRAT IT, MADAM! YOU KNOW I CANNOT SCALE SUCH HEIGHTS WITHOUT GETTING FAINT AND DIZZY!

This Curious World
by William Ferguson
The KILLDEER
IS A MEMBER OF THE PLOVER FAMILY, AND IS KNOWN ALSO AS KILLDEER PLOVER, NOISY PLOVER, AND KILLDEE!
THE NAME KILLDEER COMES FROM THE BIRD'S CRY, WHICH RESEMBLES THE WORDS "KILL DEER," OR "KILLDEE."
THE NEST IS MADE ON THE GROUND, AMONG PEBBLES, WHICH BLEND PERFECTLY WITH THE FOUR, BROWN SPLOTCHED EGGS! THESE ALWAYS ARE PLACED WITH THE POINTED END TO THE CENTER.
SOMETIMES, THE KILLDEER IS FOUND FAR FROM ANY BODY OF WATER, BUSILY ENGAGED IN CATCHING THE INSECTS TURNED UP BY THE FARMERS' PLOWS.
LIKE THE REST OF THE PLOVERS, IT IS A TYPICAL SHORE-BIRD, AND PREFERS TO GLEAN ITS LIVING NEAR PONDS AND STREAMS.
THE KILLDEER IS VERY VALUABLE TO MAN, SINCE ITS DIET INCLUDES MOSQUITOES, TICKS, FLIES, WORMS AND A MULTITUDE OF INJURIOUS SPECIES OF BEETLES.

I TOLD YOU I DIDN'T WANT YOU CALLING ON MYRTLE! THAT'S FINAL!!
WHAT ARE YA GONNA DO NOW?
I'M GONNA GO BACK THERE AFTER A WHILE AND GIVE HIM A PIECE OF MY MIND!
IT WON'T WORK, OSSIE... I JUST KNOW IT WON'T!
YOU GO AN' ASK MOM FOR A PAIR OF POP'S OLD PANTS AND A COAT..
HEY, TAG, ASK HER FOR THE FALSE WHISKERS POP WORE AT A MASQUERADE, TOO.
BOY, I DON'T LOOK BAD, DO I? THESE STILTS SURE MAKE ME LOOK LIKE A BIG GUY! I'M GONNA PRETEND I'M POP!
I THINK THE WHOLE THING'D BE EASIER IF YOU'D FORGET MYRTLE!
WELL, WHAT DO YOU WANT?
I CAME TO CONSULT YOU REGARDING A VERY IMPORTANT MATTER, MY GOOD MAN!
YOU WOULDN'T BY ANY CHANCE HAPPEN TO KNOW MISTER PLETZENBAUM, WOULD YOU?
NO...I'VE NEVER MET HIM!
IN THAT CASE, LET ME WARN YOU NOT TO LAY ANOTHER HAND ON OSCAR, OR IT WON'T GO WELL WITH YOU! AND THAT'S FINAL!!
OH, IS THAT SO! AND WHO ARE YOU?
I'M MY FATHER, THAT'S WHO I AM!!
